In an effort to save his little sister Ruth from an elevator that had started accidentally, Walter Paridise, nineteen years, of 348 East One Hundred and Twenty-fourth Street, was crushed to death last evening in the elevator shaft of the Montana Apartment house at 35 Mount Morris Park West.

The little girl, who is eight years old, had gone to visit her brother, who was an elevator boy. According to the child's story she was standing in the car when the bell rang. Walter was near the door and ran to the car. Just as he was about to get on it the child says it moved upward quickly and he fell.

The boy's body was found at the bottom of the shaft with his skull crushed. The police think the freight compartment flooring carried him upward until it crushed his body against the iron frame work of the elevator door and then dropped it down into the pit.

W. J. BRYAN A GRANDFATHER.

Daughter Is Born to Mrs. A. S. Leavitt in New Orleans.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, Sept. 28.—Mrs. A. L. Leavitt of this city received news to-day of the birth in New Orleans this morning of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Leavitt.

Mr. Leavitt married Miss Ruth Bryan, daughter of William Jennings Bryan, and this daughter is the first grandchild of the former Presidential candidate.

LADY CURZON HAS RALLIED.

Improvement of Tuesday Night Was Maintained Yesterday.

WALMER CASTLE, Kent., Sept. 28.—Lady Curzon rallied last night, and continued to gain to-day. At 9 o'clock to-night it was stated that she had passed a comfortable day, and that her condition had improved.

The bulletin issued in the morning announced that Lady Curzon had distinctly rallied and that her condition was less grave, although still critical.

AUTO DIVES INTO RIVER.

Troubles of Johnstone-Johnstone of New York in Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—R. H. Johnstone-Johnstone of 200 Central Park West, New York, came to town to-day with a young woman. He took an auto out in Fairmount Park. The machine became balky, bumped into a tree and spilled the girl into a flowerbed, and then made for the river. Johnstone-Johnstone stuck to the lever until the auto plunged into the river. Then he swam ashore. A wrecking crew rescued the automobile.

HERRICK MONEY AT 10 TO 9.

Nobody to Take Higgins End, However, and $10,000 Goes Begging.

Only one election wager was made on the curb yesterday. C. R. Hammerslough wagered $1,200 against $3,000 on Roosevelt, put up by R. F. Wilson.

Herrick money was freely offered at 10 to 9, but not a wager was made, as there appeared to be no Higgins money in sight, $10,000 offered at these odds went begging.

TORPEDO ADRIFT AT 'FRISCO.

Lost from Submarine Boat—Charged with 200 Pounds of Gun Cotton.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 28.—Two torpedoes were lost last Friday from the United States submarine boat Pike, which has been experimenting in San Pablo Bay under the direction of Lieut. MacArthur. One has been recovered by Italian fishermen.

The other is still at large and may be exploded by a passing vessel. It is charged with 200 pounds of gun cotton. A reward of $250 is offered for its recovery.

The one already found had lost its compressed air and was practically harmless.

HIT BY ROOSEVELT SALUTE.

Schultz Crossed Northport Republicans' Firing Line Inopportunely.

NORTHPORT, L. I., Sept. 28.—Just as the firing committee of the local Republican Club made ready to let go the salute which was to mark the raising of a Roosevelt and Fairbanks banner here last night, Frank Schultz crossed in front of the cannon that was being used in the celebration. The wadding struck him on the left side and the powder filled his hands and arms.

Schultz was picked up unconscious and hurried to the railroad station, where a special train took him to the Mineola Hospital. It is said there that his injuries, while serious, are not necessarily fatal.

FAITH CURISTS IMMERSED.

Three Men and Three Women Baptized in the Bay.

Six converts made to the faith cure belief during the recent convention at the Church of the First Born, Jersey City, were baptized in New York Bay yesterday. The ceremony took place at the foot of Chapel Avenue and was performed by the Rev. Martin D. Hancox, pastor of the church.

Three men and three women were immersed. As the water was colder than had been expected, the ceremony was made as brief as possible.

FAMILY SHOT FROM AMBUSH.

Farmer Mortally Wounded and Wife and Child Seriously Hurt.

CLINTON, Ky., Sept. 28.—While Kink Head, a farmer living four miles from here, was standing with his wife and child on their front porch to-night, they were all shot from ambush.

Head was mortally wounded and the woman and child were seriously hurt.

SHOT DEAD IN "FUN."

Foreman's Play with Italian Teamster Has Disastrous Result.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, Sept. 28.—While playing with a revolver to-day Herman Gerken of 940 Monroe Street, Elizabeth, a foreman employed by the B. M. & J. F. Shanley Company, shot and killed Pasquale Festa, a teamster. The shooting occurred in the southern section of the city, where the men were engaged in excavating.

Gerken, according to the police, was intoxicated. Approaching the Italian with revolver in hand, he ordered him to dance. The weapon was discharged, the bullet entering Festa's left breast and killing him instantly. Gerken has been arrested.

ELEVATOR BOY KILLED.

Equitable Building Employe Caught Between Car Floor and Door.

Russell Van Gelder, twenty-two years old, an elevator boy employed by the Equitable Life in its main office, 120 Broadway, was killed in a private elevator between the third and second floors of the building shortly after 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Exactly how the accident happened is not known. The elevator was down at the second floor, when an employe rang for it to come up to the third. The car started, but appeared to get stuck, and, upon investigation, Van Gelder was found, caught by the neck between the floor of the car and the lintel of the iron guard floor.

He was dead when taken down.

SEVEN ALDERMEN INDICTED IN BUFFALO

Charges of Accepting Bribes Made Against Them.

INVESTIGATION TO CONTINUE

Another Batch of Officials or ex-Officials Likely to be Proceeded Against in Connection with City Contracts.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Sept. 28.—Seven Aldermen or ex-Aldermen must stand trial on charges of receiving bribes. They have been notified to appear at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning to answer allegations contained in seven indictments reported to the Supreme Court this afternoon.

All are Republicans, but it is declared that the District Attorney has only just begun his inquiry, and that the next batch of indictments will draw into the net Democrats, who are at present members of the Common Council. One of the implicated men was elected as a reformer.

The men at present indicted are not among the leaders in the Board of Aldermen. It is the understanding that the indictments were found upon two transactions and that the amounts involved in each case were comparatively small.

The Ontario Street sewer, which was built by John Harrer, is the indirect cause of two indictments. Two Aldermen went to a saloon in the vicinity of the City and County Hall and told Herrer, it is alleged, that it would cost him $2,500 to get the contract for constructing the sewer, on which he was the lowest bidder. John Moissenac was with Harrer when the conversation with the Alderman occurred. Both gave testimony regarding the conversation. Harrer refused to pay so large a sum, and finally compromised on a smaller amount. This was afterward paid.

Five of the others are charged with taking $50 each for directing the city to construct a private sewer into the plant of a piano keyboard company.

The story is told that the seven Aldermen visited the plant in question, and that one of them took the manager aside and told him that the sewer would be built if there was $1,000 to be divided among the "boys." The manager demurred, and gradually the figure was reduced, and the "boys" consented to take $50 apiece, though there is no evidence that the entire seven got the money.

Thomas W. Pelham, a lawyer, went before the Grand Jury, and stated that the $350 had been paid to an Alderman. Four others got part of it, but the remaining two have escaped so far the inquiry of the District Attorney.

Talk of flight and suicide are heard throughout the city to-night, as it is believed that some of those under indictment will tell what they know about municipal grafting in this city and involve a number of officials.

District Attorney Coatsworth declares that he has additional material to present to the next Grand Jury, which will occupy all next week. He refuses to say in what direction his inquiry will reach. Strenuous efforts are being made to stop the investigation.

COL. BRUMDER FOR PARKER.

German Newspaper Owner Hitherto Has Supported Republicans.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—It was brought to the notice of the Republican National Committee to-day that it had lost the support of George Brumder of Milwaukee, who owns several German newspapers, and in whom the committeemen believed they had a stanch friend and adherent. The Freie Press of Lincoln, Neb., a weekly owned by Col. Brumder and credited with one of the largest circulations of all the German newspapers in America, announced in its last issue that it would support Parker. The intimation has reached Republican Headquarters that the reason for this change of front is some slight put upon its owner by a member of the National Committee.

"I know Col. Brumder well, and have had two interviews with him in this office," said Vice Chairman Harry New, "and I cannot understand why he should consider that he has been slighted. Of my own knowledge I do not know that he has changed his attitude in politics."

CAR WHEEL WHIRLED CHILD.

Little Girl Killed—New Motorman Was Learning.

While playing in the street near her home last evening, Pearl Cohen, five and a half years old, of 3,344 Third Avenue, the Bronx, was knocked down by a Fordham car at One Hundred and Sixty-sixth Street and Third Avenue and dragged for nearly half a block before the car was brought to a stop. The child died a few minutes after being taken to the Lebanon Hospital.

The car was under the control of William Stutel, a "green" motorman, who was being instructed by a regular man, William Andel. According to the police, Stutel seemed very badly frightened before and after the child was struck, and Andel finally took the controller and brake from his hands and brought the car to a stop. Both motormen were arrested.

The little girl's dress caught between a wheel and the fender, and she was whirled over and over for more than fifty feet.

SAW MAN DROP INTO RIVER.

Barge Captain and Policeman Unable to Save Him.

Capt. Louis Larson of the barge William P. Scully, berthed at the foot of West Forty-eighth Street, reported to the police last night that he had seen a well-dressed man of thirty-five years stagger down to the end of the pier about 9 o'clock and fall or jump into the river. He said that the man was apparently under the influence of liquor, and that he could not be sure whether he stumbled and pitched overboard into the water or whether he jumped in.

The dock is particularly well lighted, and Larson was able to get a good look at the man. As soon as he saw him in the water he threw a line to him, but the man made no attempt to reach for it. Larson and Policeman Sheridan then threw another line to the man from the next pier, but the tide carried him away so fast that they could not get him. His body was not recovered.

Senator Hoar's End Near.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 28.—United States Senator George F. Hoar's condition continues most critical. He has not rallied from the sleep and stupor into which he fell Tuesday afternoon, and it is feared that he is in his last sleep. He partakes of neither food nor nourishment, being too weak to swallow. The attending physicians said late to-night there was absolutely no hope.

ODELL MAKES DENIAL TO CUNNEEN'S CHARGES

Has Never Used Official Position for His Party's Benefit.

CALLS HIS ACCUSER UNFAIR

Says the People Should Not Be Misled by Statements Lacking Substantial and Specific Direction.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Gov. Odell to-day gave out the following in regard to Attorney General Cunneen's statement published in this morning's papers:

"I have read Attorney General Cunneen's remarkable statement in the press of to-day. Divested of its generalities it makes the following charges:

"That public funds have been diverted in an unconstitutional manner to the 'beet sugar' industry of the State; that the Board of Canal Commissioners, consisting of the Lieutenant Governor, the Controller, the State Treasurer, the Secretary of State, the State Engineer and Surveyor, the Attorney General, all elective officers, who act with the Superintendent of Public Works, the only officer appointed by the Governor, has made an award of $18,618 in excess of that which he claimed to be proper; that in the appointment of the Board of Appraisers, provided for by legislation of the last Legislature, I had fixed the salary contrary to statute. That he claimed was an indication that the $101,000,000 appropriated would not be sufficient to pay the place holders, because the salary of those employed in this and expert engineering work now was $6,083.30 a month, although no contract for the work has yet been allowed. He finds general fault also with the tax matters of the State because more public places and salaries are made available for party workers, and that appropriations had been made frequently and in disregard of constitutional prohibition.

Democratic Platform's Authorship

"The Attorney General began his statement by disclaiming responsibility for the authorship of that remarkable document known as 'The Democratic State Platform.' Of this I am glad, because I do not believe that he has the slightest conception as to its truths, so far as it reflects upon my personal or official endeavors. If others, however, who mask behind it will be equally as specific in their charges as to my official conduct I shall be as ready and glad to meet them as I am to meet the specific allegations of Mr. Cunneen.

"The statement of the Attorney General as to the beet sugar industry is ingenious in so far as it would create the impression that it was the product of one of the Legislatures which had served with me during my four years of administration.

"The contrary, however, is the case, because this law was first enacted in the year 1897 and amended in 1898, the latter provision stating in explicit terms that it was the avowed purpose of the State to encourage for a term of not less than five years the cultivation of sugar beets by the farmers of the State and their manufacture into sugar.

"Both of these laws were signed by Gov. Black. The appropriations during those two years, amounting to $75,000, were made for this purpose. Surely Gov. Black's ability as a lawyer would have led him to disapprove of these measures if the narrow construction had been placed upon it in those days that the present Attorney General gave to it in 1903. President Roosevelt, as Governor, continued these appropriations during his administration.

"During the second year of my administration I objected to the bounty which was paid to the sugar manufactory as being excessive, and by the laws of 1903 the bounty was reduced to one-half cent per pound, instead of one cent as heretofore, with the distinct understanding, according to my recollection, that this bounty should cease with the appropriation of 1904.

"Has the Attorney General been entirely fair, however, in his treatment of this matter? I do not recall that he objected to the appropriations in aid of the Agricultural Society of the State, yet they fall under the same inhibition, or that there was any objection upon his part to the appropriation for the Buffalo University for the Study of Cancer, to the Albany Medical Hospital, to the Alfred University to encourage the pottery industry in Western New York, and to the appropriations made for the support of the Juvenile Society, a private organization, of which he is a member, and to other similar appropriations that have been made during his term of office.

"Neither is there any objection, so far as I know, on his part to the appropriation, which has been growing steadily, to the Agricultural Department for the extermination of the San José scale, which is in the interest of the orchard owners of the State and is as much in the direction of the encouragement of agriculture as is the aid given to those who cultivate the sugar beet. All of these items also go to show that the growth of the expenditures of the State, taken up item by item, can be as easily accounted for.

Action of the Canal Board.

"In reference to the charge that $16,000 was diverted from the public treasury by the unwise action of the Canal Board, I do not believe that the Attorney General means to reflect in any way upon the integrity and honesty of his associates upon that board. The law under which the Canal Board has been acting in these matters is one which was designed to save the State unnecessary expense, and to arrive at compromises and settlements with the contractors whose work and profits were cut off by the stoppage of the work under the $9,000,000 act.

"As is perhaps not generally known, claims for large damages were filed, and the demands for payment were made, some of which were withheld because of alleged violation of the letter and the spirit of the law. There was no authority in the Court of Claims to pass upon all of these questions, and the Legislature passed an act which left the matter entirely in the hands of the Canal Board for adjudication.

"Mr. Cunneen objected to the award, but was the only one of the board who did so, the others, as I understand, voting for its payment, perhaps not entirely under the belief that his contentions were entirely erroneous, but that certain money was due for losses which had occurred by reason of the failure of the State to permit the contractor to continue his work. This is often done in business matters; it certainly was not improper for the Canal Board to view it from this standpoint, if they deemed it wise so to do. I take it that the Attorney General does not wish to be understood as making the claim that any State official is interested in the size of this award, or that it was done from personal or mercenary motives.

Board of Appraisers' Salaries.

"In reference to the Board of Appraisers provided by the last Legislature, in regard to the claim that I had fixed the salaries illegally, it is a matter which must concern the Controller, because he would be liable for the payment of funds, not authorized by the statute. I certainly thought that I acted within my authority, and this is the first intimation that I have ever had to the contrary.

"The fear which he expresses because of expenditure of over $6,000 a month for the necessary work of preparation, that it will endanger the success of the canal, can hardly be charged to me, if it were true.

"In the first place, a large portion of this expense was authorized of the people, at the polls, who directed me to appoint a board of competent engineers to supervise the work. This mandate I obeyed, and selected a board consisting of three Republicans and two Democrats to do the work. They have been industriously at work, and as a result of their deliberation they will probably save many millions of dollars in the prosecution of this work. The plans have all been approved by the Canal Board, and the work is ready for bidding within a short period.

"In reference to the appraisers, the justification for their appointment is found in the statement that it is the purpose to use the authority which is in them, without recourse to expensive court commission, with attended increase in expenses, and to secure for the people of the State the land which is necessary for this improvement. This expenditure of $25,000 a year is the only act which can be charged to me, and, as will be seen, forms a very small part of the total expenditures which are required for the canal purposes.

Tax Methods of the State.

"In reference to the stricture upon the tax methods of the State, I can only say that the difference between them and those passed heretofore by Democratic Administrations is that under careful, prudent, and honest administration the receipts have increased from about six million to nearly twenty-two million annually. With this result I am confident that the taxpayers of the State do not agree with the Attorney General's condemnation of indirect taxation.

"The Attorney General in his complaining tone as to the increase of appropriations for the State, which he knows must necessarily increase with each decade, fails to inform the people that under Democratic control the increase from 1884 to 1894 was over $5,000,000, so that when he says that the increase of population has nothing to do with the increase of expenses he must find some other reason for this great extravagance upon the part of the representatives of his party.

"If he were entirely fair he would know that during that period the general expenses of the Government increased over $3,000,000, and that the natural growth of schools provided for another million, which showed at least that there was justification for an increase even under a Democratic administration, and if he had pursued the investigations further, from 1894 to 1904, he would have found the same explanation in increased expenses for schools, insane, good roads, better health conditions, and the thousand and one items which are all in the direction of the welfare of the people, and for the development of the resources of our State.

Money Saved to the State.

"It may not be a matter of knowledge to the people of this State when these indiscriminate charges are being made that by my official vetoes during the four years of my administration over $6,000,000 of the people's money was kept in the Treasury, and that during the same time 736 bills, affecting local Governments and local and general laws, were also vetoed by me.

"So far as I know there has never been anything that made it necessary for me to direct the attention of the Attorney General to any man in the State service, because of charges of malfeasance or misfeasance in office. I have been fairly familiar with the administration of the various departments, and if I had found anything I would not have hesitated to call upon him for advice and assistance.

"The people of this State should not be misled by statements which lack substantial and specific direction. The charge that I am using my official position for the benefit of my party is as false as it is untrue. I am interested in the success of the Republican Party, because I believe in its principles, and the aid that can be given by me legitimately and without detriment to the interests of the State I purpose to furnish.

"The people of the State will find that there has been nothing that has occurred during the four years, during which they have entrusted me this great office, that can in any way reflect upon its honor and dignity."

DID NOT ASK FOR APPRAISERS.

Canal Association Thought Court of Claims Sufficed.

Henry B. Hebert, Chairman of the Greater New York Canal Association, when seen yesterday about the charges which Attorney General Cunneen made against the Odell administration in connection with the canal work, said:

"I do not desire to pass judgment upon the charges until I have seen what defense Gov. Odell has to make. It is quite possible that Mr. Cunneen was mistaken. If, as he alleges, it be true that $18,618 was allowed the Furnaceville Iron Company for excavating rock where there was no rock, that would be a grave matter.

"With respect to the charges which Mr. Cunneen brings in connection with the appointment of three canal appraisers and a secretary at salaries which he regards as exorbitant and which he says have been paid out of the Treasury for several months although not a single canal contract has yet been let, all I have to say is that in the bill which was sent to Albany by the Canal Association no provision was made for these appraisers. The opinion of the association was that the Court of Claims could attend to the appraisement. The Legislature in its wisdom, however, thought otherwise, and the positions were created."

It was said last night in Democratic circles that Henry A. Van Alstyne, who is now the State Engineer and the Republican candidate for re-election, was at the time the Furnaceville Iron Company's claim was pressed in the employ of E. H. Harriman, who owns and controls that company, and that it was he who urged the payment of the claim for the company.

The Secretary of the Canal Board of Appraisers is George R. Manchester, former Secretary of the Republican County Committee, from which position he was ousted to make room for Armitage Mathews, a protégé of Col. Abe Gruber, the Republican leader of the Twenty-first District, who helped Gov. Odell wrest the local organization from the control of Senator Platt. It is now reported that he is one of the men Gov. Odell has picked out to act as a deputy leader in one of the districts where the loyalty of the leader to the Governor-Chairman is under suspicion.

CITES INSTANCES OF "GRAFT."

Deputy Attorney General Church Attacks Odell Administration.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Deputy Attorney General Sanford T. Church, before the Albany Democratic Lawyers' Club, to-night talked on State issues. He said, in part:

"My time has been limited, and so I have not been able to go over the entire record of the Republican Party. I have, however, secured the grafters' gazette, otherwise known as the session laws of 1904, and will give you a few samples of the way in which the great moral party, which still poses as the party of Lincoln, takes care of its own.

"Chapter 9 was an act to relieve indigent but influential Republican editors—the publication of the notices of submission of the canal proposition was made in a number of newspapers all over the State, and the sum of $104,000 was appropriated by this act for the purpose of fully paying therefor.

"Chapter 14 recognized the exigencies of a Presidential campaign, and although never in the history of the State had a division Superintendent on the canals of the State been allowed to draw more than $5,000 at a time, this act allowed him to draw $20,000 at a time, to be subsequently accounted for.

"Chapter 16 was a very nice little scheme which I have no doubt originated in the brain of the Chairman of the Republican State Committee rather than that of the Governor. Under the statute as it existed prior to 1904 Judges of the Court of Claims were appointed for a term of six years by the Governor, but when a vacancy occurred, the length of the term of a person appointed to fill the vacancy was the unexpired portion of his predecessor's term. Judge Saxton died. There was his successor to be appointed. The act was passed giving the Governor power to fill the vacancy for the full term of six years. Judge Swift, whose term would have expired the next year, read 'the handwriting on the wall,' and accordingly resigned his office in order that the Chairman-Governor might have the opportunity of appointing Swift to succeed Swift for the full term of six years, and that gentleman availed himself of his opportunity."

CUNNEEN CONTINUES ATTACK.

Makes Statement About a Deal in Highway Manuals.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Attorney General Cunneen made public this afternoon another statement of similar tenor to that which he published yesterday in reply to Gov. Odell's challenge and charges. This time he confines himself to a single instance, of which he says: "The history of this enterprise affords another and an excellent illustration of the process of 'Perversion of public funds' under the color of law."

"This morning," he begins, "I have several letters from town officers and others stating that a large number of highway manuals are being distributed to highway and town officers in this State, which have not been ordered, and asking me by what authority it is being done, and who is expected to pay for the books."

Mr. Cunneen then goes on to say that this distribution of manuals is the result of Senate Bill Int. No. 521, introduced by Senator Raines, concerning which he gave an opinion that it was unconstitutional in that it infringed upon the right of self-government in towns. He states that after the bill became a law Charles H. Betts of Lyon was designated by the Secretary of State to compile these highway manuals.

CANNON ATTACKS PARKER.

Accuses Him of Perverting McKinley's Buffalo Speech.

NORFOLK, Sept. 28.—Speaker Joseph G. Cannon finished a busy day in Nebraska with an address at Norfolk last night. He took for his subject the part of Judge Parker's letter of acceptance referring to reciprocity, and charged the Judge with deliberately cutting out the protection point made by President McKinley in his Buffalo speech.

Mr. Cannon expressed a hope that New York had "no more great jurists who would deliberately pervert the language of a dead man to misrepresent what he said when living."

BEVERIDGE ASSAILS PARKER.

Says Candidate Was Silent in '96, but Voted for Free Silver.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 28.—The first Republican meeting of the campaign at Indianapolis was held in Tomlinson Hall to-night. Congressman Overstreet presided, and Senator Albert J. Beveridge delivered a speech in which he said:

"Eighteen ninety-six was no more a time for silence and hiding than 1861 was a time for cowardice and evasion. It was not only a political struggle, but on both sides it was a moral struggle. Yet at this hour, when men were destroying their political future for principle's sake; when brother turned against brother rather than forsake convictions, and even families were divided—at this supreme moral hour in the history of the American people, equaled in its fervor and purity only by that other moral awakening that ranged brother against brother on battlefields forty years ago—in this hour, made heroic by devotion to beliefs on both sides, Alton B. Parker was silent, but he voted for free silver.

"Is that the kind of a man in whom Gold Democrats can now find the leader of a cause? Is that the kind of a man in whom Silver Democrats can now find the leader of a cause?"

On the Philippines Senator Beveridge said:

"The opposition candidate admits that we cannot leave the Philippines now, even if it were desirable; admits that we cannot leave them until they are able to stand alone. Mr. Parker admits that we cannot leave them now, but if we cannot leave them now, why promise what we will do after a while? It is as bad for a nation to mortgage its future as it is for a man to mortgage his farm. Our children will be as wise and righteous as we are—and they will know more. Why not trust the future to them?

"Evading all issues except those which they declare are settled, the opposition are making Theodore Roosevelt the issue. We will save them the trouble—we ourselves will make Theodore Roosevelt an issue. And on that issue we do not defend—we attack."

PROBING PRIMARY FRAUDS.

Atlantic County Grand Jury Indicts Ten Jerseymen.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., Sept. 28.—The Atlantic County Grand Jury returned this morning ten true bills of indictment and made a presentment touching upon gross irregularities alleged to have been practiced at the primary elections in Atlantic County recently.

Those against whom indictments were found as a result of the election probing are as follows: Robert M. Johnson, Harry Johnson, Russel Negley, Stanley M. Johnson, William F. Turner, all accused of unlawful action; John Cooney, charged with false swearing and unlawful procuring a person to vote; Joseph Shorts, charged with false swearing and illegal voting; Charles Winkle, accused of illegal voting.

The jury adjourned until Nov. 15 in order that it may hear additional evidence of fraudulent registration or fraudulent practices at the coming election.

The presentment says, in part:

"We find that great disorder occurred in almost all of the polling houses, and that in a number of them this disorder was so great that it was practically impossible to conduct a proper election. The doors were blocked up and the polling place inside the rail was crowded by voters. We attribute this condition, first, to the law requiring registration and election to be conducted at the same time and by the same officers, and, second, to the precincts in Atlantic City being larger than can be properly handled."

OLD FRIENDS MEET IN ZOO.

Commander Young Finds Cuban Chums in Washington—Great Snakes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Commander Lucien Young of the navy was surprised and delighted to-day while looking about the National Zoo to meet two old friends who for a time were members of his household while he was on duty at Havana during the provisional occupation of the island. Although several years had passed since their separation the old friends instantly recognized each other, and mutual greetings were pleasantly exchanged.

The two Cubans belong to one of the oldest families in the island, and have always moved in the most exclusive society both at home and in Washington. They are, as Commander Young explains, two of the finest specimens of the constrictor species of snakes that are to be found in Cuba. While he was Captain of the Port of Havana he used a part of the spacious court belonging to his residence for a small collection of interesting birds and animals from various parts of the island. Among them was a pair of huge constrictors, the male being 14½ feet long and 8 inches through at the largest part. The female is a foot shorter than her spouse and slightly more slender.

The two spend most of their time in sleep, but every two weeks wake up for dinner and are fed on live rats, rabbits, and similar delicacies.

BLACK TO STAY ON TAX BOARD.

No Meeting Till After Election Is Jersey Candidate's Reason.

The Equal Taxation Commission appointed by Gov. Murphy of New Jersey met in Jersey City yesterday, and after a brief consultation adjourned until Nov. 15. Charles C. Black, the Democratic candidate for Governor, who is a member of the commission, was asked as to the truth of the report that he intended to resign.

"I can see nothing embarrassing in my position," said Mr. Black, "and as the suggestion that I should resign came from the enemy I think it may wisely be disregarded. There will be no meeting until after the election, and that will leave me free to make my fight for the principle of equal taxation untrammeled."

Say Republicans Cannot Hope for More Than 75,000 Above the Harlem and City Will Overcome This.

Gov. Odell remained in Newburg yesterday devoting the time he had left after preparing his answer to the charges of Attorney General Cunneen to going over the final estimates of Republican majorities based upon the canvass which has been made in the counties north of the Harlem River. From a source close to the Governor it was learned late last night that his estimates showed a majority for Roosevelt above the Harlem of 150,000. Allowing for a Democratic majority of 75,000 in Greater New York, the Governor-Chairman has figured it out that Roosevelt will carry the State by 75,000, and that majority he is said to believe will insure the election of Frank Wayland Higgins, the Republican candidate for Governor, by between 20,000 and 25,000.

Just how much reliance is to be placed in the Governor-Chairman's claims is indicated by a statement which was made last night by Senator Stevens of Attica, a close friend of Lieut. Gov. Higgins. Senator Stevens, while optimistic about the outcome in the State, placed the Republican majority above the Harlem at 110,000. That was his figure for the Roosevelt majority, but he said that he thought Lieut. Gov. Higgins would run well up to Mr. Roosevelt in the up-State. Senator Stevens said he believed the majority in Greater New York for Herrick and Harrison would not be above 80,000, and his expectation is, he said, that Higgins will have a majority in the State of about 25,000.

There is no doubt that Odell and his lieutenants are basing all their hopes of success upon the efficacy of the work to be done by the organization they have formed the past four years. It is their claim that there has never been a more perfect political organization in the history of the State. The claim is made for it that it is as effective in the State as Tammany is in the city. The canvass which Gov. Odell has had made of the State is asserted to be the most thorough ever attempted by a political organization and to have cost more money than probably ever has been expended in such work by any political organization in the United States. The Governor-Chairman has a force of nearly 200 clerks engaged at Newburg in compiling the results of the canvass. The building in which the work is being done is said to present a scene of activity far exceeding that at the headquarters of either of the two National Committees. It was his idea to have it done at Newburg in order that it might not attract too much attention.

In Democratic circles the Odell figures are a subject of ridicule. It is said by the Democratic leaders that the majority he predicts up State is impossible. In the first place, they say the independents and Platt Republicans are being alienated by the score through the revelations being made about the Odell administration and the Governor's action in devoting all of his time to partisan campaign work while still retaining the office of Chief Executive.

Furthermore they say that the Republican estimates include all of the floating vote, which is said to amount to at least 200,000. The Republicans have had all of this vote in the past few years largely because of the fact that the Democrats had no money to run their campaigns. It is the belief of the Democratic managers that at the very least calculation they will be able to take away 25 per cent. of the floating vote from the Republicans this year, and that on that basis they are unable to figure a greater Republican majority than 75,000 north of the Harlem. They do not believe that it will reach that figure, but that is a liberal estimate, they say. They are confident that the majority for Parker and for Herrick in the city will more than offset the very best the Republicans can do in the up State.

The plan of Governor-Chairman Odell to appoint deputy leaders for nearly all of the Assembly districts of the city in order that he may have assurance that nothing that could be done will be left undone to keep down the Democratic majority is thought to indicate that he is getting desperate about the situation here. All attempt to conceal the scheme was abandoned yesterday when Executive Chairman Halpin acknowledged that deputy leaders were to be appointed by the State Committee to supervise the detail work in the various districts. Mr. Halpin was asked:

"Will the leaders appoint their own assistants?"

"No. They will be appointed by the State Committee very shortly."

Edward Lauterbach, in explaining why the deputy leaders were to be appointed, said that they would look after the registration and the getting out of the full Republican vote. Mr. Lauterbach disagreed with Mr. Halpin's statement that the State Committee would make all of the appointments, asserting that wherever a district leader desired to name his own associate he would have that privilege.

From authority it was learned yesterday that Gov. Odell would not resign either as Governor or as Chairman, it being regarded by the party leaders as too late for him to take such action without doing more harm than good to the Republican campaign.

PRESIDENT'S BUSY DAY.

Sees Armenian Bishops and French Workingmen—Other Visitors.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—This was one of the busiest days President Roosevelt has had for many weeks. Scores of visitors called at the White House, a great majority of them merely to pay their respects to Mr. Roosevelt.

Secretary Taft called with Major Gen. Corbin, and Secretary Hitchcock, Attorney General Moody, and Postmaster General Payne had brief conferences with the President on departmental matters. The President was introduced to Mons Monssen, the gunner of the battleship Missouri who, by flooding the vessel's forward magazine, prevented the total destruction of the ship and her crew at the time of the disaster which cost the lives of more than a score of the Missouri's crew. President Roosevelt warmly congratulated Monssen on his personal bravery.

Three dignitaries of the Armenian Church called on President Roosevelt to-day to pay their respects, and to present to him a memorial setting forth some phases of the Armenian question which have arisen in Turkey. The callers were Sahak Ayvadsin and H. Sarjian, Archbishops of the Armenian Church in Turkey, and Dr. Jean Loris Melikoff, a delegate to the Peace Conference which is to be held next month in Boston. They were presented to the President by James B. Reynolds of New York, who was Mayor Low's private secretary.

Twenty French workingmen, who are in this country to study labor and industrial conditions were presented to President Roosevelt to-day. An appointment had been made for them through the French Embassy. The delegation was headed by Albert Metin, professor of Political Economy in one of the Paris universities.

To Use New Mohawk River Channel.

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 28.—The Barge Canal Advisory Board to-day approved the recommendation of State Engineer Van Alstyne that so far as it is found practicable the new Mohawk River channel recently constructed by the City of Utica be utilized in building the barge canal. The State Engineer reported that the change would necessitate no great difficulties nor increase in cost.

RAYNER TO SPEAK HERE.

Maryland Senator-Elect Says No Issue Can Be Ignored.

Senator-elect Isidor Rayner of Maryland was a visitor at Democratic National Headquarters yesterday, and it was announced later that he would open his speaking tour next week in this city. He will then be heard up State with ex-Senator Hill, following this with runs into New Jersey and Connecticut. He will also speak once at Indianapolis, and probably at other Indiana points.

"I think every issue that is involved in this contest ought to be discussed on the stump," said Senator Rayner. "We cannot possibly surrender our position on the tariff even if we have not the power to enact any legislation upon the subject. If we surrender when we are out of power, why, then we will never obtain the power to put our policy into execution.

"A firm stand ought to be taken upon our foreign policy. While it may be true that we cannot immediately abandon the Philippine Islands to their fate, it must not be forgotten that we would never have had this problem to deal with at all if it had not been for the misguided and utterly unjustifiable policy of the Republican Party in reference to this subject.

"Upon the question of the Panama Canal we can well admit that the project is one of incalculable benefit to the country, but we ought never to condone the process through which this achievement was accomplished.

"We people in the Southern States propose to discuss the race question from a conservative standpoint. The South was solving this problem until the President undertook his disastrous policy, which is absolutely injurious to the interests of every Southern Commonwealth. We must also thoroughly analyze the character of the representative candidates. They are the antithesis of each other, and the people of this country ought to be made acquainted with every act that the President has committed in defiance of law and against the warrant of the Constitution."

NO HEADQUARTERS IN WEST.

Democrats Decide Question Definitely—Campaign Canards Denied.

After a conference at Democratic National Headquarters yesterday it was virtually decided not to establish a branch in the West.

"Unless something unforeseen occurs, which I do not now anticipate, there will be no Western headquarters," said Chairman Taggart. "I expect to spend some days in Indiana in October, but no headquarters of the National Committee will be established either in Indianapolis, French Lick Springs, or any other place."

Chairman Taggart said that a poll had been made in Indiana, the result of which was perfectly satisfactory to the Democratic campaign managers.

Vice Chairman Nicoll denied a report that the country had been divided into four sections, each of which had been placed in the charge of a different leader.

Chairman Taggart denied a report that ex-Senator Jones, who is acting in an advisory capacity to the committee, had given up his desk at headquarters and would not return.

"The story is without foundation and is a Republican lie, pure and simple," declared the Chairman.

Ex-Senator Jones has been away for a few days, but will return on Friday.

MURPHY AS A HARMONIZER.

Trying to Settle Democratic Row in Rensselaer.

After spending the day getting campaign work under way at Tammany Hall, Charles F. Murphy went to Democratic State Headquarters yesterday afternoon and took a hand at trying to straighten out the factional tangle in Rensselaer County. He had a long talk with ex-Senator Michael F. Collins of Troy, who is one of the leaders in the Hogan-Norton faction there, which, through Mayor Hogan, controls the present city government.

Opposed to this faction of the party is the Murphy-Conway faction, headed by ex-Senator Edward Murphy, Jr., with ex-Mayor Conway as a chief lieutenant. This second faction won at the August primaries and elected its delegats to the State Convention. Efforts are being made to bring the two factions together and Mr. Murphy last night let it be known that he thought he had accomplished much in that direction.

NIEMANN WINS NASSAU FIGHT.

Nominated for Judge Despite Opposition of Scudder and Brower.

MINEOLA, Sept. 28.—James P. Niemann, at present District Attorney of Nassau County, was nominated for County Judge by the Democratic County Convention this afternoon despite the efforts of Congressman Townsend Scudder, the county leader, and of Supervisor Brower of Hempstead, who represents Tammany in the county. John J. Graham, who for the last five years has been Mr. Niemann's assistant, was nominated to succeed him as District Attorney.

Congressman Scudder and Mr. Brower supported County Judge Seabury for renomination. The informal ballot was taken with the unit rule prevailing, and the vote stood 35 for Seabury and 32 for Niemann. Then followed the fight. Scudder and Brower sought to have the formal ballot taken with the unit rule prevailing but failed. Mr. Brower controlled twenty-one of the twenty-nine votes from Hempstead, and without the unit rule could not control enough to nominate Seabury. The vote was taken, and Niemann obtained 36 and Seaman 31.

HISS DEMOCRAT OFF PLATFORM

Powers of Maryland Criticised Roosevelt at Otsego County Fair.

Special to The New York Times.

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 28.—J. Harrison Powers, a Maryland Democrat, was scheduled to speak at the Otsego County Fair this afternoon, but he was driven from the platform by a concerted effort of the Republicans, who formed the major portion of his hearers.

Mr. Powers was invited by the management of the fair to make the address. When he began to criticise President Roosevelt's Administration hundreds began to hiss and hoot. Mr. Powers tried vainly to go on, but finally he was obliged to leave the platform amid the jeers of the crowd.

Surrogate Noble Renominated.

The Queens County Democratic Convention, held at Schuetzen Park, Long Island City, yesterday, unanimously renominated Daniel Noble, the present incumbent, for Surrogate.

Democrats Indorse Republican Judge.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 28.—The Democratic Convention for the Sixth Judicial District, which met in this city to-day, indorsed Justice Nathan L. Miller, who last week was nominated by the Republicans.

Special Sale of Exchanged

PIANOLAS

and PIANOS

An Important Opportunity Lasting Only A Few Days Longer

THE Fall sale now taking place in Aeolian Hall will end Saturday of this week. Notwithstanding the great success of this sale, and the large number of instruments purchased by eager and appreciative buyers, a few Pianolas are left in each of the following classes, some of them so close to being new that you would have to be an expert to distinguish them from instruments fresh from the factory.

LOT I	LOT II	LOT III
$15.00 down $7.00 per month	$20.00 down $8.00 per month	$20.00 down $10.00 per month

This sale presents the opportunity to make a substantial saving on the purchase of "The Standard Piano Player of the World." These Pianolas were all taken in exchange for Metrostyle Pianolas, and while they have been in use varying lengths of time, all have been thoroughly overhauled at our factory, put in perfect playing order, repolished, etc.

They are sold subject to the full guarantee given by the manufacturers with entirely new instruments.

Should you decide within three months that you would prefer a complete Metrostyle Pianola, the full value of your purchase will be allowed in exchange.

SPECIAL PIANO SALE

High Grade Pianos from Leading Makers Taken in EXCHANGE FOR THE PIANOLA PIANO

FOR the first time in the history of the piano business, pianos which were entirely satisfactory have been exchanged by their owners. These exchanges have been made for the Pianola Piano, "The First Complete Piano" (a perfect piano containing a Metrostyle Pianola within its case).

These exchanged pianos afford a splendid opportunity for those who wish to buy a piano but are not yet ready to purchase the Pianola Piano—the piano of the future.

Among the makers represented are:

Weber, Steinway, Chickering, Wheelock, Sohmer, Bradbury, etc.

Both Uprights and Grands are included, prices ranging from $130 upwards.

PENSION ORDER NEW LAW, REPUBLICANS ADMITTED

It Was During the Debate on the President's Action.

A TEST MADE BY DEMOCRATS

When They Offered to Amend an Appropriation Bill Their Foes Raised a Point of Order.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The discussion of the President's pension order No. 78 in the letters of acceptance of the two candidates for the Presidency, and the comments that have been made thereon in the press and on the stump, recalls the contention that arose in Congress over the order immediately following its issuance. In the present Congress a bill was introduced by Chairman Sulloway of the Pensions Committee of the House to grant pensions for age, which bill was substantially in the terms employed in Order 78.

When the bill was under consideration by the House, Mr. Moon of Tennessee offered an amendment the language of which was identical with that of the President's order. In support of this amendment it was urged that the action of the President was without the warrant of law, and to make the payment of pensions for age legal it was proposed to incorporate the order in the law. The Republicans contended and the Democrats denied that the order had the authority of law, yet when the Moon amendment was presented Mr. Hemenway, Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, raised the point that it was not admissible for the reason that it changed existing law. During the debate that followed Mr. Underwood of Alabama said:

"My colleague from Tennessee offers an amendment in the exact language of the President's order, word for word and letter for letter, following identically the wording of the President's order, and it hardly reaches the desk before the distinguished Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, who has reported this appropriation, raises the point of order that it cannot be carried on this bill because it is a change of existing law. Do you gentlemen of the Republican Party think that the President is more entitled to violate existing law than this House is? Are you going to vote to allow this appropriation of a million and a half of dollars to carry out an unlawful order of the President?"

Subsequently Mr. Williams of Mississippi said: "The gentleman from Indiana when this amendment was offered said that he would make the point of order on the ground that it is a change of existing law. Remember that the amendment is in the exact words of the Executive order, so that if the amendment is a change of existing law the Executive order is a change of existing law. Then the next moment the gentleman from Indiana said that he is opposed to the amendment because it is merely a re-declaration of existing law, and therefore unnecessary, and a game that is played for political effect. Let the gentleman reconcile himself to himself. This very order carries within itself the answer to what the gentleman has said."

Mr. Moon appealed to Mr. Hemenway to withdraw the point of order, which that gentleman declined to do. The Chair sustained the point, and the amendment was ruled out.

NEGROES DRIVEN FROM TOWN.

Colored Woman Had Stabbed a Kentucky Farmer's Wife.

HARRODSBURG, Ky., Sept. 28.—Eighty negroes, thirty of them women, have arrived here from South Fork, which place they were ordered by the whites to leave because one of the negroes stabbed a farmer's wife. It is reported that the white woman is dead.

The negro men were working on a railroad near South Fork. One of the women at the railroad camp went to a farmhouse and demanded a luncheon. This was given to her, and while the hostess's back was turned the negro woman snatched some clothes and ran away. The farmer's wife pursued and caught her, but was stabbed by the negress.

The news of the affair spread rapidly and in a short time a posse of 200 white men had driven all the negroes from the vicinity. The refugees will not be permitted to remain in Harrodsburg.

INCREASE IN INSURANCE TAX.

Cook County Will Levy on Foreign Companies' Gross Receipts.

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—The gross receipts of all foreign insurance companies doing business in Cook County will be subject to taxation, according to a decision rendered here to-day by Judge Kavanagh in the Superior Court. The suit was brought by the National Fire Insurance Company of Hartford, Conn., against Collector Hanberg to restrain him from the collection of taxes upon the gross receipts, as assessed by the Board of Review. The decision will affect 800 companies, and will increase the revenue of the county $300,000 to $400,000 annually.

In rendering his decision Judge Kavanagh said: "The question involved is: What was the intention of the Legislature when the statute governing the taxation of the receipts of the insurance companies was enacted? It was not intended that the fire losses should be deducted from the receipts and the taxation placed upon those so-called receipts."

The new Fall hats trimmed with marabou feathers are the smartest conceptions.

NEW YORK, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1904.

☞ Visit our Restaurant on the 8th Floor. A dainty, inexpensive mid-day lunch.

ONCE there was a timid young man who was transported to the seventh Heaven of delight because of the marked attention of a pretty Summer girl.

They were walking along the beach one day when he noticed that there was a man following them.

"Who's that man watching us?" nervously inquired the T. Y. M.

"Oh," replied the P. S. G., "he's a jeweler, deals in engagement rings. He pays me a commission right through the season."

So the T. Y. M. realized that her attentions were prompted by the anticipation of a possible pecuniary reward.

There are many stores that treat their patrons with a great deal of courtesy when they expect to gain by it.

We have a different method. We instruct our clerks to the effect that no matter whether a customer has a disposition to buy or not they must treat them with all the courtesy due every person or patron that enters this store, and that they should endeavor to leave the impression that "it's no trouble to show goods."

You are privileged to come here at any time and look at will at anything you desire whether you care to purchase or not, and we'll thank you for it.

This is your store to come and go at will, and your patronage is not measured by the amount of your purchases, but by the satisfaction and pleasure you feel while in the store.

FASHION'S MIRROR

Brass buttons in all sizes will glitter on dress waists and coats of this fall.

Military effects are the rage, as opposed to the continued broad shoulder lines.

Cerise pink has come into favor with rich, deep American beauty shades of red.

Belted backs characterize the newest rain coats. Patch pockets set on the hips and high on the bust are vagaries of fashion.

White opera coats with onion and burnt orange reliefs are admired by up-to-date taste.

Black spangled gowns will be seen in profusion. Bands and all overs of figured lace furnish the garniture.

The mousquetaire glove is introduced again.

Gloves for the street are fashioned on the lines of those worn by men. For dress occasions pearl and chalk white kid with two clasps and three and four buttons are seen.

White lisle stockings with insets of lace extending above the ankles are for the white slipper or oxford.

A pretty sleeve for the street gown is shirred to form a puff over a straight cuff.

Fashions in footgear

THE established hold of the short dress skirt, revealing as it does the foot, has forced womankind to pay particular attention to the shoe, for shabby footgear carries its own damaging atmosphere.

The extraordinary use of Oxfords (during the past season) has caused a decided change in the Fall models. The mannish shoe has disappeared and (in its stead) we have the high-arch, flat forepart, drop-toe designs, which (while being equally comfortable.)

give a character to the foot not heretofore obtainable. The Cuban heel has no rival, varying in height from 1⅜ to 1⅞ inches. Demi-glace calfskin (a black tannage) of Russia leather is one of the most popular and practical materials for walking boots.

Shiny leathers, in kid and coltskin, prevail for dress purposes. A revival of plain toe effects (meets the approval.) of good dressers, and an appreciable demand for button boots exists. Second floor.

Over forty new Fall models of our celebrated S. C. S. shoes are being shown. Conspicuous among them is a Chrome Tanned Box Calf Lace Boot (with cork filled double) sole, a Chrome Wax Calf Lace and Button Boot, for walking, and an Ideal Kid Lace and Button Boot, with slight extension edges, for dress purposes.

The Calfskin Boots are slightly (lower in height) and are decidedly swagger for walking costumes. The uniform price of $3.50 prevails.

The faultless tailor suit.

FEMININE attention is being directed just now to correct attire for the street, (and in this classification) numerous new features are remarked. It all depends on the purpose of the suit just what material is appropriate. For the knockabout and "trotter," English mixtures (and rain-proof cloths.....) are good form, and are obtainable in all colors.

The coats are semi-fitted in Directoire style with new sleeves and revers, facings of plaid, and the skirt (which well escapes the ground.....) is both plaited and gored according to individual taste. Broadcloth and zibeline are utilized (for the more pretentious..) street suits, and show the attractiveness of the "Peplum" coat suits, with fancy vestees introduced.

Tourist coats (characterize..... some inexpensive) models in quiet English mixtures, are highly popular for traveling and general business wear. Scotch plaid is the neat make-up of a natty Norfolk model with velvet facings. The postilion back (distinguishes..... the more elaborate) conceptions, and the new 26-inch military coat is seen in chic velvet, or cloth constructions.

Speaking of the velvet suit, it's the leader for Autumn and Winter. We've a tempting design in both corduroy and plain velvet, in chic military effects. Third floor.

The Louis XIV. coat is a favorite in broadcloth with box plaited skirt. Paddock coats, Havelocks, Inverness, frock coats, ripple back, new tunic and French blouse complete the summary.

$12.50 for $18.75 covert coat—42 in. long—double breasted effect—two plaits front and back—with belt—plaited sleeve—turnover cuff—neaty stitched.

Nobby tailored suits—new arrivals this week, embracing entirely new styles in all the new brown shades—popular prices—

$22.50, $27.50, $35.00, $45.00.

$5 for $7.50 walking skirts—in many new novelty materials and styles—most exceptional value in New York.

Storm coats—the demand for these popular garments increasing—our assortments becoming more varied in our effort to produce the most wonderful garments at these prices—

$10, $14.75, $16.75, $18.75.

New woodland tints in woman's gloves.

THE decision of the elite (as to proper cuts and styles) in gloves has been given out, and more than ever before in traditional glove history will mannish pique designs be cleverly imitated, (with Prix or P. X. N. seam finger finish,....) contrasting or two-toned bandelets, and large single pearl button fastenings.

The spear point and silk stitching give pleasing variety for decorations on the back of the hand, (and in all of their captivating) Autumnal splendor the russet hues of nature are minutely copied in the New Woodland tints which are positively exclusive with Simpson Crawford Co. Advanced ideas are also expressed in a special consignment from the celebrated makers of Europe, in a glove of the Suede finish, in neat three-clasp style. These will be strong rivals of the odorous pique and glace (for street service,) being a recent caprice from abroad.

Obtainable in all colors, our glove collection defies criticism, (and suggestions for your purchases) can merely be intimated from this comprehensive list.

Imperial points give character to some handsome real kid gloves, (with three clasp,) and the glaces for street show identical features.

Mousquetaire gloves (in white with wrist facings) of contrasting pastel colors owe their raison d'etre to the Jersey Lily, Mrs. Langtry, and are pretty adjuncts of the afternoon toilette.

From the 79c, glove up, the fit is faultless, (and our guarantee not to split or tear) in the first trying-on process is important to you. Main floor.

Women's 1-clasp P. X. M. cape gloves—in the new wool-lined tints, at..... $1

Women's 3-clasp genuine kid gloves—Imperial points— Black and white—including a superb collection of dainty, seasonable tints, at $1.50

Stylish fabrics for shirt waists and sacques.

MANY women who do not favorably regard woolen materials for shirt waists, will consider none other than washable fabrics, (and since laundering properties.....) are primary items, such materials as will neither shrink nor fade readily (commend themselves) for the purpose. There are happy selections for both tailored and plain waists, and kimonos, and the advanced patterns are of plain grounds with but slight color introduced. Cross-bars (Scotch effects) form a unique marking of a momie weave with a soft finish. There's another (in basket weave...) in the fashionable Persian effects.

Narrow pompadour stripes are new and (broken plaids) have sprung into exclusive usage. There are some chic designs in champagne and red.

Persian effects (for kimonos.....) as well as shirt waists. Brown mottled, with cloth finish, is appropriate for house dresses (where cleanliness is.....) a factor. There's a host of substantial solid colorings, glistening like silk, in all of the fashionable tints of the season, and the inevitable polka-dotted varies their monotony. Fabrics that are exclusively Simpson Crawford Co.'s. Second floor.

SCOTCH FLANNELS, 28 IN.—ALL THE new Fall designs; also plain shades; extra good quality; yd., 25c.

IMPORTED SAXONY FLANNEL WAISTING; 28 in. wide; in those handsome plaid effects; yd., 58c.

SCOTCH FLANNEL WAISTING, 28 IN. wide; in plain shades, with embroidered dot effect; yd., 39c.

GREAT SHOWING OF FRENCH AND GERman flannel waisting; all the new Fall novelties; many exclusive designs; yd., 75c.

Chic conceits in the Fall hat trimmings.

PERHAPS the newest novelty for hat trimmings (in imitation of the..... fashionable feather turban) is the Snake effect in English pheasant breasts. These long bands are not unsuggestive of the natural markings of a reptile and are shaded in all colors

Tails of the paradise bird's graceful feathers are added to many decorative birds, (the snipe pretty..) utilizing them for chic hat trimming. The coque breasts will be prominently displayed on jaunty street hats. The half breast (or pompon) is another incident in this line.

Tipped with white (and bright colors.....) are many breasts and a novelty is the Magpie, (not in black and white as would be imagined.) but in contrasts such as coral and dark mahogany, (light green and coque rocho) with brown, etc., for coronets and hat collars.

Indian Squaw is the distinction given a bristling feather ruff (or collar in shaded effect) for the hat crown. A Sunflower (in coque feathers) may be classed as a pompon.

Coque feathers assume many shapes and are for practicable service, the Roman effect being copied from the identical ostrich plume form.

The Hackle plume comes in all colors, (and is rare because of its limited source....) the plumage being plucked from a small place on the bird's breast. These are commended for the utility hat, as they are impervious to rain and moisture. Main floor.

A coronet of birds' heads is chic for a conventionally shaped crown. Dwarf ostrich feathers in clumps of three are for the same purpose.

What modish modistes will use in linings.

ANY approach to silk in a lining for waists and skirts is gladly welcomed by those who (are compelled to regard economy) and the minimizing of expenses.

An incomparable silk lining (that has the desired lustre) is Bombyx, and its low pricing makes it possible for indiscriminate use for coats, jackets, skirts and slips for diaphanous materials. It has the advantage (over most linings...) in being warranted not to split or crack.

Taffetine (a mixture of silk and linen.) deserves its high standing in public estimation, because of its unrivalled wearing qualities. Such cognomens as Shadow Silk or Spun Glass are bestowed (elsewhere on the familiar) Mercerized Percaline, which is satisfactorily employed in coats and suits.

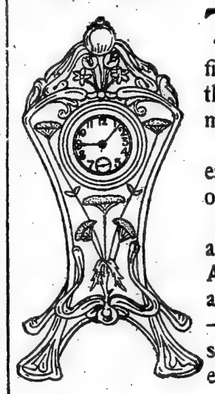
Skinner Satin is a fabric recommended for jackets in lieu of the expensive all silk satin fabrics. It is of high lustre, 27 inches in width, and there's a guarantee (that it will satisfactorily) wear for two years. Main floor.

If a silk rustle is desired in cheaper goods, Union Silk (commonly known as black percaline.) makes a judicious selection for its properties of endurance. Such inexpensive linings as Mohawk, Lustral, Sunshine and Farmer's Satin are everyday vernacular throughout the realm of up-to-date modistes.

Special to-day fast black percaline linings—both are 36 inches wide.

The 12½c lining at 8c.
The 25c lining at 15c.

A sale of gold clocks $2.95



TO-DAY we place on sale about 200 Ormolu Gold Clocks at $2.95. You'll find them priced elsewhere at about $5—they are just the thing for a boudoir or mantel den.

You'll at once recognize this as the newest and daintiest clock, as well as a thoroughly reliable timepiece. Main floor.

As a gift you could not conceive one more appropriate—they are so artistic and pretty. A fine gold plated (hand finished clock,) superior to any on the market for quality and durability—never before was such a value (as this sold...) for such a low price—we have a limited number—and while they last $2.95

Special cut glass bowls, $2.25

CANNOT buy as good elsewhere for less than $3.95—just test the truth of this assertion—you'll never buy cut glass any place, but here if you do, for at all times our prices are positively the lowest quoted, and we emphasize this statement by submitting the following items for your consideration. Fourth floor.

CUT GLASS BOWLS—8 in.—rich deep cuttings—regular value $3.95—at $2.25.

CUT GLASS NAPPIES—regular price $2—at $1.35.

CUT GLASS WATER BOTTLES—regular price $5—at $2.95.

Special offering of flannelette underskirts

WISH we could offer you such flannelette underskirts as these later in the season—but it's only a rare trade chance that puts such skirts in our hands at an unusually low price that makes such a sale as this possible. Second floor.

39c AND 58c FOR FLANNELETTE UNDERskirts—best quality—all cut full sizes—made with extra full ruffle—another style with full ruffle finished with scalloped edge—all dainty stripe effects.

98c FOR FLANNELETTE GOWNS—SEVeral of the best styles—made of the best quality—all full widths and lengths—turn down collar, trimmed with scalloped or with torchon lace.

75c AND 98c FOR FLANNELETTE AND Scotch flannel underskirts—best quality—made with full ruffles finished with scalloped edge—others with embroidered edge—also Van Dyke effects—trimmed with torchon lace.

$1.50 AND $1.75 FOR FLANNELETTE AND Scotch flannel gowns—in regular and extra large sizes—plain and striped effects—best quality—all full sizes and widths.

Another opportunity to-day. $10 for $25 sample lace robes.

THAT great Monday sale of robes went so far ahead of our expectations that we hastened to the importer's and secured 500 more to sell to-day at the same extraordinary prices:

$10 for $20 to $35 lace robes.
$18 for $35 to $40 lace robes.
$24 for $50 to $75 lace robes.
$37 for $75 to $100 lace robes.

You see they're going to be more in demand this year than last, when we broke all previous selling records for New York. Main floor.

Smart dressers are well aware of that fact, and they're coming in crowds to select them now and have them ready for the occasions that require them.

You'll want one after awhile, too, and if you have'nt taken advantage of this remarkable offering it will be just your luck (or rather your ill luck.....) to find you'll have to pay fully twice as much as a selection would involve to-day.

Hand made lace robes, Black lace robes, Opalescent spangle robes, Crepe de Chine robes, White lace robes, Evening wear robes, Snowball net lace robes, Reception wear robes, Lierre lace robes, Iridescent spangle robes, Silver spangle robes, Robes for the opera, Black spangle robes. Princess lace robes, Brussels lace robes, Silk corded Marquise robes, Munosa lace robes, Ecru lace robes.

The entire showroom collection of three of the leading importers of fine Paris robes and the road samples of four domestic manufacturers; all in all this will be the greatest sale of its kind ever held in New York. We have many feeble imitations of these wonderful sales—but past experiences have taught all to watch and wait for this semi-annual event here.

Think of buying $25 and $35 hand run Marquise Lace Robes at $10—$75 hand made lace and Crepe de Chine Robes at $24—$50 imported exclusive Spangled Robes $18.

Black hosiery sale continues.

WE bought at a very marked sacrifice (on the part of the importers.) 1,200 dozen pairs of high quality black hosiery, which we continue to offer to-day at the stirring prices of last Monday, when our hosiery department was filled. It was crowded because these prices (though ever so low.....) buy the very best grades of cotton and lisle threads—the very best Hermsdorf dye. Main floor.

18c 18c for cotton 25c hose—Women's medium Fall weight, full fashioned, regular made, two thread, Maco yarn, fast black, lustrous, pliable and elastic, double soles, heels and toes. 18c

25c FOR WOMEN'S 39c. LISLE hose—medium weight, fast black, Hermsdorf dye, plain lisle thread, fine gauge, imported, full elastic, fashioned, regular made—double soles, heels and toes.

25c FOR MISSES' 50c. CASHMERE hose—270 doz. misses' very fine quality, medium weight pure cashmere hose in the fine ribs—double knees, very elastic, gray heels and toes—full regular made—double soles—slight imperfections unnoticeable, which will not affect their wear.

35c FOR WOMEN'S 50c. HOSE—or 3 for $1—Hermsdorf dye, imported fast black, sheer lace lisle thread hose—full length designs or boot patterns.

59c FOR $1 SILK HOSE—THESE are a very great bargain—though they are not pure silk they have a fine lustrous black color—medium weight, drop stitches.

19c FOR MEN'S 25c. SOCKS—fast black Hermsdorf dye, imported, regular made, medium weight cotton hose—double soles, heels and toes.

About 500 more of those $5 to $10 silk umbrellas at $3.95

SEVEN HUNDRED particular men and women (yes—more than that.) vowed they'd found the greatest umbrella value of their lifetime Monday, when we placed on sale at $3.95 each 1,263 splendid rainsticks that have handles worth alone $5 to $10. Just about 500 remaining—an equally handsome and desirable gathering—for your choosing to-day at the same special sale price—$3.95.

$5 to $10 UMBRELLAS, $3.95

But you can't judge an umbrella by the handle? No, that's very true, but look at the silk coverings—the Paragon frames—the rods—compare them with the best to be found in the swell jewelry shops, and see that they are of the same high quality—absolutely the best the world produces, but not priced at $12 and $15—only the humble little mark—$3.95. Main floor.

For women—the 26-inch umbrella; for men—the 28-inch umbrella. Made in the best possible manner—steel rods. Parasol frames, cases to match silks and sterling silver swedges. Main floor.

All pinned, buffed and corded in every way right. Silks are so good that we guarantee them against cutting for one year. The handles are truly beautiful, in many instances works of art—hand carved ivories in hundreds of different grotesque designs. Long ivories, mounted with solid silver and gold; mother of pearl, mounted in silver and gold; gun metal, tortoise shell and other rare and exquisite styles. What a chance to effect a great saving on some of the holiday wants.

Men's Autumn suits at $12.50

THERE'S one thing we claim for our clothing above everything else, (and that's style.....) and exclusiveness. When we select our clothing (we have in mind.) the fact that the prime requisite is to choose such garments (as willfully maintain...) our reputation of selling the best ready-to-wear clothing in America.

If you've ever been a patron of this store (you know this.....) to be a fact. If you have not, we're going to offer you a (special buying) incentive to-day.

750 men's Autumn suits—Cannot duplicate them elsewhere for less than $20—especially built for business or (dress wear)—suits that are made to please (those who have.....) been in the habit of having their clothing made to order—every garment is hand made.

Autumn suits in the new smooth surface—silk mixtures—smart cheviots and tweeds—sizes range from 34 to 46 chest—double or single breasted models—$12.50.

These suits will be (practically made to...) your measure, as we do not allow a suit to leave this store unless it fits perfectly—we do all alterations necessary to insure a perfect fit. Second floor.

EXHIBITION DAYS

Yesterday, fashionable New York came to WANAMAKER'S, and spent a day of apparently thorough enjoyment. The exhibition of Paris Gowns was the chief center of interest; thousands of women and hundreds of men came to see these wonderful dresses.

The collection is one of the finest and choicest we have ever presented. Greater care than ever before was applied to the securing of gowns of the first class.

The collection, while extremely large, includes nothing that is not a representative gown, displaying the highest art of the designer. Competent critics have proclaimed some of these dresses the finest examples of the dressmaking art produced in many years.

Here are brief descriptions of a few of these notable gowns:

The Chrysanthemum Gown has a garniture of these flowers, in the most wonderful of amber and topaz tints echoing the color-scheme of the material of the gown, which is secured by a succession of underlying layers of vari-colored chiffon, such as green, violet, turquoise, and over all a shade of deepest plum. The depth of coloring gives the impression of looking into a lake of multi-colored waters, on which the chrysanthemum flowers are afloat. The stems and leaves of the flowers are simulated by shaded spangles. The bodice is decollete, with touches of white lace among the flowers. The designer of this gorgeous gown is DOEUILLET.

The Directoire Gown is another example of intense art in color schemes. The decollete bodice and train are of the picture shading of bronze pink, over a petticoat of creamy lace. The floral decoration of roses on flounce, skirt and bodice combines the most artistic shades, varying pinks, all the way from lightest tints to bronze, with blue effects interwoven. A marvelous effect of cording composes the graceful drape of the new high sleeves. This effect is again prominent, falling from the waist of the Directoire train, which gives a suggestion of draping. This dress is by BEER.

One of the very effective tailor-made dresses, from the Vienna Club, is composed of white squirrel and broadcloth. It is a three-piece dress, having a waist of most exquisite Bulgarian embroidery on linen material. The coat is entirely composed of the squirrel, and is made in box effect coming slightly below the waist. Suggestions of embroidery are on the straps of blue velvet at neck, sleeves, pockets and waist-strap. The skirt is of ground length, and is made in triple flounce effect, combining the broadcloth and squirrel.

The French Dressmaking Salons, on the Fifth floor, hold another very fine group of model gowns, selected personally by Monsieur Dumas-King.

This collection is distinctly different from the display on the Second floor, and will add another point of interest for the student of fashions to visit at WANAMAKER'S this week.

The Rotunda on the Main floor is resplendent with the new Dress Goods. The novelties from Paris form the most conspicuous group, while fabrics of American manufacture are no less interesting to women who have Fall and Winter gowns in prospect.

The new Laces, Neckwear and Veilings attract almost as much interest as the gowns. There is so much of the original and artistic in these collections, that women are scarcely able to see enough of them. The WANAMAKER collections are unusually large and exclusive in variety.

Silk Waists That Charm

The general effect of the new Silk Waists is one of simplicity. That's expected in the severely plain tailored silk waists that one wears with a walking suit; but it is even more noticeable in the light waists, of mousseline, crepe de Chine and lace.

Many of the waists owe their attractiveness to the inspiration of foreign models; while others are American in every line—each sort will claim its admirers.

Prices range from $5 to $34—ranging from tailor-made waists of taffeta, to the fine models, of which, in many cases, there is but a single specimen.

We have arranged special space for this showing of Waists. The Silk Waists, as well as those of other Fall materials, are grouped in a splendid collection just outside the Little French Store—which offers, on its own part, superb choosing for women who prefer Paris Blouses.

Then here's a special offering that ought to go out like a flash:

Lace Waists at $6

Handsomely made of Oriental lace over China silk lining. They will wash perfectly. In cream, trimmed with Venise lace insertion and medallions, or in white, with yoke effect of shirred taffeta ribbon, in white, pink or light blue. New sleeves; buttoned in back.

Most unusual value at the price—$6. Second floor, Tenth street.

PRETTY DRESSES For Children

These are the attractive little Wash Dresses, of fine lawn and pique, for children's housewear in winter. All are spick and span, in pretty styles—and a variety of them—and priced in way that means a distinct saving on every dress in the collection.

At 50c to $1—Dresses of fine lawn; French waists, with plain or hemstitched plaited body; skirt with deep plain hem; others with hemstitched plaited yoke and skirt, with ruffle around yoke; finished with pearl buttons. Or Russian effect, with large sailor collar. Sizes for 2 to 5 years.

At $1.25 to $3.25—Dresses of fine lawn, in a large variety of styles. Trimming of embroidery or lace insertions and edgings. Sizes for 2 to 5 years.

At $1.75 to $5—A complete new line of Pique Russian Dresses, with or without trousers; plain tailored effects or embroidery-trimmed. Sizes for 1 to 4 years. Second floor, Fourth ave.

WALKING SKIRTS For Girls

Deft tailors have been at work on these Skirts—that's evident. Full of style, and swing, in the best of the various Autumn fashions—and plenty of different models and prices to choose from. Lengths are 36 to 40 inches.

These are some of the styles:

At $5—Walking Skirts in stylish mixtures; well cut and tailored and trimmed with straps and buttons.

At $7.50—Full side-plaited Skirts of navy blue and black cheviot serge.

At $9.75—Plaited Skirts of mannish mixtures, in navy blue, brown and Oxford mixtures, trimmed with buttons.

At $12—Box-plaited Skirts of handsome black Panama cloth; beautifully tailored. Second floor, Ninth st.

YOU WANT A PIANO?

Perhaps your wife or boy or girl wants it—the natural artistic craving for music, which no husband or parent would wish to fail to gratify.

Two reasons may have caused you to delay the purchase:

1. Assurance as to artistic qualities.
2. Ways and means.

As to the first, the Wanamaker Piano Store has built up its reputation by the assured excellence of all the instruments sold. Not alone in that the Chickering stands as the paragon of artistic musical perfection, but that the Vose, the Emerson, the Merrill, the Gramer, the Kurtzmann, the J. C. Campbell, and the Frederick Doll provide a range of Pianos in which each instrument is above criticism in its class. No matter how low the price, you are absolutely positive that in the Wanamaker Piano Store, there is sold none but an instrument you may be proud to own. At WANAMAKER'S there is no doubt as to the quality of the instrument; and there is the positive assurance that a better instrument for the price it is impossible to buy.

The Wanamaker showing of Pianos is the largest known to the trade. The cases are the newest and finest—the most artistic and up-to-date, to be found anywhere. Selection here is greatest and most satisfying.

The other reason is one that is more far-reaching. There are thousands of people who would like to have a piano in their homes today, who feel that the purchase is one that they are, at the moment, not prepared to make. There are hundreds of business men who could very easily give us their check for the amount the piano would cost, but they do not wish at the time to take that amount out of their business. These people have not investigated us, and do not know how much easier it is to buy a piano than they had thought.

The WANAMAKER PLAN permits selection from this splendid range of pianos, and yet requires a cash payment of only ten to fifty dollars, according to the instrument chosen; and a monthly payment of six dollars and upward, afterwards. This accommodation as to easy payment does not add one dollar to the cash purchase price of the piano. You simply pay the insignificant interest of four per cent. per annum, for the amount remaining unpaid, which on an average, will only amount to about ten dollars during the entire time.

The payments are so small that a man might save the amount out of the cigars he smokes, in excess of what he really knows he ought to smoke; a careful housekeeper can easily save the amount out of her monthly household appropriation, and scarcely notice it.

The compensation for a little extra economy is the early possession of an instrument that will entertain family and friends, and have an educative and refining influence on both the grown-ups and children of the household.

When may we have the opportunity to talk the piano matter over with you?

Most Men Seem to Want OXFORD OVERCOATS

Oxford mixtures have been popular in the past, of course, but the demand has never been quite so broad and persistent as it has this Fall. Our stock of these Overcoats is so extensive as to be satisfying to the most particular man.

The man who wants unusual value for his money will be delighted with the Wanamaker Special Oxford-mixed all-wool Vicuna Overcoats, silk-lined and faced to the edge, or cloth-faced. The best value ever offered at the price—$15.

There are other fine Oxford mixed Overcoats at $20, $22 and $25, all finished in the handsomest manner.

Top-coats of covert cloths, in olive green shades, now the fad with swell custom-tailors, silk-lined at $20; serge-lined at $12 and $15.

Of course, we have Raincoats in Oxford mixtures, too; an excellent variety, made of thoroughly rainproof worsteds at $15 to $30.

Second floor, Fourth avenue.

Stout Suits For School Boys

Here are two special groups, today, for sturdy boys of nine to sixteen years. They are made with the extra pair of trousers, which practically make two suits of one.

One group is composed of Double-breasted Jacket Suits, with two pairs of knee trousers, made of good-looking, strong, absolutely pure wool mixed cheviots, in sizes for nine to sixteen years, at $5.

Also Norfolk Jacket Suits, with two pairs of knee trousers, in sizes for ten to sixteen years, at $5.

Both styles are worth $1.50 more than the price we ask today.

We also have ready two hundred more of the Dollar Knee Trousers, of blue and mixed cheviots, which we are selling at 75c a pair.

Second floor, Ninth street.

Some Popular Silks At 55c a Yard

First is a fine collection of new and perfect Crepe de Chine, 23 inches wide, in a complete range of colorings for street and evening wear, including beige, gray, turquoise, cream, brown, gobelin, Nile green, navy and marine blue, pink, light blue, ivory, mais, cardinal, reseda, champagne and black.

They are excellent value at price, 55c a yard.

The other group is a continuation of the fine offering of Peau de Cygne Silks, told of the other day. They are all silk, in a bright, lustrous quality, in high popularity this Fall. The collection includes practically all of the new and staple street and evening shades, including white, cream, ivory and black.

This silk is used for entire dresses, as well as waists, opera coats, and dress-linings. It is a quality really worth 75c, at 55c a yard. Rotunda.

BEDROOM FINERY From Paris—Reduced

Some of the charming Negligees and Dressing Sacques from Paris upon which we have set greatly reduced prices, still remain.

Savings from a third up to nearly half on dainty garments for the dressing room or bedroom, full of touches of hand-work, that are every whit as pretty as the new arrivals in the French Room for which these had to make way. These groups:

DRESSING SACQUES

Of albatross, flannel or silk, in light colors or black; plaited in many different ways, and trimmed with hand-stitching, embroidery or lace. Lined with albatross or China silk. At $5 to $10; formerly $7.50 to $18.

NEGLIGEES

Of fine French albatross; embroidered by hand, and trimmed with lace. Deep collar or high band at neck; fancy or kimono sleeve. Lined with China silk, or unlined. At $10 to $15; formerly $15 to $25.

Cross Aisle, Broadway.

Women's HATS To Wear Now

Unless you want to give the effect of having just gotten in from the country, it's too late for a straw hat. And many women will think it a bit early for the hats of chenille and velvet, that are to be so popular for Winter wear.

The interim is suitably filled by these Ready-to-wear Hats of Taffeta Silk, of which we are showing an excellent assortment—hats that are just right for mellow Indian Summer days.

Frames are hand-made; shapes are distinctive; the color-range offers abundant choice, and trimmings are varied, too—wings, quills, breasts, pompons, ribbons, on turbans, flares, and sailor and Continental shapes. $2 to $7.

Second floor, Broadway.

News of the China Sale

We've never had a finer presentation of Dinner Ware, Fancy China, Cut Glass, Bric-a-Brac, and Marble Statuary, than during the present sale which is just closing.

This last week of the sale has brought forward, as we promised, a great many special offerings, that have never been equaled in the past. Today another fine group is presented; and many special prices are marked to clear out the special groups brought out for the September movement.

The display of Cut Glass is specially interesting; the pieces are beautiful, and the prices are wonderfully low.

Those who are wise enough to buy fine holiday gifts a couple of months ahead of the rush time, may today secure superb pieces of Marble Statuary that are worth fully a half more than the prices that are marked. The same is true of a beautiful collection of Bric-a-Brac.

Following are the items of which we have sufficient quantities to exploit in the papers.

The smaller groups that we cannot mention are even more attractive.

Notions at Half Price

Here is an offering of a very good list of sewing and toilet needfuls, that should prove attractive to almost everybody who sees it. These very little prices are quoted because this collection is composed of odd lots we wish to close out quickly, or lines that are to be discontinued because new ones are coming. This is only a matter of stock-righting on our part, and the articles will serve you quite as well as those for which you would ordinarily pay double. Here is the list:

Dress Shields, 10c a pair.
Lace Pins with pearl or turquoise heads, 3c dozen.
Belt Pins, 5c each.
Sleeve Protectors, 10c pair.
Collar Buttons, 2c dozen.

Hook-On Supporters, frilled elastic, satin pads, 20c. Tenth street.

All-Wool CASHMERE A Third Under-price

Thirty thousand yards have been sold of this splendid fabric since we first told you about it, three weeks ago. Fifty thousand yards remain—for there were 80,000 yards in the enormous purchase.

Pure wool, soft and fine in quality—"fifteen-twill," so-called—hence graceful and clinging in its draping qualities—a fact that has much weight in these days of 1830 dresses. Its lustre and beautiful, clear colorings, make it additionally attractive.

Thirty-eight inches wide, in three shades of black—blue black, jet black and medium black, and these two dozen fine colorings:

Cardinals, Bright Garnets, Dark Garnets, Ivy Greens, Hunter's Green, Dark Greens, Havana Brown, Golden Browns, Dark Browns, Light Grays, Dark Grays, Heliotrope, Royal Blues, Navy Blues, Cadet Blues, Old Rose, Nile Green, Pinks, Mais.

And the best part of the story is told in these lines:

50c a Yard,
Instead of 75c!

Rotunda.

CUSHION TOPS at 25¢ Worth Double

This is a collection of more than a thousand Tapestry Cushion Tops, in various designs and colorings. A manufacturer was cleaning up his stock, and wanted to do it in a hurry. While all of the pieces would be fairly priced at 50c, some are worth even more. At this season of the year all tasteful housekeepers will have use for a few of them. 25c each.

Tenth street.

WRIST BAGS Specially Priced

Bags at $1, $1.85, $2.25, $2.75—four of the most attractive groups of these useful companions for a woman's shopping or calling tours, that you've ever seen.

Made up to our order, in handsome shapes and styles, thoroughly good in every respect, and excellent values all:

Bags of grain walrus, black and colored, with leather-covered, nickel, gilt and gun-metal finished frames; strap or braided handles. Moire-lined, and fitted with purse and card-case; or purse, card-case and vinaigrette. $1 each.

Bags of black walrus: 9-inch frames, partly leather-covered; braided handle, moire-lined, with purse and card-case. $1.85 each.

Bags of black walrus or genuine seal; riveted frame, leather-covered, gilt or gun-metal finished; black or figured moire lining; with purse, card-case and vinaigrette. $2.25 and $2.75 each.

Broadway.

Women's STOCKINGS and VESTS

There's a judicious blending of the low in price with the good and durable in quality in these Stocking and Vests, as well as a certain fitness in weight, that make them very well worth buying just now:

WOMEN'S STOCKINGS

12½c a pair—Of fast black Cotton, seamless; heels and toes extra spliced; of durable yarn, elastic.

At 25c a pair—Imported fast black plain Lisle Thread, light weight; also fast black medium-weight Cotton.

American-made fast black Cotton, medium weight, with unbleached soles or feet.

At 37½c a pair, 3 pairs for $1—Of fast black plain Lisle Thread, with white split soles, or white tipped heels and toes. Made in Germany; exceptional value at the price.

WOMEN'S VESTS

Chinese Says They Retired After Enduring Terrific Fire.

ENORMOUS LOSSES REPORTED

Russians Hear Attackers' Casualties Number 7,000—Hundreds Killed by Ground Mines.

CHE-FOO, Sept. 28.—Russians residing here assert that they have received information that the Japanese losses in the latest attack on Port Arthur, which was begun on Sept. 19, were 7,000.

A Chinese who left the fortress on Sept. 26 says that the Russian losses were between 500 and 600.

The Chinaman says that the Japanese were unable to remain in the three supplementary forts which they captured, and that they retired at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of Sept. 26 after enduring several days of tremendous firing from the inner forts.

He adds that the Russians attempted to bury the dead on both sides at night, because the decomposing bodies seriously menaced the health of the garrison. The Russians allege that it is the deliberate policy of the Japanese to undermine the health of the Russian troops by means of the decomposing bodies, and that for this reason they fire on the burial parties.

A Chinaman who was a member of a burial party says the Japanese fired when he and other Chinamen attempted to bury the dead. He adds that when the wind carries the odors toward the Japanese the latter retire.

Chinese say that the most severe attacks were made on the supplementary forts of the Etse and Antz Mountain forts. The Russians had undermined the ground and several hundred Japanese were blown up Sept. 23. Reports received from Miao-Tao Islands mention a terrific report which shook the houses there on that date.

The Russians ships, it is reported, took no part in the battle. From thirty to fifty shells fell daily in the Chinese new town. One shell tore the rudder from a torpedo boat destroyer.

The Russians are now building a new fort on Liao-thie Promontory, bearing on the land side. Its construction indicates that five large guns will form the nucleus of the battery.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 28.—The information received at the War Office concerning the situation at Port Arthur is not reassuring.

The blockade at last seems to be effective. Admiral Togo's ships are arresting all the junks which try to enter the harbor and are sending them to Dalny.

It is feared that this complete isolation may react on the spirits of the garrison.

HEARS TOGO LOST SHIPS.

Vladivostok Gets Report That Two Torpedo Boats Have Been Sunk.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—A dispatch to a news agency from Vladivostok says that, according to reports from Port Arthur, two Japanese torpedo boats and a Japanese steamer have been sunk by mines near Port Arthur in the course of the last few days.

A Japanese cruiser of the Nitaka type, it is added, was badly damaged.

RUSSIA ORDERS WARSHIPS.

Four Cruisers and Eleven Destroyers to be Built in France.

PARIS, Sept. 28.—A dispatch from Toulon says the Russian Government has just ordered from the Compagnie des Forges et Chantiers de la Méditerranée eleven torpedo-boat destroyers of the latest pattern.

The work will be taken in hand at once. Four of the destroyers will be built at the dockyards at Havre, four at Norman dockyards, and three at La Seyne. They will not be finished for fifteen months.

Further orders are shortly to be given for four cruisers of the Bayan type.

MEDIATION RUMORS PERSIST.

German and Italian Semi-Official Denials Fail to Suppress Them.

BERLIN, Sept. 28.—Signor Giolitti, the Italian Premier, left Homburg to-day for Racconigi after a two days' visit to Chancellor von Bülow, which, at this juncture of international affairs, has naturally given rise to conjectures that the conference was partly in regard to the question of mediatory offers in the Far Eastern war.

The conjectures have brought forth prompt denials from the Government organs. The National Zeitung, in an evidently inspired paragraph, styles the reports that the conference dealth with the question of mediation as "absurd fabrications."

No trustworthy statement regarding the real purport of the conference has been given out.

ROME, Sept. 28.—Although a portion of the Italian press insists that the meeting of Premier Giolitti and Count von Bülow was connected with the subject of mediation between Russia and Japan, the Capitale, a semi-official organ, gives voice to the contrary view, and says:

"Not only the Italian, but all European Governments, consider that mediation is impossible now, when Russia fully trusts in her ability to turn the tide of battle in her favor, and, while Japan does not wish to lose the fruits of her victories."

The Avanti asserts that the presence of Prince Charles of Hohenzollern at Tokio has a connection with alleged plans of mediation. The Foreign Office, however, emphatically denies that Italy is concerned in any such movement.

CORRESPONDENTS HAPPIER.

Their Treatment by the Japanese "Completely Revolutionized."

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 29.—The Daily Mail's Liao-Yang correspondent, telegraphing Sept. 23, says:

"The Winter equipment for the Japanese troops is completed. Fresh supplies of ammunition have arrived, and the army is ready to march at a moment's notice.

"The personal treatment of foreign correspondents with the Japanese has been completely revolutionized."

A correspondent of The Daily Telegraph at Sing-min-Tung, under date of Sept. 28, says that Capt. Boyd, an American officer on leave, is going to join the Russians from Sing-min-Tung.

Russian Revolutionists' Activity.

GOMEL, Russia, Sept. 28.—The police here have discovered another secret printing press from which revolutionary proclamations were issued. Four arrests have been made.

Boy Stabs Baby in Anger.

YONKERS, Sept. 28.—Antonio Sansone, 3 years old, was stabbed in the head this afternoon by William Torrello, 9 years old, of 38 New Main Street. Torrello was fixing a toy wagon on the sidewalk, and was using a large cheese knife. The baby got in his way, and would not move when told. Then he struck the baby on the head with the knife. The wound is not fatal.

JAPAN REMAINS CONFIDENT.

Talk of a Second Russian Army Causes No Alarm—New Domestic Loan.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cablegram.

Copyright, 1904, THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Sept. 28.—The Japanese press is uncertain whether to regard the Second Russian Army as a second Baltic squadron, but it declares that at any rate, since the responsibility for the prolongation of the war rests with Russia, Japan is prepared to continue to fight unflinchingly, confident of her ability always to place in the field a larger and stronger army than Russia.

It is added that no financial or economic inconvenience has been experienced hitherto, and therefore confidence is expressed that in a trial of endurance Japan will not be beaten by her enemy.

By The Associated Press.

TOKIO, Sept. 28.—The Government has decided to float another domestic loan of $40,000,000 on conditions similar to the last. The issue price will be 92 and the interest 5 per cent.

Business conditions indicate a heavy subscription. The Minister of Finance will meet the bankers of Tokio to-morrow, and those of Osaka and Nagoya on Saturday, to discuss the loan.

It is probable that the conscription law will be amended, increasing the service in the reserve five years and making the regular reserve service total seventeen years and five months. This means a large increase in the strength of the army.

COSSACKS' DARING RAIDS.

Russians Have Been Successful in a Number of Small Engagements.

MUKDEN, Sept. 28.—Many skirmishes and reconnaissances are reported to headquarters here, but, except for these, quiet still prevails. In the fighting that has been occurring the Russian scouts have almost invariably shown themselves superior to the Japanese both in riding and fighting.

The Japanese movement up the Tai-Tse River appears to be by a comparatively small force.

Raiding parties from the Russian Army bring in many prisoners.

Beautiful Autumn weather continues.

Reinforcements are arriving rapidly. Over 1,000 convalescents have returned to duty.

The railway is in good working condition. Officers are distributing the reserve stores that were brought up from Liao-Yang, as adequate supplies are now coming in from the north.

Details of the fighting near Inpu, between Bentsiaputze and the railroad, on Sept. 26, show that Gen. Mistchenko's scouts, accompanied by a battery of artillery, attacked a Japanese position at which there were stationed a battery of artillery, two squadrons of cavalry, and two companies of infantry. The Japanese were shelled out of their position on a hill and suffered heavy loss. The Russians occupied the hill until nightfall, when they retired under cover of darkness, having lost only three men.

The Japanese are sending out large parties of scouts daily, with the object of checking the Russians' continuous raids.

The march of Gen. Rennenkampff's Cossacks around the Japanese right flank, which was mentioned in these dispatches on Sept. 26, was a remarkable performance. Accompanied by a battery of artillery, the Cossacks covered eighty miles in fifty-two hours. They struck the enemy north of Bentsiaputze on Sept. 19, and thence continued south, circling the Japanese right flank. Coming unexpectedly on the Japanese line of communications near Pensihu, on the Tai-Tse River, on Sept. 22, they inflicted considerable damage. The Japanese were thrown into great confusion, but the Cossacks retired with a loss of only two killed.

Dr. Matveieff, who was captured by the Japanese at Liao-Yang, says the Japanese are suffering severely from dysentery, and that they begged his assistance in combating the disease. Japanese officers of the staff are excellent linguists, and many of them speak English and German, as well as some Russian.

The Japanese Army, according to Dr. Matveieff, is living almost entirely on rice and preserved foods, but it is comfortably equipped, many officers having even armchairs among their baggage. The principal Japanese fear is for forage for the horses during the Winter.

ST. PETERSBURG, Thursday, Sept. 29.—Movements at the front, so far as disclosed by the meagre dispatches received here, are confined to almost continuous outpost skirmishes, by means of which Gen. Kuropatkin is keeping in close touch with the Japanese along the whole of their front.

Field Marshal Oyama's advance appears to be extremely deliberate. There are no indications as yet that he has begun to overlap Russian positions.

A dispatch from Gen. Kuropatkin, dated Tuesday afternoon, says the Japanese have not altered their positions east of the railroad and that they confine themselves to outpost attacks to the north, all of which so far have been repulsed.

Reconnaissances by the Russian troops, says Gen. Kuropatkin, have established the fact that the main Japanese forces are still along the branch railroad to the Yen-Tai mines. Both sides are in constant contact. Gen. Samsonoff's troops particularly have had frequent encounters, but have sustained very few casualties. The Russians have captured some Japanese cattle and horses.

The General adds:

"On the night of Sept. 26 Cornet Mikheiff, with a detachment of Ural Cossacks, attacked the Japanese bivouacked at Khouandi, causing a great panic. The same day the Orenburg Cossacks laid an ambush for half a squadron of Japanese cavalry, who returned their fire, but soon retired, having sustained considerable loss and leaving several dead on the field."

The superiority of the Russian cavalry is beginning to be apparent. They have had the best of it in a number of minor encounters.

It appears that Gen. Rennenkamp's movement to the southward on Sept. 19 extended beyond the distance indicated by first reports. His Cossacks made a rapid sweep on Sept. 22 and struck a Japanese force at Pensihu, threatening its communications and causing considerable excitement.

Reinforcements are rapidly arriving at Mukden, and many convalescents are already returning to duty.

It is reported that Gen. Kuropatkin has made a requisition upon the authorities here for additional officers to make up the heavy losses in killed and wounded in the battle of Liao-Yang.

FOR MORE CITY PLAYGROUNDS.

Controller Will Provide Them If He Can Get $750,000.

When the Board of Estimate meets on Friday Controller Grout will ask an appropriation of $750,000 to carry out a scheme of playgrounds for the crowded sections of Manhattan and Brooklyn.

Mr. Grout has been working on the plan for more than two years, but only lately in an amendment to the Small Parks act has he found a possibility of obtaining the necessary funds. The money, if the Board of Estimate approves the scheme, will be raised by bonds.

Mayor McClellan and Borough President Ahearn are already on record in favor of the plan.

SEPARATION OF RACES SOUTHERN BISHOP'S IDEA

Plain Words to Episcopalians on Negro Problem.

BOOKER T. WASHINGTON SPEAKS

Colored Leader, However, Does Not Answer Dr. Strange, Coadjutor-Elect of East Carolina.

Speaking on "The Negro Question in the United States, or the Responsibilities of the Christian Civilization of America Toward the Negro Race," the Rev. Robert Strange, D. D., Coadjutor Bishop-elect for East Carolina, surprised a large audience gathered in St. Thomas's Church, at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-third Street, last night, with the statement that as a first step toward the solution of the problem "there must be an unequivocal social separation of the races." This means, he said, "separation in the schools, separation in the Churches, separation in social entertainments, and separation in domestic life."

The occasion was a public meeting of the New York Protestant Episcopal Convention, which was attended by prominent clergymen and Bishops from many parts of the country. There were also many negroes in the audience. Bishop Coadjutor David H. Greer presided, and introduced the speakers, who, besides Coadjutor Bishop-elect Strange, were Ernest Hamlin Abbott, Edgar Gardner Murphy, Secretary of the Southern Education Board and author of the book entitled "The Present South," and Booker T. Washington.

Coadjutor Bishop-elect Strange was the first speaker. He said that he was born in North Carolina, was trained as a minister in Connecticut under Bishop Williams, and that the first years of his ministry had been as a missionary among the colored people.

"The question," he declared, "is primarily one which the South must answer, as the South has had and will always have the negroes with it. But there is something which you people of the North can do for us in the South. In the first place, I ask you to trust the white men of the South. When you hear a criticism of a specific thing in the South, don't condemn the South as a whole because of it.

"In the second place, we ask you to set your faces as a flint against any outside political interference in this question. Why? Because it will harm the negro. It will raise false hopes in him and it will irritate the white man.

"First and foremost, the white man of the South must see to it that there shall be unequivocal social separation of the races; that they put aside firmly and gently all things that look toward a relation of one race toward the other. There must be separation in the schools, separation in the churches, separation in social entertainments, and separation in domestic life.

"This is not the kind of a place to go into an argument on this question, but I tell you that that is the one fixed factor in any real solution. It is best for human progress, it is best for the white race, it is best for the colored race; and my statement is based on the opinion of the leaders in that race. Don't give a mean politician a chance to swing his slogan and hold the hand of the best people! Exceptions ought to be made in the South, of course, to men who have ability as teachers in their race.

"I tell you that the late amendment to the Constitutions of Southern States in regard to the franchise is an effort to answer the best conscience of the South, and gives us hope of a pure and honest government. Now we have swept away from the ballot box a mass of ignorance by laws, and I believe that the conscience of the South is growing strong enough to see to it that the law shall be administered with equal justice to whites and blacks."

Booker T. Washington told of the progress which his race had already made under somewhat adverse conditions. He made no reply to Dr. Strange. E. H. Abbott took the ground that most negroes are, intellectually, morally, and spiritually, but children, and that it was wrong to hold them as responsible as adults. Mr. Murphy said that because certain white men of the North and South return lawlessness for lawlessness it was "folly to forget the rights and protections which are so generally accorded to the negro race, and which far exceed those which negroes now enjoy or have ever enjoyed in any other negro land."

The Archbishop of Canterbury will preach in Trinity Church next Sunday morning and at St. Thomas's Church at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

The annual reception to the ministers of the diocese was held last night at Sherry's. In the absence of Bishop Potter, Dr. David H. Greer, his coadjutor, and Mrs. Greer received. Over 400 persons attended the reception.

POTTER ON DIVORCE EVIL.

Tells Convention Convenience Often Determines Attitude Toward Laws.

The Archbishop of Canterbury occupied the throne and conducted the services which marked the opening of the one hundred and twenty-first annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York yesterday morning, when 750 delegates and about 250 others specially invited assembled in the crypt of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. The convention then adjourned to the Pro-Synod building, which was the old Leake & Watts Orphan Asylum, and there heard the annual address of Bishop Potter. He declared that unless the church safeguarded the family as the foundation of society, practical barbarism must supervene.

Bishop Potter told a story of a young, penniless lawyer in the Far West who had refused a fee of $500 offered by a farmer and his wife for a divorce, and by pleading led them to reconsider their purpose.

"The incident has a deeper significance than at first we may recognize," he continued. "We make laws very easily in this country, and we break them very easily. When overlegislation crowds our statute books with laws which are, too often, a dead letter, it is very easy to pass from disregard of what one thinks an unreasonable law to disregard of laws that are not unreasonable, perhaps, but inconvenient. And any law one may easily hold to be both inconvenient and unreasonable if it gets in his way."

As he was about to present the Archbishop, Bishop Potter declared that the convention had met for the last time in a church, a statement which evoked applause.

"We in the Church of England," he said, "are perhaps only now learning the right manner of conducting representative church assemblies. We are trying to do the curious thing of adopting the regulations and rules of past times upon present day necessities. We have to work upon rules made when the whole nation was one of churchmen. To-day, gentlemen, the whole nation does not consist of churchmen."

Rectors from parishes along the Hudson River who wanted to divide the diocese so that they can have a Bishop of their own, failed to carry their point, the matter being postponed and the committee discharged. The Rev. W. W. Page of Cornwall argued in favor of a Primate for the United States, but the proposition was tabled by a vote of 112 to 107.

After the morning session the Archbishop, escorted by J. Pierpont Morgan and George Macculloch Miller visited St. Luke's Hospital, Mr. Miller being President of the Board of Trustees. The Rev. Dr. Charles F. Clover, the Superintendent, led the way to the chapel, where the Archbishop briefly addressed the assembled medical staff and employes.

McGovern and Murphy Fight Hard.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—Before a crowd that filled the National Athletic Club to-night, Hughey McGovern and Tommy Murphy of New York fought six of the fastest rounds ever witnessed in this city. Under the law no decisions can be rendered here, but it was the opinion of the spectators the bout was a draw. In the first round Murphy was knocked down from a right swing to the jaw. At the end of the bout both showed signs of weariness and distress.

DEPEW AT BIG RALLY.

Predicts Victory—Praises Roosevelt as Man of Action.

Senator Depew opened the Republican campaign in Harlem last night with several other speakers at Camp Roosevelt, 255 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street. The tent was packed with, it was said, more than 2,500 persons and other thousands had to be turned away because they could not force their way into the place. Gen. O. O. Howard, one of the speakers, said from the platform that it had taken him fifteen minutes to fight his way from the door to the platform.

In speaking of the outlook Senator Depew said:

"I have been through ten Republican counties in New York State, and I have been through those same counties at this time of the year for more years than I care to confess just now, and I declare to you I never have seen the prospects for Republican victory as they are now."

Later he said:

"As to candidates the trouble with the Democratic nomination is that he has the judicial habit. He is accustomed to the silence and seclusion of his study, where he evolves ponderous opinions. The Chief Executive of the Nation should be a man of action, one who can act on the minute as President Roosevelt did in the Panama case.

"The people are going to keep Roosevelt. He's the best-equipped man in the country for the Presidency of the United States. The only real complaint against him is that he takes the whole people into his confidence and tells them what he is going to do. And, by the eternal, we have come to know he means what he says."

TO PICK MAN FOR THIRTEENTH.

Republican Leaders in Congressional District to Confer To-day.

A conference of Republican leaders of the Thirteenth Congressional District will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the office of Alexander T. Mason to agree upon a candidate. Ex-Park Commissioner Willcox and Herbert Parsons, the leader of the Twenty-fifth Assembly District, who have been prominently mentioned, both announced yesterday that they were not aspirants for the honor.

The only announced candidate is W. H. Wadhams of the Twenty-fifth Assembly District. Mr. Wadhams has the support of Leader Parsons. Wilbur F. Wakeman, the Secretary of the American Protective Tariff League, is also mentioned. It is generally agreed that the nomination will go either to the Twenty-fifth Assembly or the Twenty-seventh Assembly District, the Twenty-ninth District having named Nathaniel A. Elsberg for Senator.

There is a small part of the Fifth Assembly District in the Thirteenth Congressional, and late last night there was some talk of the nomination of Postmaster Van Cott. It is understood that Mr. Van Cott is not to be reappointed Postmaster in the event of President Roosevelt's election, and the man who it is said has been picked out to succeed him is Charles H. Murray, the President of the Republican County Committee, who is a personal friend of President Roosevelt.

AND LEW DOCKSTADER STUCK.

Trousers Held Him to Car Seat Where Somebody Spilled Molasses.

An audience of a thousand people were kept waiting in Newark last night because Lew Dockstader, the minstrel, sat down on some spilled molasses in a trolley car and got stuck. The minstrel man is playing in Newark this week, but he lives in New York. He got on a trolley car last night to go from the station to the theatre. He sat down in the first vacant seat.

A little while later he starter to rise, but could not. Something held him. Dockstader is a heavy man. He found it hard to free himself from the tenacious treacle. As he wriggled and called to the conductor to stop the car and free him people began to laugh, and the black-face comedian found himself at last participating in a new joke.

Somehow, Dockstader doesn't know exactly how, he reached the theatre some fifteen minutes late. He got through the performance, and then asked himself the question.

"What shall I wear home, my molasses pair or my misfit costume pair?"

He decided on the molasses pair and stood up all the way.

Gaines Declared Nominee of Republicans for Congress in Third.

The sub-committee of the Republican National Congressional Committee, which has under consideration the factional fight in the Third Congressional District of West Virginia, rendered a decision yesterday. The district split on the nomination of Joseph Holt Gaines, the present Representative of the district. A second convention nominated William Seymour Edwards. The decision was in favor of Gaines.

The Congressional Committee will now take up the contest in the Sixth District of Ohio, where Charles Hildebrant and Judge Scroggy of Xenia both claim to be the regular Republican candidate. The contest between the two as to which has the right to have his name printed on the ballot as the regular Republican candidate is now pending in the Supreme Court of Ohio.

HERRICK NOTIFICATION PLANS.

Local Contingent to Leave for Albany Early Saturday Morning.

The arrangements for the notification of Justice Herrick, candidate for Governor, were announced last night. The ceremonies will be held at noon Saturday in the City Hall at Albany.

The local contingent will leave Saturday morning on a special train at 8:45 o'clock, arriving in Albany at 11:50 A. M. Congressman Francis Burton Harrison will be notified of his nomination for Lieutenant Governor in Albany right after the Herrick notification, the speeches in both cases being delivered by Prof. Duncan Campbell Lee of Ithaca, who was the permanent Chairman of the Saratoga Convention. The other nominees will be notified at the same time.

CORTELYOU HERE AGAIN.

Has Been Conferring with President—Republican Visitors Optimistic.

Chairman George B. Cortelyou of the Republican National Committee returned yesterday from Washington, where he had a talk with President Roosevelt on the progress of the campaign.

Among the callers at Republican National Headquarters yesterday were Senator Charles Dick of Ohio, Senator Russell A. Alger of Michigan, and Gov. Chamberlain of Connecticut. They all gave Chairman Cortelyou rosy accounts of the political outlook in their respective States. Senator Dick's estimate for Ohio was 70,000, and Gov. Chamberlain said that Connecticut was "safe as a church" for the Republican ticket.

Gov. Chamberlain is here with his daughters and members of his staff to attend the launching of the battleship Connecticut.

100 Up-State Republican Meetings.

Col. Lafayette B. Gleason, the head of the Republican State Committee's speakers' bureau, yesterday arranged for over 100 meetings in the counties north of the Harlem and said that he had applications for speakers for fifty more. Col. Gleason has secured Congressman Burton of Ohio, Chairman of the Rivers and Harbors Committee of the House, for ten meetings in this State.

Men's Raincoats

To identify a rain-proofing process, its sponsor terms it "Cravenette." It is really an excellent process; but since it is applied to fabrics of all grades, irrespective of their true worth, "Cravenette" means nothing furthur than the mere application of the process. Determined to insure more than that, we have perfected a method of water proofing. It is termed "Pluvius," which not alone insures the proofing, but the character of the cloth, because it is confined exclusively to the better grade of fabrics. Be the process what it may, upon the tailoring of the Saks Raincoats you may depend. The collection of models embraces the belted tourist, long box, paletot and paddock coats of worsted, cheviot, twill and covert, in forty-three distinctive designs and patterns.

FAIRBANKS ANSWERS PARKER ACCUSATIONS

Cites Postal Investigation Against Corruption Charges.

EULOGIZES THE PRESIDENT

Continuance of His Administration, Says Fairbanks, Means Continued Rigid Scrutiny of All Offices.

HELENA, Mon., Sept. 28.—In his principal speech here to-day Senator Fairbanks discussed at some length the charges of corruption made against the Republican Party. He refrained carefully from mention of Judge Parker's name, but it was understood by all that the speech was inspired by the utterances of the Democratic candidate on this subject in his letter of acceptance. Speaking of the part played by President Roosevelt in the prosecution of the Post Office scandals, Mr. Fairbanks said:

"He has enforced the laws. He has driven corruption out of public places. We know that in private experience in every community there are evildoers, but they are comparatively few. The one who will betray public trust is the exception. He insinuates himself into private employment, into corporate employment, into the public employment.

"Theodore Roosevelt knew that and he determined that, so far as lay in his power, the betrayer of the general interest should be whipped out of place and power. He set to work a corps of Inspectors in the great Post Office Department, one of the greatest pieces of official mechanism in the world. Thousands are employed in it—yes, tens of thousands. Is it at all to be wondered at that now and then among this vast army there should be one who should forget his duty to his Government and go wrong? The President undertook to find out whether some one was betraying his trust and he made discoveries—not many, but a few, comparatively. Who were the offenders? Some Republicans, some Democrats.

"What did he do? Did he undertake to conceal the result of the investigation from the knowledge of men? No, he brought the evil-doers to the bar of justice. The Department of Justice prosecuted them, and in many cases the guilty are wearing the stripes of their guilt.

"Those who talk of corruption in the Administration must bear in mind, if they be just, that there is no man living with a higher conception of civic duty, with a more exalted ideal of official responsibility than Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States.

"He has no sympathy for wrongdoers, because he is a rightdoer himself. Clean himself, he wishes all men in public service to be likewise clean. The continuance of President Roosevelt's Administration means a continuance of a rigid, searching scrutiny of all of the offices of the Government and the certain condemnation and punishment of evildoers, no matter how low or how exalted they be."

MAYER DEFENDS ODELL.

Parker and Davis "Mystery and Reminiscence," a Negro Says.

The Lenox Assembly Rooms, at 252 Second Street, were crowded last night at the rally of the Federal Republican Club of the Sixteenth Assembly District. Julius M. Mayer, the Republican candidate for Attorney General, defended the administration of Gov. Odell.

"There is not one man in one hundred," he said, "who can point to a single definite thing in the present administration that has been wrong. Ask them and see if they can. The abuse aimed at Gov. Odell and the Republican Party will turn out to be a boomerang, because if you ever call a man a crook and fail to 'make good,' the American people will bear you down."

Charles Anderson, the negro Republican leader, characterized the Democratic ticket as "a mystery from Esopus and a reminiscence from West Virginia."

Electoral Candidates Resign Offices.

Slashing of Imaginary Russians Loses Him His Job.

Koiulu Tsurnoka's enthusiasm over the war which his countrymen are waging against Russia caused him to lose his place as cook for Robert Howison of 260 Lenox Avenue late last night. Mary O'Brien, another servant, started to retire in the servants' quarters on the top floor when she found Tsurnoka prancing up and down before a mirror furiously slashing to the right and left with an old cavalry sabre belonging to their employer.

She ran screaming down stairs, and Mr. Howison, arming himself with a club, rushed up and caught him slaying imaginary Cossacks by the score. As he had given Mary O'Brien almost as bad a scare on Sunday night by the same performance, he left the house at once. He declared that the first ship would carry him back to Japan.

SEEK A GERMAN "BARON."

Friends of Fritz von Wernsdorff Ask Police to Find Him.

The police of the Vernon Avenue Station, Brooklyn, were asked yesterday to aid in a search for Fritz von Wernsdorff, aged thirty-two, who is said to be a real Baron, and who has been missing for nearly two weeks from his boarding house at 437 Pulaski Street.

The man is supposed to be heir to a large estate in Germany left by his father, who died eighteen months ago. On the morning of Sept. 17 Fritz left his home to go to work in a hat store at Broadway and Astor place. He never reached the store, and all trace of him since then has been lost.

A FURNESS LINER WRECKED.

Loyalist Goes Ashore Near Cape Race—Is Breaking Up Fast.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Sept. 28.—The British steamer Loyalist of the Furness Line, Capt. Phillips, bound from Halifax for London with a general cargo, went ashore last night at Seal Cove, Trepassey Bay, near Cape Race.

The vessel struck during a dense fog. The crew made their escape.

It was at first thought that part of the cargo could be saved, but the Loyalist is now breaking up fast. She is aground fore and aft, and is pounding on the rocks. The 'tween deck cargo is all under water, and comparatively little of it is likely to be saved.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 28.—The Loyalist carried 20,000 barrels of apples shipped by Nova Scotia firms, and miscellaneous goods. She left this port on Sunday.

The cargo was fully and the steamer partially insured.

The Loyalist, formerly the Clan Macalister, is of 1,419 tons net burden. She was built in 1891 at Glasgow and is owned by Furness, Withy & Co., Limited, of West Hartlepool.

DREW PAY AND VOTED UNDER FALSE NAMES

Man Under Arrest for Election Frauds Makes Confession.

HE ACCUSES T. P. SULLIVAN

Says "Little Tim" Got City Job at $3.50 for Him—Worked Under Saloon Keeper's Name.

What Superintendent of Elections Morgan says is the most remarkable story unearthed by him in his investigations of naturalization frauds came to light yesterday in the arrest of Rosario Gamino of 161 Chrystie Street, charged with having registered at the last election under a false name and with having voted illegally. Gamino was locked up in the Church Street Police Station last night and will be arraigned in the Centre Street Court this morning.

The prisoner confesses that Gamino is only one of the three names under which he is known. As a voter for the past thirteen years he has been James Ross, while for the last three years he has figured on the pay roll of this city and has drawn $3.50 a day as a rammer, under the name of "Michael Frabesillio."

The facts in the case are set forth in a sworn affidavit made by Gamino. Gamino accuses Timothy P. Sullivan, Vice President of the Board of Aldermen, of having obtained the position for him in the Department of Highways under the false name of Frabesillio. He says that on Oct. 21, 1891, he obtained from the Superior Court of this city citizen papers under the name of James Ross. Gamino says that he has voted at every election since 1891 under the name of James Ross.

The real Michael Frabesillio is a saloon keeper at 142 Elm Street. According to Gamino, Frabesillio got a place in the Highway Department and held it for some time. At the same time he was running his saloon, and the business in the latter place reached such proportions that it demanded more of Frabesillio's time and he resigned. Thereafter he, or some one acting for him, made application for reinstatement, and the application having been favorably passed upon, Gamino obtained the job under the saloon keeper's name and has held it so for the past three years.

"When I applied for a position at the clubrooms of the Timothy D. Sullivan Association," says Gamino in his affidavit, "Timothy P. Sullivan told me that he would get me a position. A day or two after this I came into the clubrooms and Timothy P. Sullivan told me that he had the position for me, but that it was under a name other than my own.

"I asked him whether it would be right for me to work under a name not my own, and he told me it was all right, and that he had fixed the thing and that I would get the job under the name of Michael Frabesillio. I then told Michael Frabesillio about it, and he told me it was all right, and that it had been all fixed. This was about three years ago."

Frabesillio, when brought before Superintendent Morgan, denied that Gamino had ever seen him relative to the job in the Highway Department. He said he had been an employe there for five months from August, 1898. He had previously worked in the Street Cleaning Department as a driver and applied for reinstatement there. He worked there, he said, until 1902, when he resigned.

About two years ago, he says, a man asked him if he knew that some one was working in the Highway Department under his, Frabesillio's, name. He says he afterward ascertained that this man was "James Ross," but he took no further steps in the matter. He swears, too, that Ross never spoke to him about the matter, and that he never received any money from Ross for allowing him to use his name.

A reporter met "Little Tim" Sullivan and Supt. Morgan talking at Broadway and Thirtieth Street last evening. They had apparently just happened to meet. The reporter showed Sullivan Gamino's affidavit. Sullivan read it through and then said:

"Oh, life's too short to answer questions like this."

BELMONT'S LABOR MOTTO.

It's "Live and Let Live," Says Business Agent Healey.

It is the belief of the Eccentric Firemen's Union that the demand of its members for an increase of wages from $2.25 to $2.50 a day made on the Interborough Rapid Transit Company would be granted without any trouble. The demand affects about 200 firemen in the power houses at Fifty-ninth Street and Eleventh Avenue and at Seventy-fourth Street and Avenue A.

Timothy Healey, business agent of the union, said last night that he had seen August Belmont on behalf of the firemen about a year ago, and that Mr. Belmont told him that it was his intention to be fair to the men at all times.

"Mr. Belmont said," continued Healey, "that his motto was 'live and let live.'"

GEN. GRANT HERE TO COMMAND.

Takes Helm at Governors Island—Temporarily in Charge of Division.

Brig. Gen. Fred D. Grant arrived at Governors Island yesterday to take command of the Department of the East. Until the arrival of Gen. Wade Gen. Grant will also have charge of the Atlantic Division, which includes both the Departments of the East and the Gulf, with headquarters at Atlanta.

Hitherto Major Gen. Corbin has served as division commander as well as being in charge of the Department of the East. Major Gen. Wade, under the reorganization scheme, will be assisted by Gen. Grant and Gen. Thomas H. Barry, who will be in charge of the Department of the Gulf.

EGYPTIAN ANTIQUES IN BOSTON.

Interesting Additions to the Museum of Fine Arts Collection.

BOSTON, Sept. 28.—Important accessions to the department of Egyptian art at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts were announced to-day by Albert M. Lythgoe, curator of the department, who has just returned to Boston after five years in Egypt.

In addition to interesting groups of original objects, Mr. Lythgoe has brought to the museum a copy, of actual size, in tempera, of a portion of the great wall relief in the Tomb of Ptahhotep, at Sakkara.

The collections of original objects which are shortly to be put on exhibition include a large series of statues and statuettes of the Middle Empire, sculptures on granite and limestone, a collection of pottery of various periods, a large exhibit of Roman glass of the time of the Emperor Justinian, and a collection of objects in gold and enamel, many of them dating from the time of Rameses II.

COOPER UNION WINS SUIT.

Town of Pompton Failed to Keep Hewitt Bond Contract.

TRENTON, Sept. 28.—The Cooper Union of New York won a verdict in the United States District Court here to-day for $25,593.69 in a suit to recover the face and interest of bonds issued by the Township of Pompton, in this State. The township claimed an agreement to cancel for the face, or $25,000, made with the late Abram S. Hewitt.

The Union, however, showed that the terms of the contract had not been fulfilled by the township.

GEN. ROE RESCINDS ORDER.

No Other Action in Alleged Dispute with Gen. Henry.

The tension in the National Guard over the so-called dispute between Gens. Henry and Roe regarding the order of the latter directing officers to send him suggestions relative to the new military code which is now in course of preparation, was relieved yesterday by Gen. Roe's rescinding the order to which Gen. Henry took exception. The point made by Gen. Henry was that Gen. Roe should not have asked for the suggestions as commander of the Guard, but as President of the code board. In the interest of harmony Gen. Roe was content to yield on that technicality and recall the order.

Some friends of Gen. Roe point out that Adjt. Gen. Henry acted on his own volition, as the communication which he sent to officers of the Guard was not signed "by direction of the Governor." Whether Gen. Roe will go any further in the matter could not be learned from him yesterday, as he was out of the city. It is understood, however, that he will do nothing until he has looked more deeply into the legal aspect of the Adjutant General's authority.

ALBANY, Sept. 28.—Adjt. Gen. Henry's position is that the board of which Gen. Roe is Chairman had no authority to proceed with any work without his, Gen. Henry's, direction. He bases it upon a general order issued by command of the Governor on Nov. 16, 1903, which made the board advisory to Gen. Henry.

FIVE FIRES IN ONE HOUSE.

Harlem Police Find It's the Work of Rival Gangs of Boys.

Through the arrest of a fourteen-year-old boy last night the police of the West One Hundredth Street Station and the firemen on the upper west side learned why they had been summoned to the fire-alarm box at One Hundred and Eighth Street and Amsterdam Avenue five times during the last four days. The fire on each occasion was in a one-story vacant wooden house at 204 West One Hundred and Eighth Street.

In the neighborhood there have been for some time two gangs of boys, one known as the "One Hundred and Seventh Street gang" and the other as the "One Hundred and Eighth Street gang." When the house became vacant two weeks ago the One Hundred and Seventh Street boys took possession, moved everything out, and held the fort. It was then that the One Hundred and Eighth Street gang decided to take the house and keep it in condition until election night, when they would set it afire.

In some manner the secret leaked out. The One Hundred and Seventh Street boys then went to the house on Sunday and, piling a lot of rubbish in the corner of a room, set it afire. The One Hundred and Eighth Street gang saw the flame, turned in an alarm, and the firemen did the rest. On Monday the boys from the lower street again set fire to the house, and the firemen were called again. Tuesday the same thing happened, and yesterday the One Hundred and Seventh Street boys had the third fire, which was again extinguished.

Detective McManus of the West One Hundredth Street Station yesterday arrested Clifford Olive, fourteen years old, of 987 Amsterdam Avenue. He told the detective the names of the other boys, who will be arrested to-day.

LITTLE BLAZE STARTS PANIC.

Tenants of Aylsmere Apartments Scared to the Street by Smoke.

While Charles Meyer, chief engineer of the Aylsmere apartment house, at Seventy-sixth Street and Columbus Avenue, was on the fifth floor last evening, he saw smoke coming from the windows two floors below. Running to the second floor, he procured a hose and climbed up the fire escape. He discovered the flames in the kitchen of a vacant flat and quickly extinguished them, but the smoke had already poured into the halls. The cry of fire started up all the occupants. They rushed down the stairs, and the elevator boy, Samuel Jefferson, ran the elevator up and down, informing the people that the fire had been extinguished. Their fears, however, were not allayed, and many of them insisted upon going into the street.

When the firemen reached the house they found the flames extinguished.

ACTION FOR $450,000.

International Flax Fibre Company Sues J. R. Lerendeau.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Sept. 28.—In the Superior Court at Montreal to-day the International Flax Fibre Company of New York brought action against J. R. Lerendeau for $450,000.

The statement of claims sets forth that the defendant was made a Director and Vice President of the company. It is alleged that at a meeting of a sub-committee of the directorate in New York in March the President, G. R. De Montlord, acknowledged owing the company $50,000, offering in payment 450,000 shares of the company's stock, the shares having a par value of $1 each. The full board at a meeting at New York on May 9 accepted this offer and released the President of liability.

Mr. De Montlord, it is declared, handed over to the defendant certificates for 450,000 shares. On July 29, at another New York meeting, the defendant by resolution was asked to hand over the certificates to the company. He refused, and action was taken.

TOLSTOY'S IMPERIALIST SON.

He Declares That Russia Is Destined to Conquer the World.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 28.—Count Tolstoy's son Leo, in an article in the Novoe Vremya, takes a position diametrically opposed to that of his father. He has just returned from bidding farewell to his brother, who is departing for the front, and writes of the touching scenes he witnessed at Tamboff as the reserve men left for the Far East. But, he says, nevertheless the peasants are all united in agreeing that the war must be fought out until Japan is subdued.

He predicts the triumph of Russia, which, he declares, is destined "to become, instead of England, the greatest nation in the world." He says the Slavs will spread over and absorb all the neighboring peoples they have already subjugated.

"Russia is the only power destined to realize the dream of world conquest."

John Foster Kirk's Death.

John Foster Kirk, who died on Sept. 21 in Philadelphia, was born at Fredericton, N. B., in 1824, went to Boston at the age of eighteen, and five years later, in 1847, took the position of W. H. Prescott's private secretary, left vacant by Robert Carter. Mr. Kirk worked with Prescott until the death of the historian in 1859. In 1870 Mr. Kirk accepted a position in Philadelphia in the firm of J. B. Lippincott as editor of the new edition of Prescott's works and also of Lippincott's Magazine. From 1880 to 1888 he was lecturer upon European history at the University of Pennsylvania.

Will Study Labor Problems Here.

It was learned last evening at the local headquarters of the American Federation of Labor that the labor representatives sent here by the French Government to investigate industrial conditions in this country will spend two days studying New York before they leave for France. The French labor men had a conference with President Gompers, General Organizer Herman Robinson, and other representatives of the American Federation of Labor before they left New York to visit other cities. They will be back here on Oct. 18.

PUNISH THE GUILTY, SLOCUM SURVIVORS SAY

Indignant Germans Denounce Company and Inspectors.

APPEAL TO THE PRESIDENT

Many Speeches at Meeting Largely Attended by Women in Mourning—"Easy Going" No More.

Survivors of the wreck of the General Slocum and those who were bereaved by the horror of last June, to the number of more than 300, met last night in Schuetzen Hall, 12 St. Mark's Place, to protest against the decision rendered by the local Steamboat Inspectors in their recent investigation into the causes of the disaster.

The indignation meeting—for that was what it became—was held under the auspices of the Organization of General Slocum Survivors. Resolutions were adopted denouncing the report of Inspectors James A. Dumont and Thomas H. Barrett and calling for the punishment of those responsible. The organization represents 300 survivors and the families of 600 dead. The report was denounced as "unjust and unfair to the stricken families, it being proved that negligence and lack of discipline prevailed among the officers and crew."

The resolution was passed unanimously by a rising vote. It read as follows:

"Be it Resolved, That we, the bereaved members of this organization, emphatically declare that the whole responsibility rests with the Board of Directors and officers of the Knickerbocker Steamboat Company, who knew at the time of the disaster of the incompetency of their crew, and we further denounce and look for a speedy punishment of the negligent and of the Federal Government Inspectors, Lundberg and Fleming, who willfully and dastardly permitted this unfit vessel to be in commission without a thorough inspection of the appliances, such as life preservers, hose, &c., which came under their supervision."

It was also resolved to send a copy of the resolutions to President Roosevelt.

Fully a third of those at the meeting were women who, without exception, were in deep mourning. Many wept, and the men were hardly less affected as the story of June 15 was told over again by those who had passed through the catastrophe. The speeches were in both English and German.

President Charles Dersch of the association, in opening the meeting, asked if the "easy-going Germans" were going to allow themselves to be imposed upon. Cries of "No! No!" answered him.

"Then," he continued, "the sooner we put our foot down the better. It is about time the Germans of this city were heard from.

"We are here to-day, suffering. Our friends, who have lost their dearest and best, are facing a long Winter of solitude and grief. Many of them have gone elsewhere to forget their sorrow; many of them have not recovered and never will recover from the horror of that time. Only to-day a mother who mourned the loss of a nineteen-year-old daughter died in a hospital of a broken heart. Are we to be made a laughing stock by these men, one of whom made, twenty-five years ago, a similar report on the Seawanhaka? No; we, the sufferers, have a right to demand redress for the loss of our loved ones.

"Such rot and nonsense. It is to shield the steamboat company that the Inspectors take away the licenses of the Captain, the pilot, and the engineer. What care they? The company will protect them, give them soft berths somewhere, possibly pension them.

"While most of us are of German birth or descent, we are here to demand our rights as American citizens; we are not 'easy marks.' We have accepted the fate that has come to us, but we will not be trifled with. We are here to fight for the memories of our dear dead, and we warn the authorities who are the superiors of the Inspectors who have whitewashed themselves that we will demand recognition of our rights and the adequate punishment of those who are to blame."

Speeches in German and English were also made by Emil Troell, who lost his wife and child; George Wuniner, who lost his wife, and Henry W. Lambech, who lost a daughter and whose wife is a nervous wreck as a result of her experience on the ill-fated boat.

Frank Prawdziski, a boy of thirteen years, made a speech in which he said that he ran to the pilot house to tell Capt. Van Schaick that the boat was on fire, and received the reply: "Shut up, and mind your own business." Several survivors told of the rotten condition of the life preservers, and one man said that he had found the life rafts tied with wire rope.

SAY THEY HAVE OLD-TIMER.

Police Welcome Osborne M. Southwick, Alleged Bad Check Worker.

In the Tombs Court yesterday Osborne M. Southwick, sixty-two years old, of Flushing, was held for examination on Friday in $1,000 bail on a charge of trying to pass a worthless check. The complainant was Detective Sergt. Galvin.

Galvin was standing in the banking room of the Puritan Trust Company, Third Avenue and Twenty-third Street, when he heard a man ask the cashier if "that check was good," and the cashier replied that it was not. He accompanied the man to a shoe store at 382 Third Avenue, and found waiting there an old friend in the person of Southwick, whom he promptly arrested. Southwick, the dealer said, had gone into the store a few minutes previously and bought a pair of shoes for $3, offering a check for $8.00.

On being searched at Police Headquarters, a lot of blank checks were found on Southwick, also a long list of prominent business houses in the city. Southwick's picture is in the Rogues' Gallery. Galvin told the Magistrate, and he said he hoped by Friday to have other people in court to appear against the prisoner.

WILLIAMSPORT, Penn., Sept. 28.—"Brownell, warning. You must deposit $50 at Brandon Park font Wednesday night at 9:30 or fear the vengeance of the Black Hand alias the Dirty Paws."

This note was pinned to the door of Charles Brownell, a prominent merchant, this morning. He is unable to tell whether it is a joke or a threat, but he has made arrangements to test the bravery of the "Dirty Paws" if they put in an appearance.

FILIPINO JUDGE VISITS POPE.

Discusses Questions Between the United States and the Vatican.

ROME, Sept. 28.—The Pope to-day received in private audience Cayetano Arellano, Chief Justice of the Philippine Islands, who was accompanied by Philippe Eugster of Paris.

The Pontiff was most interested in Justice Arellano's account of the situation in the Philippines, the condition of the movement of "Bishop" Aglipay, head of the Filipino National Church, and the influence exercised by the American Bishops. Señor Arellano also discussed the questions which remain to be settled between the United States and the Vatican.

Justice Arellano also had long interviews with the Papal Secretary of State, Cardinal Merry del Val; Mgr. Gasparri, Secretary of Extraordinary Ecclesiastical Affairs, and Archbishop Agius, the Papal Delegate in the Philippines.

EX-SECRETARY FOSTER AGAINST GREATER NAVY

Says Government Should Favor International Disarmament.

JUSTICE BREWER'S ADDRESS

Explains Away Surprise Caused by His Remarks on Philippines and Constitution Before Lawyers' Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 28.—Ex-Secretary of State John W. Foster made the principal address to-day at the opening of the Universal Congress of Lawyers and Jurists. His subject was "International Arbitration and The Hague Tribunal." In it he said:

"It has been reported in the press that the Secretary of the Navy has announced himself as in favor of a navy equal to the greatest navy in the world. I trust he has been misquoted. Our Government should hold itself ready to enter into an agreement for international disarmament and not for the increase of the navy."

"This country should hold itself to other and far more peaceful pursuits in the settlement of strife than to the making of implements of destruction and death."

He expressed deep regret also that the fruits of war made necessary the permanent increase of the American Army.

Justice David J. Brewer of the United States Supreme Court, President of the congress, in his address startled his auditors when he said:

"You can see twenty acres of Philippine life at the World's Fair, but you cannot see a square rod of the Constitution."

After waiting for the prolonged cheering that greeted his remarks to subside, the Justice added:

"Perhaps it is because it has been judicially declared that there is no connection between the two.

"I affirm," he said further, "that the work of the lawyer and jurist, invisible as it may be to the physical eye, is of far-reaching value to humanity, for of what avail would be all the achievements of science if life, liberty, and property were not made sacred by the just administration of law?

"The fabric of our civilization is indeed a thing of beauty, but it is made strong and enduring only by the golden thread of equal, exact, and universal justice. Let us not be turned away from our high purpose by any glitter of gold or temptations of luxurious life, but ever remember that Justice is the one thing beneath the eternal blue."

Much significance was attached to the remarks of the Justice, but when asked to-night for an explanation he said:

"In my reference to the Philippines and the Constitution this afternoon I meant that the Philippines exhibit at the fair was an example of the progress of civilization, but that the work of the lawyer, which is a great factor in the material progress of the world, is invisible."

Before his remarks about the Philippines and the Constitution he had said:

"The purchase which this great Exposition commemorates was not the result of conquest and came not at the end of war. Not a gun was fired, not a life was lost. A lawyer, not a soldier, made the transfer. The glory of that transfer is one of the laurels of our profession."

TO PROTEST AGAINST FRANCE.

Catholic Conference in Session Here May Act To-day.

Action protesting against the treatment of the Roman Catholic Church by the French Government is likely to be taken to-day by the Third Eucharistic Conference Congress of the United States. At yesterday's session Bishop Maes of Kentucky, the presiding officer, acting upon the suggestion of Father James Dougherty, appointed Archbishops Farley and Ryan, Bishops Ludden and Tierney, and Vicar General Mooney to draw up resolutions denouncing the offending Government. A further proposal by Father Dougherty that copies be sent to the President of the United States and the Governor of New York was frowned upon by his Archbishop.

"I think that would be going too far," said Archbishop Farley. "It would be mixing things. The Catholic Church does not belong to the President of the United States or the Governor of the State of New York. It belongs to the Holy See."

Solemn pontifical mass, celebrated at the cathedral by Bishop Maes, was the first order of the day and there was a larger attendance than on Tuesday, owing to overnight arrivals. Bishop Colton preached the sermon on "Holy Communion," and the French and Belgian interpretation of the Gregorian chant was rendered by a choir of seventy-five under Prof. Ungerer. The congress then assembled in the Cathedral College Hall, close by in Madison Avenue, where papers were read by Messrs. McGean, McSweeny, and Thuente of the Order of Preachers and all of New York.

"MIKE," ABLE ESCORT.

Punches an ex-Assemblyman's Son at Girl's Bidding.

Michael Kelleher, nineteen years old, of 414 West Forty-seventh Street, walked up Ninth Avenue last night, glancing happily now and then into the big brown eyes of a girl by his side. As they neared Forty-seventh Street the girl clutched his arm and was heard to exclaim:

"There he is now! Give it to him!"

Michael saw coming toward him Harry Meyers, also nineteen years old, a son of former Assemblyman Meyers, of 354 West Forty-eighth Street. Michael didn't hesitate a minute, according to the police, but proceeded to "give it to him."

Before his remarks about the Philippines and the Constitution he had said:

"The purchase which this great Exposition commemorates was not the result of conquest and came not at the end of war. Not a gun was fired, not a life was lost. A lawyer, not a soldier, made the transfer. The glory of that transfer is one of the laurels of our profession."

"Talk about my girl, will you?" he shouted as he struck Meyers in the right eye and landed on his left jaw with a right swing.

Meyers was game, but he was no match for Kelleher, who is much the larger. Meyers's face was being beaten badly when the girl rushed between them.

"That's enough, Mike!" she called out; "he's got all he deserves."

But "Mike" renewed the attack. Detective Sergt. Kuhn rushed up and placed Keleher under arrest.

Meyers denied that he had spoken ill of the young woman. After Keleher had been locked up on a charge of assault he said the young woman was Miss Emma Ende, a stenographer.

Wants America to Share Africa.

RICHMOND, Ind., Sept. 28.—Bishop Hartzell, for twenty years a Methodist Bishop in Africa, declared in an address delivered here to-day that he hoped to see the time when the American flag would float over a portion of African territory. Africa, he said, could be divided by the great nations of the earth without war.

ASTOR PLACE AND FOURTH AVENUE

CORBIN STANDS BY HIS GUNS ON MARRIAGE TALK

Officers Should Give of Their Best to Country, He Says.

BIDS PRESIDENT GOOD-BYE

Gen. Corbin Sails on Saturday to Assume Command in the Philippines—Delivers Manassas Report.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Gen. Corbin came to Washington to-day to pay parting calls. He leaves New York at noon next Saturday for the Philippines. He visited the White House and bade the President good-bye, and called also on Secretary Taft, Gen. Chaffee, Assistant Secretary Oliver, Col. Edwards, the Chief of the Insular Bureau, and many others with whom for many years he has been associated in the War Department.

His principal errand to Washington was to present to the Secretary of War his report of the recent army manoeuvres at Manassas and the report of the Chief Umpire, Col. Arthur Wagner. Gen. Corbin will relinquish command of the Division of the Atlantic at noon Saturday, and at the same time command of the Department of the East, which will be assumed by Gen. Frederick Grant. The command of the Division of the Atlantic will devolve on Gen. Grant as the senior officer in command until the arrival of Gen. James F. Wade from the Philippines.

Gen. Corbin, in speaking of some of the criticism which has been made of the comment he made in his annual report on the marriage of young officers in the army, said:

"There is no man living who is more in favor of marriage and of the home and family than I am. I approve of marriage under proper circumstances in the army and out. But I believe officers of the army should be required to give of their best to the service of their country, and that they should not be permitted to incumber their lives with responsibilities which prevent their attainment of this excellence of service.

"Sentiment is a very pretty thing, but once in a while it is well to consider facts. When they obtrude themselves upon the married state and threaten its happiness they are very stubborn things.

"I have seen a quantity of sentimental rot that was intended as answers to things I was supposed to have said. The alleged quotations from my order and my conversation did suffice in truth to make me appear ridiculous. If the papers would confine themselves to the discussion of what I have actually said, I would have no complaint to make. I am quite sure I am right and perfectly content to face the issue."

STEEL TRUST TO RETALIATE.

Reported Answer to Union Talk of a Sympathetic Strike.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 28.—It was learned to-day that at the recent conference between President T. J. Shaffer of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers and President A. C. Dinkey of the Carnegie Steel Company the latter informed President Shaffer that it was too late to reopen negotiations on the wage scale at the Youngstown and Girard plants, as the company is now operating the plants satisfactorily.

It is said that the Amalgamated officials have been notified that if the association declares a sympathetic strike, as has been rumored would be done, retaliatory measures will be adopted by the United States corporation, and the Amalgamated Association will be ignored at all plants controlled by the corporation.

WAS JUST OUT OF PRISON.

Ex-Convict Caught Stealing Furs from Express Wagon.

After an exciting pursuit for five blocks a man who said he was Charles Smith, twenty-two years old, who had just got out of prison, was arrested by detectives of the Mercer Street Station just before midnight last night. Smith is alleged to have taken a box of furs from the rear of a wagon in front of the American Express Company's office at 15 East Fourth Street. He was seen by Frank Dollery, a clerk employed in the office, as he started to run off with the box.

Dollery shouted and started in pursuit. Smith ran through Fourth Street to Astor Place and then turned down Lafayette Place. He saw that he was hampered by his burden and dropped the box in Astor Place. Dollery caught up with him at Eighth Street, and after a short tussle threw him to the ground, where he held him until Detectives Parker and Kenny of the Mercer Street Station came up.

TOLSTOY'S BROTHER DEAD.

Was an Epicure, but His Daughters Adopted Their Uncle's Ideas.

MOSCOW, Sept. 28.—Count Sergius Tolstoy, the brother of Count Leo, is dead. He was the very antithesis of Count Leo, residing on his estate in lordly style and living the life of a self-indulgent epicure, while his brother, clad in homespun, leads the life of an ascetic.

Count Sergius had two daughters, who are passionate admirers of their uncle, and whose ideas they adopted in refusing to marry, one of them selecting a coachman as her mate.

Georgia's Boll Weevil Scare.

COVINGTON, Ga., Sept. 28.—The supposed boll weevil found on a plantation in the eastern part of this county, upon comparison with the real Mexican boll weevil proves to be an entirely different insect. It is of a different color and very much larger than the Mexican weevil. There are, however, serious apprehensions of its destructive effects.

STABBED WIFE AND SELF.

Newark Couple's Last Quarrel Fatal to Man, at Least.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, Sept. 28.—Philip Stribel, sixty-three years old, of 82 Kossuth Street, fatally stabbed his wife, Therese, fifty years old, on the rear porch of their home last night. Then he thrust the knife into his own heart, dying instantly. The couple's sixteen-year-old daughter tried to wrest the knife from her father, and was painfully cut in the hand. The mother was taken to St. James's Hospital, where it is said she cannot recover.

The stabbing was the result of a long series of quarrels. Stribel had accused his wife of disorderly conduct in the Third Precinct Court on Monday, and she had been held for the Grand Jury. Mrs. Stribel was released on bail to-day, and when she returned home to get some of her clothing she was attacked by her husband.

AMERICANS WERE DEFEATED

Greater New Yorks and Bostons Failed to Score Against Detroit and Cleveland.

Only one Eastern team, the Bostons of the National League, was successful in the ten games played in the major leagues yesterday. With three changes on the team the New York Nationals were easily defeated by the Chicagos, while two reverses for Pittsburg and a victory for Cincinnati placed Kelley's men ahead of the Pittsburgs in the championship standing. Three teams were shut out in the American League, and all by the same score, the Greater New Yorks by Detroit, Boston by Cleveland, and Philadelphia by St. Louis. The Quakers lost twice, which enabled the Clevelands to advance to fourth position. Summary follows:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

New Yorks Play Another Listless Game and Are Easily Beaten.

The listless play of the New Yorks in Tuesday's game with Chicago affected the attendance at the Polo Grounds considerably yesterday, and the contest, so far as McGraw's men were concerned, was no more interesting than the one of the previous day. With McGraw, Bresnahan, and Gilbert absent, a victory could hardly be expected over the Chicagos, if the latter batted as well as they did in the first game and fielded in any kind of shape. The Western players happened to be on edge in the way of fielding, and they hit Wiltse good and hard. The result was they came out of the conflict leaders by a score of 7 to 2. While Briggs gave as many bases on called balls as Wiltse, the New Yorks were totally unable to gauge his delivery, and of the five safe hits made off him only two were credited to the outfield.

Dahlen's low throw to first base and Bowerman's wide throw to the plate were chiefly responsible for Chicago's run in the first inning, and singles by McChesney and Hoffman, Kling's out, and a base on balls gave the visitors another run in the second. A bunt, a single, and Chance's hit to Devlin scored Hoffman in the fifth, after the batter had been caught between third base and the plate. Tinker made one of the longest hits of the season to right field and made the circuit of the bases, and in the seventh inning Briggs batted the ball into the right field seats for another home run. Then a base on balls, Casey's sacrifice, Bowerman's fumble, Tinker's base on balls, and the latter's steal resulted in two more runs in the same inning.

The New Yorks scored their two runs in the third inning, and after that not a runner got as far as third base. Dunn waited patiently and got to first on four bad balls, and Evers's fumble gave Warner a base. Wiltse made a neat sacrifice, and then Donlin raised the first shout of the day of hitting the ball to right field for two bases and scoring two runs. The scores:

BOSTON TAKES TWO GAMES.

BOSTON, Sept. 28.—The crippled Pittsburg team lost both games to-day by scores of 4 to 3 and 4 to 0. The fielding was very loose and the hitting far from clean in both games. The infielding of Delehanty and Lauterborn and Barclay's base running were the redeeming features. The second game was called in the middle of the seventh inning on account of darkness. Scores:

Eastern League Season Ends.

The Eastern League finished its season yesterday, with Buffalo an easy winner, Baltimore second, Jersey City third, and Newark fourth. The circuit remained intact, although the season financially resulted in a loss to several of the clubs. Buffalo and Baltimore were the largest money-makers, with Jersey City and Newark next in order. The final games yesterday resulted as follows:

AMERICAN TENNIS PLAYERS WIN

Grant and Wright Take Doubles Event in German Tournament.

That an American tennis team—Wylie C. Grant and Irving C. Wright—should capture the great doubles event at the international championship tournament at Homburg, Germany, has caused general enthusiasm among the tennis followers on this side of the Atlantic. The famous cups for this event are the gift of William Rhinelander Stewart of New York. After coming through a hard draw the Americans met one of England's most famous pairs in the finals—Dr. W. V. Eaves and G. C. Ball-Greene. The match lasted through four of the fastest sort of sets, and the Americans finally triumphed at 3—6, 8—6, 6—3, 6—2. It is the second consecutive year that a pair of Americans have won what is regarded as the greatest tournament of all Europe, as Grant, paired with Robert Le Roy, the Columbia University student, gained the title and trophy last season.

In a letter to a friend in this country a spectator of the competition says: "The combination of Eaves, who has played in the United States, and Ball-Greene was stronger than Ritchie and Ball-Greene, who were beaten by Grant and Le Roy last year. There was tremendous excitement, as there were hundreds of Americans present, who 'rooted' for our boys to win. Grant, after the first set, played magnificently. His service, the reverse twist, and smashing were very fine, and Irving Wright, the Princeton boy, never played such tennis before. The enthusiasm among the Americans was so great that both Grant and Wright were literally carried off the court after winning the match. The German Emperor started the fashion of applauding the Americans, and after that all through the meeting the Germans were with Grant and Wright."

In the singles of the Hamburg tournament Grant, who is the American indoor champion, came up to the finals. In the semi-finals Grant met Dr. Eaves. The American even surprised his most ardent admirers, and by sheer brilliancy of his attacking game at the net, which combined rapid passing and smashing, won from the Englishman in two prolonged deuce sets, the score being 13—11, 7—5. Ball-Greene came up to the final on the other side of the draw over Schmidt-Knatz, a German expert, who withdrew. Grant forced the Briton to play hard tennis in the first set, and was within a point of taking it, but was finally beaten out at 9—7, 6—2, 6—3.

Miss Elizabeth H. Moore, the National exchampion, made but a poor showing in the women's singles. She came only as far as the second round, in which the American girl was beaten by one of the German women, Fraulein Berton. Miss Moore was away off her game in the opening set, and despite good racquet work, which forced the game to deuce, she was beaten at 6—0, 9—7. In the mixed doubles Miss Moore and Wylie C. Grant came up to the finals only to be beaten by the English pair, Miss Lowther and G. C. Ball-Greene, the score being rather one-sided at 6—4, 6—2.

Kings County Tennis Club Matches.

All of the classes had an inning yesterday in the Autumn tennis tournament of the Kings County Tennis Club. The fine dirt courts at the junction of Kingston Avenue and Bergen Street, Brooklyn, were in the best condition, and the contests in the round robin attracted many of the local experts. There was one upset recorded, as the Canadian ex-champion, Frederick G. Anderson, met defeat in straight sets. The victory was scored by Samuel A. Westfall, the score being 6—3, 6—3, 6—4. Westfall played the ball cleverly to the feet of the Canadian, and also developed a long low drive that sent the ball skidding along for passes. Henry Mollenhauer had a hard match with Frederick W. Heitkamp, which was continued through two grueling sets. The summary:

First Class—Round Robin, Men's Singles.—Samuel A. Westfall defeated Frederick G. Anderson, 6—3, 6—3, 6—4; Henry W. Mollenhauer defeated Frederick W. Heitkamp, 6—3, 5—7, 6—4, 6—3.

Second Class—Men's Singles.—First Round—H. Martin defeated H. A. Clinkenbroomer, 6—2, 6—4.

Third Class—Men's Singles.—First Round—Ferris defeated Miller, 6—2, 6—1.

Another Relay Team Suspended.

The Registration Committee of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union yesterday suspended the Dominican relay team, which competed at the Diocesan Union games at Belleville, N. J., Sept. 10, for allowing to compete on its team under the name of J. Riley, J. J. McEntee, who was declared a professional Sept. 6 for his competition at the Brewers' games Aug. 21. The names of the men on the team are Edward Curran, P. A. Segan, John Riley, (J. J. McEntee,) and Mr. Sweeney.

The games scheduled for Celtic Park Oct. 9 have not as yet been sanctioned by the Registration Committee.

Yale Freshmen Win Wrestling Bouts.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 28.—The annual wrestling match between sophomores and freshmen of Yale was held to-night on the campus. As heretofore the rush was managed by the senior class, who appointed Stuyvesant Fish, Jr., Captain; J. J. Hogan of the football eleven, Ralph J. Bloomer, and other athletes as marshals and officials.

For the first time in ten years the freshmen class was victorious in a majority of the wrestling matches. They won the lightweight and middleweight bouts, the sophomores securing the heavyweight bout.

SWARTHMORE SCORES ON PENN

The Work of the Morningside Eleven Showed Improvement Over the Previous Game—Other Scores.

Yale, Cornell, and Princeton played their opening games of the season yesterday, and in each case the result was all that could be desired as far as actual victory was concerned, but the usual wail from the coaches about this and that fault was heard.

In no case have the several bands of adherents cause for alarm as a result of yesterday's games, except possibly at Pennsylvania. The Swarthmore College eleven scored on the Red and Blue, and the latter in turn made but one touch-down, though they won by virtue of the additional two points. Columbia's team showed improvement over the opening game on Saturday.

COLUMBIA, 28; F. AND M., 0.

The Columbia football team defeated Franklin and Marshall College yesterday at American League Park by a score of 28 to 0. The Blue and White eleven seemed to have their own way in every particular. Although the Pennsylvanians were by no means a light team, Columbia gained at will through the line, and when it came to defense held the visitors without difficulty. Morley's eleven played far better football than they did in last Saturday's game with Union. They were fast, aggressive, and played well together.

By a series of line plunges the first score was made by Stangland, who was pushed over for a touch-down. Duell failed at goal. The next score was made by Duell, who, carrying the ball down the field in four consecutive rushes, went over for a tally and kicked the resultant goal. Stangland skirted right end for a thirty-yard run and a touch-down. No goal.

Sam Smyth was the hero of the second half. On a poor punt by Post, who had taken Muir's place at right end for Columbia, Shuford fumbled the ball at his own forty-yard line. Smyth picked up the ball and then fell himself. Stangland pulled him to his feet and the crowd was treated to a sight of the fat centre man running forty yards for a touch-down. Schultz kicked goal. The final tally was made by Helmrich, assisted by Tintner. Post kicked the goal. Line up:

YALE, 22; WESLEYAN, 0.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 28.—Yale defeated Wesleyan this afternoon on the Yale Field by the score of 22 to 0, opening Yale's football season. In appearance the Wesleyan players' team were like mere boys compared with Yale's, but Yale made only two touch-downs in each half. There was little of the speed and certainty in the play that Yale in former years has exhibited, and although the game was the first one of the season, it was more ragged than expected. Yale was several times penalized for holding and offside playing by the forwards. Fumbling was frequent. The line up:

ODELLISM.

President CLEVELAND observed in his veto of the Texas Seed bill that while it was undoubtedly the duty of the people to support the Government, it was no part of the duty of the Government to support the people. The Republican theory of Government is the exact contrary of Mr. CLEVELAND'S. The protective tariff is founded on this theory, the extravagant pension system springs from it. But it is not all the people that come in for Republican Government bounty—only the favored friends and supporters of the party. Attorney General CUNNEEN in his effective reply to Gov. ODELL exhibits the system in action. The Beet Sugar bill authorized the payment out of the public funds of one-half a cent a pound bounty to manufacturers of sugar made from beets grown in 1903. Mr. CUNNEEN officially advised the Governor that the bill was unconstitutional, being in conflict with the section prohibiting the use of the credit or the money of the State in aid of private undertakings. Gov. ODELL signed the bill, making it a law. Under this act and the similar act of 1902 the Binghamton Beet Sugar Company has received $21,705, and the Empire State Beet Sugar Company $27,862. Almost $50,000 was paid out to these two private concerns, and Gov. ODELL signed a third bill this year appropriating $60,000 more.

The opinion of the Attorney General should be controlling with the Executive on points of law and constitutionality. Does Gov. ODELL keep a private Attorney General when a Democrat happens to hold the public office?

Again, when the Furnaceville Iron Company put in a claim for extra compensation, amounting to $18,618, for excavating rock unexpectedly found in a section of canal where they had submitted bids based on earth excavation exclusively, the Canal Board first rejected it, and on a rehearing allowed it, Attorney General CUNNEEN alone ruling in the negative. He produced a dozen witnesses, men employed by the contractors on the work, who swore that no rock was found in that canal section. There are good friends of the Odell administration in the Furnaceville Iron Company. They must be supported.

The Legislature last Winter created a board of special examiners and appraisers for the canal. There is no public need for such a board, but three of Gov. ODELL'S friends needed the salary. They get it—$5,000 each. Present State officials and their assistants could have done the work these men will undertake, but that would have been inconsistent with the Republican theory of government, and with the principles of Odellism.

The Democratic platform says the "personal integrity" of BENJAMIN B. ODELL is under suspicion. That is perhaps an unwarranted statement. But his administration of the office of Governor has certainly proved him to be unfaithful to a great public trust. The facts stated by Attorney General CUNNEEN are evidence of his unfaithfulness.

THE U. S. AND CHAMBERLAINISM.

There is a tone of triumph, touched with native sauciness, in the remarkable speech of Lord ROSEBERY at Lincoln on the 21st. It was in purpose a review of and an answer to Mr. CHAMBERLAIN'S elaborate effort at Welbeck, but it went pretty well over the entire ground of the controversy raised by the Chamberlain movement.

When Mr. CHAMBERLAIN advanced his first plan, he declared, and this it was that entitled him to a hearing, that the colonies had made an offer of a trade arrangement with the mother country, and that the maintenance of the empire depended on the acceptance of that offer. We pointed out at the time that Mr. CHAMBERLAIN had omitted to state what the offer was, and had neglected to give the evidence that it had been made. This point was not pressed in the confused controversy that followed, the fate of the Unionist Party through the dissensions aroused by Mr. CHAMBERLAIN apparently obscuring its importance. But during the past Summer Lord ROSEBERY urged this curious omission with much force, and Mr. CHAMBERLAIN undertook to meet the situation by referring his opponents to the communication of the Colonial Premiers in the conference of 1902. Lord ROSEBERY takes him up with great readiness. He cites the resolution of the Premiers as follows:

> That the Prime Ministers of the colonies urge upon his Majesty's Government the expediency of granting in the United Kingdom preferential treatment to the products and manufactures of the colonies, either by exemption from or reduction of the duties now or hereafter imposed.

Lord ROSEBERY'S comment is as pertinent as it is amusing:

> That, you will see, is a recommendation to us to do something, but the essence of an offer is that the offerer is going to do something. A recommendation is not an offer. I will give you a very simple illustration from a very familiar institution—the institution of marriage. We all know what an offer of marriage is, but I am bound to say that if a young gentleman had been paying attentions to a young lady, and was supposed to be coming to the point, and she was awaiting his offer with some expectation and blushing anticipation, she would be somewhat surprised at his offer if it was this—that he gave her a recommendation to marry.

This is a matter in which the American people are deeply interested. Whatever the effect on the British colonies or on the home country of Mr. CHAMBERLAIN'S scheme of protection, it would unquestionably tend for the time to interfere with American trade, especially our trade with the Dominion of Canada and with the United Kingdom. It would amount to a bounty on Canadian exports to England as compared with our own, while the reduction of duties on imports into Canada from England would tend to turn the Canadian purchasers to the English market. At present there is no evidence of any value that Canada will give a practical support to Chamberlainism. But the opposition party in the Dominion is advocating that policy, and it is well worth while to consider our own situation and the policy we should adopt to meet the possible change in that of Canada.

There is one way in which it can completely be met. Reasonable reciprocity with Canada would kill Chamberlainism in its cradle. The markets of the States are for nearly everything except grain far more valuable to Canada than the markets of England both to sell in and to buy in. If we have the sense to lower the barriers to our markets, we can make sure of Canadian trade, can set Canada against Chamberlainism, and render the success of that scheme in England hopeless. It is the consciousness of this situation that gives so much vigor and persistency to the reciprocity sentiment in New England. It would be a curious and interesting fact in world politics if the outcome of the most exciting political movement in England for twenty years should be determined by the votes at an American election, but that is not in the least beyond the range of possibility.

CITIZENS AND WARDS.

Mr. HAGERMAN of St. Louis chose an unusual and rather invidious theme for his discourse as President of the American Bar Association. It was a subject that might very well have been avoided in the heat of a Presidential canvass in which it is more or less an issue. Apart from that consideration we cannot see that Mr. HAGERMAN had anything especially illuminating to say about it. It is not historically true that the status of the Filipinos is a novelty under our system. Why should Mr. HAGERMAN say that "Territories can only be permanently held upon condition that the residents and inhabitants shall be citizens of the United States"? Surely he knows that the aboriginal inhabitants of this country, whose territory we have "held" for periods varying from one century, in the case of the Louisiana Purchase, to nearly three centuries in the cases of the oldest settlements on the Atlantic Coast, have never been treated or considered as citizens, but always and only as wards. That is to say, they have occupied, with that degree of "permanence," the relation toward the Government of the whites that the Filipinos occupy now. We think those anti-imperialists who insist that we can hold territories only for the purpose of converting them into States more logical and more reasonable than he who, while disclaiming any demand for even ultimate Statehood, still demands immediate citizenship.

To anybody who has really striven to understand the situation in the Philippines the very mention of "the Filipino question" becomes very tiresome. There are, in fact, as many Filipino questions as there are tribes in the Philippines, and to undertake the settlement of all of them upon the same basis betrays ignorance and confusion. To demand the same treatment for the Tagalogs of Luzon, for example, the Mohammedans of Mindanao, with their dattos, and the Banaue head hunters is to be very ridiculous. If Mr. HAGERMAN should read, for instance, Mr. SAVAGE LANDOR'S book, "The Gems of the East," we are confident that he would stop talking in the way in which he is talking now.

With regard to the tariff we quite agree with Mr. HAGERMAN that the inhabitants of the Philippines should be brought "within the zone of free trade which has heretofore included all our States and Territories," but we by no means agree with him that they "must" be so brought. It is not because of any abstract or "constitutional" right to free trade that belongs to persons whose government is by the Constitution relegated to the unhampered discretion of Congress that they should have it, but because it is expedient for them and consequently for us. It is by granting free trade to the islanders that we can best promote their prosperity, and thus convert them into profitable possessions. To make them pay, as soon as possible and as much as possible, is to our interest and to theirs. But the emphatic protest of all our agents in the Philippines, civil and military, against giving or promising either independence or self-government to the Filipinos will have its effect upon sensible Americans. It is only in the classic shades of Cambridge that a man's opinions upon the problems of the Philippines can be airily dismissed upon the very ground that he knows what he is talking about. Elsewhere people will content themselves with President MCKINLEY'S safe and prudent promise of a Government for the islands "in which the natives shall be admitted to the largest practicable participation."

ENGLAND AND TIBET.

There is always a comic side to the trade wars which a big nation finds itself compelled to wage against a little nation. We dare say there was such a side to "King Philip's war," although the aborigines possibly had no chronicler capable of bringing it out, and certainly had none capable of obtaining the attention of mankind.

But the comic aspect of the trade war waged by big Great Britain against little Tibet is already very much in evidence. We printed, only three days ago, the solemn terms of the treaty between the two Powers, or rather between the Power and the impotence. From this it appeared that Great Britain was chiefly pained by the Tibetan disregard of the treaty between Great Britain and China, China being Tibet's suzerain, and had really gone to war, or at least sent a "mission," to rebuke and chastise Tibet's insubordination in failing to fulfill China's engagements. But the very next day appears an official Chinese disclaimer of the British proceedings, and a Chinese repudiation of the treaty which Great Britain had extorted ostensibly as the agent and best friend of China. The disclaimer and repudiation will doubtless be attributed in London to Russian influence, and perhaps justly so. And of course they will make no practical difference. The path of Indian or Cingalese "brick tea" is now made plain into the heart of the forbidden country, and freed alike from the annoyance of forts and the obstruction of Custom Houses. But all the same Great Britain has provided a square meal for the Continental cynics.

THE POPE AND "FREETHINKING."

There is a touch of naïveté in the Pope's official complaint of the Congress of Freethinkers at Rome. Why, in effect he pathetically inquires, should these people meet, of all places, in the place "near" which, in the language of diplomacy, is the Holy See and headquarters of the faith once delivered to the saints?

Really, his Holiness ought to see that is just why. Just as the modernists, twenty years ago, selected a site for the statue of GIORDANO BRUNO where they thought that it would give most pain to the faithful, similarly they now select the place in which publicly to freethink in which they think that freethinking will attract most horror, and consequently most notice. There is a great deal of freethinking going on out in St. Louis without attracting the slightest attention. But nobody can publicly freethink in Rome without incurring a certain amount of disapprobation which is in the nature of an advertisement. The fond hope of those who chose the Eternal City as the site of the freethinking congress was, without doubt, that they might be able to "get a rise out of the old man." That fondest hope has been realized. The solemn Papal denunciation is precisely the kind of advertisement which they rather fondly hoped than seriously expected. We dislike to say that his Holiness has fallen into a trap. But if he had set out to do what the freethinkers desired him to do, he could not have done it better.

MILITIAMEN AND MOBS.

The threatened and recommended disbandment of a company of Alabama militia for collusion with a lynching mob follows hard upon the like disciplinary movement in respect to a body of Georgian militia. In each case, and conspicuously in the Georgian case, the militiamen appeared like cowards. But in neither case does it appear that they were cowards. In each case it rather appears that the militia were so much in sympathy with the purposes of the mob that they could not safely be intrusted with the preservation of order in any case in which local or neighborhood sympathies, in which the militiamen necessarily shared, were strongly excited.

"This is a moral that runs at large." It really imports that, not only with respect to lynching of negroes in the South, but with respect to "labor troubles" in the North, the police force that can alone be trusted is a force which does not partake of local prejudices or local sympathies, a force which knows nothing but its orders, and of which the orders aim only at the supremacy of law and the suppression of disorder, no matter on what plea the disorder is raised. There is only one such force in this country, and that is the United States Army.

MR. LODGE'S POSER.

Senator LODGE has discovered what he seems to think is a terrible weakness in the position of the Democratic Party. He says it cannot be in favor of reciprocity because it believes in reduction of the tariff. If you reduce the duties, you've got nothing to trade on.

It does not seem a very difficult situation to deal with. The average duties on taxed goods at present are nearly 50 per cent.; there will for a long while be chances in plenty to make bargains in reciprocity. If the time comes that a general reduction is more advantageous than partial reduction, in spots, by treaties, that task will not be hard either. Relief from taxation on the materials of industry, on food, on the necessaries of life, especially for the working classes, would be a good thing whether by legislation or treaty; that is common sense doctrine which the Democratic Party should adopt whether it does or not.

Meanwhile Mr. LODGE might find time to explain the motives of the Republicans who put on high taxes in the Dingley bill under the pretext that they would be taken off by treaties, and then killed the treaties. That is bad faith as well as bad economy.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

—We are reproved by one who declares himself an admirer as well as a reader of THE TIMES because, in commenting the other day upon the tragical consequences of a young Ohio missionary's description of social conditions in the North Carolina mountains, we expressed a mild regret that the mountaineers, by their resort to shotguns when a mere statement of facts, if there had been any to state, would have been enough to refute the young woman's charges, went far toward proving that her accusations, or, rather, her descriptions, were fairly accurate. "No such conditions as her narration indicated," declares our correspondent, "exist anywhere in North Carolina, and the people of the State, and that section especially, are justly indignant at the young lady's false statements and will not permit her to continue to teach. That she will be protected from bodily harm has been fully shown by bloodshed, which is, indeed, a sad fact, but the long list of dead and injured to which you refer is a mistake. What blood has been shed was to protect the lady and not because the people of North Carolina are as barbarous as lots of people seem to think. I think it is high time that reference to the people of the South as heathens or barbarians be stopped." We have ourselves seen no such references, and certainly have never made them. What we and our neighbors, however, would never dream of saying about "the people of the South," we might well find and take occasion to say about this or that person, or this or that group of persons, in the South, and with as little compunction as we would feel in applying the same terms to the Northerners who deserved them. Does our correspondent deny the existence of heathenism and barbarism in the South? Would that we could do the same for this part of the country! And must we admit that all is well in the North Carolina mountains because there are men there who will risk life and take it in defending a tactless and indiscreet young woman from treatment more severe than they thought her faults deserved? Really, we do not feel the compulsion.

—Moved to self-examination by our recent raising of the question of luncheon or no luncheon, The Nashville American divulges some very interesting information in regard to the habits prevalent in its own city. "Our business men," it says, "have arranged their affairs in such an economical manner that they take lunch at anywhere from 12 to 2:30 o'clock. Some of them at this time entertain their stomachs to pie, sweet milk, and mackerel, and take four and one-half minutes of their valuable time for this diversion, while others go home and take an hour and a half to two hours for their meal, and fortify themselves, in addition, with a light nap of fifteen to twenty minutes." Of the second class The American quaintly says, "This kind live longer than the other, and treat their families and themselves better, but they do not make so much money." It ventures upon no attempt to balance these advantages, but only pleads with the Nashvillians to come to an understanding and all take their luncheons at the same time, in order that uncertainty as to when they will be so engaged may no longer cause a practical interruption of the city's business for something like two and a half hours after noon. That is a trouble of which we never heard any complaint in New York, and, unknown to us, too, is the luncheon menu of pie, sweet milk, and mackerel. The items are familiar, but their order must be peculiar to Tennessee, and it must account for the possibility, otherwise incredible, of making a meal so diversified in four and a half minutes. Many of us lunch as quickly, but with us such speed is attained only by whole-hearted devotion to a single viand.

—Of course, the thirty-five young Americans who are going to Oxford at the postmortem expense of CECIL RHODES sailed from Boston. The sort of queerness that is predicated of any American who starts for Europe from Boston instead of from New York was the inevitable characteristic of boys who could see in an Oxford education superiorities to that to be obtained in our own colleges, and naturally there was no trouble in persuading them all to begin their journey from that port. We do not understand such boys, any more than we understand Boston, but presumably they, like it, have many admirable qualities, and we extend to them our sincerest wishes that they find their sojourn at the ancient fount of British learning equally pleasant and profitable. Wishes, however, are not expectations, and, remembering the vast amount of British criticism to which the peculiarities and policies of Oxford have recently been subjected, we have some difficulty in imagining just what it is that these heroic thirty-five are going out for to seek, or what they think they will be able to do, after their return, with what they get there. Anyhow, they did well to sail from Boston. That was their fated point of departure, and Fate knows her business.

WOMEN SMOKE! WHY NOT?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Anent the incident of a "smoking woman," one might ask, Is imperialism rampant in New York City, too? According to the policeman, who probably has his "orders," Fifth Avenue must be a reserve for "gentlemen only," who indulge in the weed, whether afoot or in the odorous "auto." Why not have a reserve designated for the ladies? Say the more retired Madison Avenue or one of the broader public ways in the upper west side. Cortes! it is grossly inconsistent with the spirit of American democracy for any municipal authority to force such a discrimination upon the people with regard to what is almost universally considered a harmless pastime. What is "sauce for the goose" should be "sauce for the gander" also.

But, seriously, is there one law written or unwritten for men and another for women in this matter? If so, upon what ground does it rest? Is it a proper thing for men to smoke and an improper thing for women? If so, will some one enlighten us as to the merits of the question? If it is a decent, clean, uninjurious practice for a man to burn a roll of tobacco in his mouth—to scatter the products of such burning promiscuously about as he walks or rides, why is it not also a decent, clean, &c., thing for a woman to do? Moreover, and, it might be said, especially, if smoking is a delightful thing, an exquisite enjoyment, as "The Reveries of a Bachelor" would have us believe, why should our divinely appointed helpmeet and companion be debarred from joining us in the enjoyment?

Is there any principle, moral or physical, that we masculines may assert in extenuation of the gross selfishness exhibited in thus appropriating to our own use what the labor of women has much to do with in producing? H. S. D.

Jersey City, Sept. 28, 1904.

Lodge and Reciprocity.

From The Waterbury (Conn.) American. (Rep.)

We get the impression that Senator Lodge is in favor of just enough reciprocity to carry the election.

PROTECTION AND ADVERTISING.

Should a Smoker Not Get Havana Tobacco in a Domestic Cigar?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am a smoker and am very fond of an imported cigar, but to my regret my means don't permit me to indulge in this luxury; otherwise I have no interest in the cigar business, but I cannot help thinking that the attempt of a number of cigar manufacturers to secure Government aid for the purpose of palming off their spurious and adulterate product on unsuspecting smokers as the real Cuban article is the greatest effrontery I have ever heard of.

All States have pure food laws for the protection of the consumer; the National Government has a corps of chemists at work, whose duty it is to examine all imported food products for their purity and wholesomeness; we have laws to prevent oleomargarine—which is a cheap and wholesome article—from being sold as butter, and now a number of manufacturers ask the Government to help them by some trickery to sell their inferior cigars as the pure Cuban-made article. Has anything more shameless ever been heard before?

There are quite a number of manufacturers here and elsewhere who use nothing else but good Havana tobacco for their cigars; they sell their product under their own brands, and each box bears their firm name, thereby plainly showing that it is a domestic-made article; but these cigars are of such excellent quality that most of these manufacturers have grown almost rich, and the demand for their goods is often greater than they can supply, thus proving that good honestly made cigars can be manufactured and profitably sold in this country; no attempt is ever made to sell these cigars as imported; on the contrary, they are sold as the product of B in New York or of C in Key West, &c., and if the Government would extend its aid to the manufacturers of bogus Havana cigars put up in boxes with bogus labels the home manufacturer of a good honest cigar which he sells under his own label and his own name would probably suffer more than the importer.

The man who prefers the real imported article and is willing to pay for it cannot be deceived anyway, even if a new revenue stamp of smaller size is put on the box; furthermore, the law requires that each imported article has in some practical way to bear an inscription, showing its place of origin, and if the smaller stamp is adopted nothing can prevent the importer from putting on the lids of the boxes a conspicuous label or band bearing the legend: "Made in Cuba." Such a label or band would be just as effective as the present pink stamp, and the manufacturer of bogus Havana cigars would be no better off than he is now.

Looking at the case from the standpoint of public morality it is difficult to comprehend how the Government can openly enter into a conspiracy with a number of unscrupulous manufacturers for the purpose of practicing a species of deception on the people which ought to be rather punished, especially in view of the fact that such a proceeding would injure a number of domestic manufacturers who have built up a good name and reputation by furnishing us a good honest cigar under their own name and label. COMMUTERS IN FOR TROUBLE.

Should Be Careful or They May Feel Sharp Womanly Elbows.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Many people beside myself find it most difficult to get to their places of business if their ways lead them through Liberty or Cortlandt Street down toward West Street in the morning, on account of the incoming "Jerseyites," who haven't the slightest regard for why one but themselves, take up the whole width of the sidewalk, and push those poor things who happen to live in this little town "any old way."

I have a pair of good strong arms, and am blessed with nice sharp elbows, and I plead guilty to having (in pure desperation) many times sent my left elbow into the sides of a few of these manly (?) Jerseyites, and am happy to think that the touch has been a little more severe than a mosquito bite. But I am getting tired; have put up with this thing for three years; am getting lame from being knocked about; so if you will kindly put this nice little letter in your paper perhaps we business women will be allowed "a little more road."

No Need for Apprehension.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We hear a good deal about the apprehension of some timid and benighted souls that Mr. Roosevelt is a man of war, and is to be dreaded on account of his love of war and his aggressive disposition. But does not the fact that he has made a mere doctor of medicine a Major General of the army, jumping him over the heads of a long list of trained soldiers, give the lie to the assertion that Mr. Roosevelt is a fierce and untamable warrior, except when the exigencies of the present political campaign make him lay aside the bellowings of Bellona and lisp the soft talk of peace?

STATUE CRAZE IN ITALY.

Amusing Statistics — Garibaldian Episode—"The Dictator Sleeps."

From The London Pall Mall Gazette.

ROME, Sept. 12.—Very amusing statistics were made not long ago by one who disapproved of the fever to raise a monument in every town to every man who was mentioned in connection with the unity of Italy. Out of an immense list I take those which stand at the head. Between monuments, busts, and tablets, there were 175 to Garibaldi, 153 to Victor Emmanuel, 62 to Cavour, and 47 to Mazzini, while until now Dante has been ignored in Rome.

Strangely enough, Naples has been the last to pay this homage to Garibaldi, although, one would say, she should have been the first, but now that they have made up their minds to do it, nothing can surpass the enthusiasm evinced. The episode they love best to remember is the day, soon after the city was liberated from the Bourbons, in which their hero paid them a visit. He arrived without escort, absolutely alone, unarmed, and in a simple open carriage. The popular fervor was beyond all bounds, and when he passed the citadel, full of Bourbon soldiers, they "presented arms," instead of shooting him as was their duty. He was carried triumphantly to the Palazzo d'Angri, where he showed himself upon the balcony until nature gave out. Still the crowd clamored, and the following device was hit upon. A big board was put out on which was written in immense letters: "The Dictator Sleeps." Like magic the 50,000 admirers became still as death, and for an hour watched that no carriage, cart, or even person, stirred, that the "Dictator" might sleep tranquility, giving an example of self-control almost unequaled.

Discretion a Failure.

From The Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"I was at the husking bee the other day. Great fun."

"Find a red ear?"

"Yes."

"Kiss the prettiest girl?"

"Nope. Didn't dare. All the pretty girls were engaged to husky farmers."

"What did you do?"

"Kissed the homeliest girl."

"Did that give satisfaction?"

"Not a bit of it. Each of the husky farmers felt that I had personally snubbed his best girl."

THE EMBATTLED MISSIONARY.

A Protest Against Criticism by Uninformed Writers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Though I have no closer connection with missions in Turkey than the average Christian in this country, I have read with considerable indignation the letter from "T. G." entitled "Dubious Ethics of Spreading Christianity with Bayonets," which seems to me to exhibit a remarkable degree of complacent ignorance and pious self-satisfaction, which blinds the writer to common justice. Before writing such an essay as this would it not be well for him at least to establish his facts? He confesses: "I am, of course, not aware of the true state of affairs respecting the American missions in Turkey." His premise is a truism, indeed, viz., "Genuine Christianity can never be spread by * * * intensifying racial hatred," but his conclusion that the missionaries are spreading racial hatred is not so obvious. Evidently he has never known any of these missionaries.

It has been my privilege to know two or three of them, and the noble dignity of these men and women, their calm wisdom wrought out through suffering, their long forbearance without complaint in the face of the worst outrages of that irresponsible Turkish Government would, I think, make an impression on "T. G." and on all others who now speak of what they do not know. It is easy for us, out of the midst of our luxury to criticise, less easy to lead heroic lives in devotion to the cause of idealism and Christianity. A few weeks ago I met on a steamer sailing from Naples a pupil of one of these very schools in Brousa, Turkey. During the long voyage I became well acquainted with this young girl, whose father had been murdered by the brutal Turkish soldiery. Yet she never spoke with bitterness about the Government, and constantly spoke of her love for Turkey, and even for the Turkish language above her own Armenian.

I suppose it would not be enough for "T. G." that an American missionary, though of the noblest character, should merely assert, as I have heard more than one assert in reply to such false and ignorant charges as this, that in none of these schools is a word of sedition against the Government taught. On the contrary, every effort is made toward conciliation, though the Government constantly hampers them by forcing them to use antiquated text books, fearing to find heresy in anything dealing with modern science or history.

Let "T. G." remember the President's recent words: "There are many nations which, in the slow procession of the ages have not yet reached that point where the principles which Americans regard as axiomatic obtain any recognition whatever."

It is strange for an American to put more faith in the well-known perfidy of the Turkish Government than in American missionaries who represent some of the most highly developed individuals of our Nation.

For my part I am proud that this Government under Roosevelt has "consistently stood for the broadest spirit of brotherhood in our common humanity, and has held a resolute attitude of protest against every wrong that outraged the civilization of the age, at home or abroad."

As a constant reader of THE TIMES, which I hold to be a fair-minded paper, I ask that this protest against an unjust charge may be published. M. R. H.

"FINANCING FAILURES."

Latest Scheme of Professional Trustees for Robbing Creditors.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

You may or may not pardon me for the suggestion that your article yesterday re "financing failures" is very mild and covers a very small portion of the manner in which this business is conducted, mainly through obtaining false ratings in mercantile agencies, so easy. But this system of fraud is nothing compared with the system of professional lawyers, who make a business of electing professional assignees or trustees in bankruptcy. The average capacity of the referee in bankruptcy and the small salary he receives is a matter which the credit men seem to overlook.

I have recently discovered the latest scheme where professional trustees arrange two different appraisals for the stock of merchandise, which are held back as long as possible and seldom filed in court in time, according to law. If the interested schemers can arrange to buy the stock at 75 per cent. of the low appraisal, as the law provides, and by which the trustee is allowed to sell without permission of the court, then it goes through with great profit to the professional trustees and lawyers. I have in mind a case which was "worked" exactly that way within a week. Another recent case was where we offered the creditors 60 cents on the dollar, but the proposition was balked by the lawyers, and the creditors received thereafter just 20 cents, while the assets when we made the offer were sufficient to pay them 60 cents. Another case was where a stock was just about to be sold to friends of the professional trustee for 75 per cent. of the appraised value, which was $3,750, when a creditor with a claim of $5 objected, the "deal" was stopped, and we afterward found $18,000 worth of goods in the store.

This is the manner in which the bankrupt law is being executed in almost every large city of the United States at the present time and in almost all sections.

"Financing failures" does not represent more than 1 per cent. of the amount stolen from creditors by a certain class of lawyers and professional trustees and assignees.

I make these suggestions from a knowledge gained in the examination and purchase of upward of 400 such stocks, and submit them for only what they are worth.

LIFE AT PORT ARTHUR.

Baltic Squadron Expected There Early in October.

The National Tidende of Copenhagen publishes extracts from a private letter dated Port Arthur, Aug. 16, and written by a young Dane. It runs in part as follows:

"I am not sorry to have remained, as I do not expect to have another chance in my life to see such terribly wonderful sights again. Gen. Stoessel has asked all the inhabitants for their own sakes to take at least six hours' rest per diem, though he never seems to sleep himself. He is always bright and cheery. It would take the Japanese six months to starve us out. We have plenty of flour, tea, and ammunition, but are short of tinned food and cigarettes. The Japs are wonderfully plucky fighters—they stand the heaviest fire quite coolly; young boys, too, of seventeen or eighteen years of age. The explosions of mines, for which we use Whitehead topedoes, are truly awful to see, dismembered bodies flying all around. Thousands of mines have been laid. How will the Japanese fare when they get still nearer? To-day about 3,000 engineers and workmen have started repairing the Retvisan, Sebastopol, and Pobieda, which are badly holed, but we have plenty of material to mend them with. The garrison numbers 34,000 not counting sailors. The Baltic fleet is expected here early in October."

Exceptions to the Freedom.

From The Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Johnny—This is a free country, isn't it, pa?

FAVORS HAGUE CONGRESS PLAN

American Bar Association Approves President Roosevelt's Action.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 28.—At the final session of the Convention of the American Bar Association to-day a resolution was introduced by Ferdinand Shack of New York, and adopted, that the association express its deep gratification at the steps recently taken by the Interparliamentary Union toward the settlement of controversies between nations in the same manner as disputes between individuals are settled, that is, by judgment in accordance with recognized principles of law; and that this association records its great satisfaction at the announcement by the President of the United States of his intention to comply with the request made to him by the Interparliamentary Union that he invite the nations to a conference.

The report of the special committee on Indian legislation embodies the conclusion that "in the majority of the Indian reservations the prompt carrying out of the provisions of the 'severalty act,' approved Feb. 8, 1887, is apparently the best practical solution of the Indian problem." In the arid lands of the Southwest, where there is a different problem to deal with, the committee thinks that the Federal courts should have jurisdiction of all litigation, civil and criminal, to which an Indian is a party.

The report was filed.

The Special Committee on Penal Laws and Prison Discipline reported favorably on the resolution submitted to it two years ago relating to the proposition to establish a laboratory in the Department of Justice at Washington for the study of the criminal, pauper, and defective classes. The report was approved.

In Sympathy with Congress Idea.

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Sept. 28.—The conference of the Institute of International Law to-day discussed President Roosevelt's announcement that he will shortly call a second Peace Conference at The Hague. While the conference did not pass a further, definite resolution on the subject, it gave evidence of undoubted sympathy with this effort to further the cause of arbitration.

JUDGE PARKER'S LETTER.

A Masterly Letter.

From The Buffalo Enquirer, (Dem.)

The term masterly is one which may be applied without exaggeration and in entire sincerity to the acceptance letter considered as a whole and in every specific detail. It is a statesmanlike paper in every regard, and it admirably meets the full needs of the occasion.

The Contrast.

From The Troy Press, (Dem.)

Between the candidates in all the differences one might expect between a typical Judge and a typical jingoist; and the contrast between the letters is as vivid and vital as that between the men themselves.

Its Perfect Sincerity.

From The Pittsburg Post, (Dem.)

No one can rise from the thoughtful perusal of Judge Parker's letter without noting the absence of political bombast and claptrap, its perfect sincerity and plainness, and its thorough accord with the best aspirations of the American people.

The Letter of a Statesman.

From The Columbia (S. C.) State, (Dem.)

It is the letter of a statesman, moderate in language, yet rigid in purpose, and here and there flashing fire. No honest American can fear the elevation of such a man to a place of power and influence. He must appeal strongly to the sober independent.

The True Leader.

From The Saratoga Springs Sun, (Dem.)

To Democrats, and to all who wish a restoration of true Americanism, there is but one word to say. The true leader has appeared. The pathway to victory has been pointed out. It needs but loyal following to make the promise of victory a reality.

The Trusts and the Tariff.

From The Buffalo Times, (Dem.)

On the two other important issues of this campaign the Democratic candidate has drawn the Republican nominee to a point of issue. Those two issues are the trusts and the tariff. In line with Democratic argument, and directly to the point, Judge Parker says that the protective tariff on articles which allow manufacturers to charge exorbitant prices in this country while selling at a low figure abroad must be reduced. He can well ask the country to sustain him on that issue.

An Appeal to Intelligence.

From The Charleston News and Courier, (Dem.)

Attempting no rhetorical effects, it appeals to intelligence rather than to passion.

The Views of an Honest Man.

From The Philadelphia North American, (Rep.)

Judge Parker's letter of acceptance may fairly be called a strong document. There is no dodging in it, and it leaves the impression that it expresses the views of an honest man concerning conditions as he sees them.

Not a Word of Bombast.

From The Rome Sentinel, (Dem.)

Whatever may be the reader's partisan predilections he will say that Parker's letter is the production of a strong mind, a rare judgment, and a sound reasoning. There is not in it a particle of playing to the galleries; there is not a word of bombast. Every line is solid meat.

Better Read It a Third Time.

From The Wilmington (Del.) Every Evening.

The Morning News admits that it has read Judge Parker's letter of acceptance a second time, but its conclusion is that the letter is not "the product of a statesman." Tennyson says:

> It is not true that second thoughts are best,
> But first, and third, which are a riper first.

Therefore, we advise The Morning News to give Judge Parker's letter a third reading. By this means it may discover that it is "the product of a statesman," as so many good people pronounced it at first reading.

CHIEF JOSEPH OF THE NEZ PERCES

Died Sept. 21, 1904.

One hundred years had passed on earth
Since they that watched our Nation's birth
Proclaimed their cause, and proved their worth
And burst the British chain,
When one—what though his skin was red!—
Arose, and claimed for those he led
The rights for which our heroes bled—
Yet craved those rights in vain!

Poor dupes! In spite of treaties sworn
The White Man came; with ruthless scorn
The rude, loved land where they were born,
That held their fathers' graves,
He seized—a Naboth's heritage.
What annals show a darker page!
Dare freemen blame the burning rage
That roused the mountain braves!

They struck!—right gallantly they fought!
And well their Chief, with skill untaught,
Led northward toward the home they sought;
And, when all hope was o'er,
Alone, he strode between the bands
And spoke with upward-lifted hands:
"Give peace! From where the sun now stands Chief Joseph fights no more!"

In simple trust he yielded. Then
We broke our solemn word again.
On healthless lands of plain and fen
We pent that hill-born clan.
We proved our only rule was greed,
Our plighted faith a rotten reed!
He proved, in word as well as deed,
The "Redskin" was a Man!

The fame is his. The black disgrace
Is ours. We crushed a gallant race.
And, though no deed can e'er efface
Nor pale that ugly stain,
Remember those who, cheated, died
On barren plain and mountain-side
And give the right to them denied
To those that still remain!

COLUMBIA GIVES DEGREE TO ENGLAND'S PRIMATE

Dr. Davidson Receives LL. D. at University's Opening.

DEDICATES SITE OF CHAPEL

In Brief Address the Archbishop Commends American Energy in Solving the Problems of Education.

Columbia University opened her doors yesterday for her one hundred and fifty-first academic year. The Archbishop of Canterbury, who was the guest of honor at the exercises, dedicated the site of the new University Chapel and received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

Shortly before 3 o'clock the officers and students assembled in the university library. All were clad in academic costume. From the library the academic procession, headed by the Archbishop, Bishop Potter, and Chaplain George R. Van de Water, proceeded to the gymnasium, where the formal exercises were held. Chaplain Van de Water made the opening prayer and then President Butler welcomed the students back to their studies.

Dean Robert Simpson Woodward of the Faculty of Pure Science delivered an address on "Academic Ideals." Then came the conferring of the degree of LL. D. on the Archbishop, who was introduced by Bishop Potter. Bishop Potter said that he had come across a theory that the human race had its beginnings in the Western continent rather than in the East, and that if this were true, America could not be called young and "modern." Continuing, the Bishop said, addressing President Butler:

"For myself, Sir, I rejoice to believe that, whether originally civilization dawned upon Eastern or Western shores, it caught from our Anglo-Saxon ancestors a glory that can never die. Columbia University was, first of all, King's College; it was a British sovereign, George II., who first planted on these shores the seeds of this noble seat of learning, and first named of all in its Board of Corporators was the Archbishop of Canterbury.

"The years have come and gone since then, and from those modest beginnings great things here have grown. But no moment in the history of this seat of learning has been more memorable or interesting than this. For the Archbishop of Canterbury is here, Sir, to see with his own eyes the work which his distinguished ancestors began and encouraged. He brings his great office, his illustrious career as a scholar, a divine and a statesman, for, Sir, men in either hemisphere honor him as all of these, as presently he will give it to the rising walls of yonder chapel, with his benediction on all these halls.

"I present him, Sir, for that welcome which I know you will be rejoiced to offer him for all of us; and, in the name of the Trustees of the university, I ask you to confer on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws."

President Butler then conferred the degree.

The Archbishop was greeted with great applause when he began to speak, after having been made an honorary alumnus of Columbia. He spoke of the historical connection of the Archbishops of Canterbury with the college, and continued in part as follows:

"We have great problems on both sides of the water to solve. I am not prepared to say that the advantage of results will be on either side. I believe, however, that in solving some great problems, and particularly those of education, you with your great rush have been able to settle those that we have not been able to master in 400 years.

"That man would indeed be dull of pulse that could stand face to face with such an assemblage and not be moved by the thoughts the scene suggests. We stand at the dawn of the brightest century the world has ever seen.

"I feel that we are on the verge of great discoveries in science. If new doors are to be opened and more to harness more completely the forces of nature for human good, and names of men and women are to go down in the pages of history, the men and women who are to do it are here before me to-day."

After the exercises in the gymnasium the academic procession went out on the campus, where the Archbishop performed the act of benediction on the site of the new chapel.

Yesterday morning was given over to the beginning of academic work. At 1 o'clock Dr. Davidson and his party were entertained at luncheon by President Butler. The following guests were present:

Dr. and Mrs. Davidson, Chaplains Ellison and Holden, Bishops Potter and Greer of New York, Bishop Brewster of Connecticut, Bishop Worthington of Nebraska, J. Pierpont Morgan, Prof. Michael Ernest Sadler of the University of Manchester, the Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, the Rev. William S. Rainsford, Dean Welford L. Robbins, the Rev. Charles Cuthbert Hall, the Rev. Dr. Marvin R. Vincent, Charles A. Silliman, Gerard Beekman, Edward Mitchell, Mr. Bayard Cutting, Seth Low, George L. Rives, John Crosby Brown, John B. Pine, William Barclay Parsons, George G. De Witt, Francis S. Bangs, B. Aymar Sands, Dr. T. M. Coleman, Dean T. Howard Van Ammringe, Dr. T. H. Canfield, John McLean Nash, and Charles H. Russell.

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY OPENS.

Chancellor MacCracken Advocates Debating Clubs to Discuss Campaign.

More than 300 students, including an entering class of 130, the largest in the history of the institution, assembled yesterday morning in the chapel of the New York University, on University Heights, the Bronx, for the opening of the academic department. Chancellor MacCracken opened the exercises with an address, and after the students dispersed to their various classrooms brief addresses were made by the heads of the faculty to each group.

In his address the Chancellor advocated the formation of political debating clubs among the students to discuss the issues of the present campaign for the next six weeks, and took occasion to rebuke the tendency of college youths to expend their surplus energies in bullying under classmen.

CLUB TO HAVE NEW HOME.

Army and Navy Will Rebuild in Forty-third Street.

The Army and Navy Club has bought, through Broker John N. Golding, the properties 107 and 109 West Forty-third Street as the site for a new clubhouse. The two parcels together make a plot 40 by 100, on the north side of the street, just west of Sixth Avenue. Contracts for the purchase were signed yesterday with the respective owners, a Mrs. Ryttenberg and the County Realty Company.

The club will get possession of the premises in sixty days, when extensive improvements will be made, amounting almost to the erection of a new building. Only the side walls of the present houses will be retained. When the work is finished the club will have a structure containing twenty-five or thirty sleeping rooms, a large café, dining room, billiard room, and bowling alleys.

This will be the fourth move made necessary by the increasing membership of this organization during its fifteen years of existence. Its first quarters, in 1889, consisted of a parlor floor on West Twenty-eighth Street, between Broadway and Sixth Avenue. In the following year the club took the dwelling at 37 West Thirty-first Street and, soon afterward, its present home, at 10 West Thirty-first Street, which has in turn been outgrown.

JAMES BROWN POTTER WEDS.

His Second Wife is Miss Mary Handy, One of Virginia's Beauties.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 28.—Miss May Handy of this city was married this morning to James Brown Potter of New York, at her home in East Franklin Street. The Rev. G. Otis Mead of Christ Episcopal Church officiated. William Duane of New York was best man. The only witnesses were Mrs. W. Frank Powers, a half sister of the bride; W. F. Powers, and Miss Margaret Powers. Mr. and Mrs. Potter left at noon for New York and will spend a month in Paris. The bride is a great Virginia beauty and is the daughter of the late Capt. Edward Handy, United States Navy.

James Brown Potter is a son of the late Howard Potter and a nephew of Bishop Henry C. Potter. He married Miss Cora Urquhart, the eldest daughter of the late Col. David Urquhart of New Orleans, in 1877. Mr. and Mrs. Potter had one child, a daughter, who was married to James A. Stillman, at Grace Church, three years ago.

Mrs. James Brown Potter became famous as an amateur actress in the days of the old University Club Theatre. One of her principal plays was "The Russian Honeymoon." Later she created much stir in Washington by reciting at an entertainment given by Mrs. William C. Whitney a poem by George R. Sims, entitled "'Ostler Joe." Mrs. Potter subsequently went on the professional stage, making her début in London in 1887.

She played in New York in the Winter of 1888 with Kyrle Bellew as leading man. One of her famous revivals was "Cleopatra." She was here last some eight years ago, when she played in "The Queen's Necklace," an adaptation from a Dumas novel. Mr. Potter obtained a divorce from his wife four years ago at Newport.

Mrs. Brown Potter, as she calls herself, lives in a pretty villa on the Thames at Maidenhead. She is to manage a theatre in London this season and will appear in a play written by her sister, Mrs. Raoul-Duval.

EX-MAYOR MAY BE DELAYED.

Friends to Go Down Bay After Van Wyck If He Is Late for Dinner.

Friends of ex-Mayor Van Wyck who had planned to give a dinner at the Democratic Club this evening in honor of his return from abroad learned yesterday that the Baltic, which is bringing him, may not dock in time for the dinner, which had been scheduled for 7 o'clock. If the boat is sighted in time friends will go down the bay on a tug and bring him to the city.

According to the arrangements, if the ex-Mayor arrives in time ex-Senator John Fox will preside. On his right will sit the ex-Mayor, with Cord Meyer, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee. Chairman Thomas Taggart of the National Committee will sit on the left of President Fox, with Charles F. Murphy sitting next.

WHAT IS DOING IN SOCIETY.

The wedding of James Brown Potter and Miss May Handy was the principal topic of interest in society yesterday. The engagement of Mr. Potter and Miss Handy has been announced and denied a number of times during the past few years. Mr. Potter has been interested in some Mexican ventures, and has been very little in New York during the past two years. Miss Handy was at Narragansett for a time last Summer, and then she paid a long visit to her friend, Mrs. Jesse Tyson of Maryland. Mrs. James A. Stillman, Mr. Potter's daughter, will spend the Autumn at Tuxedo.

Charles Carroll, who arrived on Tuesday on the Kaiser Wilhelm II., will remain some weeks in this country. He brought over with him his young son. Mr. Carroll has been a resident of Paris for several years. Mrs. Carroll, who was Miss Suzanne Bancroft, did not accompany her husband and son. Mr. Carroll will be the guest of his father, ex-Gov. Carroll of Maryland, and of his brother, Royal Phelps Carroll, at Newport.

Mrs. Astor will pay short country house visits to Col. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor and to her daughter, Mrs. M. Orme Wilson. After the 15th of October Mrs. Astor will be at home informally on Sunday afternoons.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse have sailed for the Hawaiian Islands. They are to be absent for six weeks, but will return to this country in time for the New York season.

Mrs. George Law will leave to-morrow for a trip to the Virginia Hot Springs. She has been the guest of Mrs. Robert Collier at Eatontown, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Mitchell Clark have closed their villa at Newport and have gone to Tuxedo for a part of the Autumn.

Miss Leary closes her cottage at Newport to-day, and will open her town house on Upper Fifth Avenue. She will entertain at a house warming in November.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Searle Barclay are at the Cambridge for a few days. They have closed their villa at Southampton, and are en route for the Virginia Springs.

A daughter has been born to Mr. and Mrs. James R. Hatmaker in Paris. Mrs. Hatmaker was Mrs. de la Mar. She was divorced from Capt. de la Mar two years ago, and last year she married Mr. Hatmaker, who had been private secretary to the late Cornelius Vanderbilt. She was, before her marriage to Capt. de la Mar, Miss Sands of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould are traveling in the West. They are now in Mexico.

The bridal party for the wedding of Mr. Delafield and Miss Folsom will leave for Lenox to-day and to-morrow. Mr. and Mrs. George Folsom have been entertaining during the week, and they will have a large house party for the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Clark G. Voorhies have already arrived at Lenox.

Mrs. William Jaffray and Miss Jaffray have arrived in New York, after a visit to James J. Van Alen at Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Goelet, who arrived on Wednesday, will go on a short visit to Newport before settling in New York for the Winter.

The Earl of Yarmouth will go to Pittsburg to join the Countess and her mother, Mrs. Thaw. The Earl and Countess of Yarmouth will remain in this country until November.

Mrs. Adair will spend a great part of the Winter in Texas. This year she let her shootings to Lord Iveagh, and she has had shipped a great deal of furniture for the farmhouse on her Texas ranch. She expects to arrive in New York within a fortnight.

Mrs. John King Van Rensselaer will not return to New York this Winter. She has taken a house in Philadelphia, and will live there.

Mrs. Buchanan Winthrop and Miss Marie Winthrop will close their house at Bar Harbor to-day and will come to New York for the Winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic de Peyster and the Misses de Peyster will spend the month of October at Lakewood. Miss Charlotte Pell and Mrs. Pell will be at the same resort for the early Autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, who arrived on Tuesday from Europe, will be at Westbury for the Autumn.

The receipts from the fair at Harbor Hill were larger than at first estimated. Mrs. Mackay defrayed all the expenses, as well as giving the use of house and grounds. Mrs. Herman Duryea was the winner of the child's cart used in her childhood by the Duchess of Marlborough. The raffle for the cart alone brought in some $600. It is safe to say that $8,000 was realized by the fair.

REV. CHARLES WAGNER VISITS A PENITENTIARY

French Evangelist Passes a Busy Day in Philadelphia.

CHEERED AT GIRLS' SCHOOL

Delivers an Address in the Friends' Meeting House—Entertained by John Wanamaker.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—The Rev. Charles Wagner to-day addressed the teachers and students of the Friends' School in the Friends' Meeting House, spoke to the students of the Girls' High School, visited a newspaper office, and finally inspected the Eastern Penitentiary.

He was accompanied by Joseph Elkinton, Jr., L. H. Bedell, Xavier Kohnig, and Gustav Boutelleau, the last an old friend and compatriot, who is serving as a representative of France on the Jury of Awards at the World's Fair. John Wanamaker went to the Friends' Meeting House, but not to the other places.

"Be a Man" was Mr. Wagner's theme at the meeting house. He directed his remarks to the children, each of whom he declared to be not only the hope of his father and mother, but the hope of his fatherland and of his God.

In the Girls' High School Mr. Wagner illustrated his remarks with a hatchet and a key. The former, he said, represented violence; the latter diplomacy and goodwill. Of these two implements the speaker advised the use of the key, by which the gates of usefulness may be opened the more readily, and life made more sweet and endurable. As the visitor left the school and entered his automobile the girls speeded him with cheers.

"I have never seen a more enthusiastic audience," Mr. Wagner said as he was driven away. "They seemed to hang on my words, and when I said something that told the applause seemed to be a spontaneous outburst. I feel that my lesson of 'the simple life' touched the hearts of those girls."

Mr. Wagner's translation from joyous scenes into the dismal confines of the Eastern Penitentiary made a deep impression upon him. It was his first visit to a penal institution, in which the solitary system obtained to any extent.

"Of course, it is all necessary," he said as he passed without the gates, "and the Warden has done all he can for these unfortunates. I noticed flowers in the courts and ivy clinging about the walls. These things are all the inmates have to remind them of 'the simple life' that is lost to them.

"I saw one robust man who occupied a narrow cell, and spoke to him in his native language. He was a German; I could tell that at a glance. I asked him no questions, but I knew from his accent that he was born in the Fatherland, and there was that in his eye which told of the delight he felt at the sound of his native tongue. It is sad to think that you can do nothing—absolutely nothing."

To-night Mr. Wagner was entertained at the home of John Wanamaker.

To-morrow he will go to New York as the guest of Dr. Lyman Abbott. He will return to this city on Saturday, and on Sunday morning will address an audience at the Baptist Temple. In the afternoon he will speak to negroes. He expects to remain in this country until December, and will visit St. Louis. It is said that a lecturing tour is planned for him.

Gustav Boutelleau, who accompanied Mr. Wagner, and who was also a guest of John Wanamaker, is at the Walton. Besides his duties at the exposition he was intrusted by the French Government with the task of reaching some understanding with American manufacturers in regard to the use of French names for American wines and cognacs. He is the owner of extensive vineyards in France, and is a large exporter of cognac.

A DAY'S WEDDINGS.

PERKINS—KINGSLAND.

The wedding of Dr. Charles Winfield Perkins to Miss Alice Vanderpool Kingsland was solemnized at Grace Church chantry yesterday. Dr. Perkins is a resident physician at Princeton, N. J., and his father has been a well-known specialist in Chester, Penn., for a number of years. Miss Kingsland comes from the New Jersey family of Kingslands and is a descendant of Mayor Ambrose Kingsland of New York City.

The bride was given away by her brother, Elbert Hall Kingsland, and her only attendant was her niece of six years, Miss Jessie Kingsland. The best man was Dr. John Parker Maddox. The ushers were Judge William F. Gay of Mount Vernon and Frank Chester Kingsland, the brother of the bride. After the ceremony a small luncheon was served at Martin's to the relatives and intimate friends. The honeymoon will be spent at Paul Smith's, in the Adirondacks.

BREWER—EMERY.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Sept. 28.—Miss Florence Brewer, daughter of Mayor Abijah R. Brewer of Glen Ridge, and J. Tuttle Emery of this place were married this afternoon in the Unitarian Church. It was the first wedding to take place in the new church edifice.

The Rev. Leslie Willis Sprague performed the ceremony. The maid of honor was Miss Natalie Grovesteen of Brooklyn. Ralph Emery of Cleveland, Ohio, was best man, and the ushers were Otton and Clinton Brewer, brothers of the bride; Walter McNaughton of Montclair, and C. R. Ganter of New York. The bride was dressed in white satin with tulle veil, and carried a bouquet of white roses.

Mayor Brewer is Secretary of the Western Union Telegraph Company.

CHALLEN—TOMPKINS.

Special to The New York Times.

FISHKILL LANDING, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Paull Jewill Challen of Matteawan, N. Y., and Miss Jane Tompkins were married to-night at Edgewater, the home of Mrs. Helen Tompkins, the bride's mother. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles W. Fritts of Hudson.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Louis W. Stotesbury of New York, was matron of honor. The best man was Frank Donaldson of Philadelphia, and the ushers were Frank Barbour of Montreal, William C. Dickerman and Louis W. Stotesbury of New York, and Frank Brinckerhoff of Fishkill Landing. Mr. and Mrs. Challen left at 10 o'clock for a trip South.

WEST—GOLDSBOROUGH.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Md., Sept. 28.—Miss Mary Loockerman Goldsborough, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Tilghman Goldsborough, was married this evening to Edward John West of New York, the Rev. W. G. McCready officiating.

Miss Ida Barrington Goldsborough, a sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and among the bridesmaids were three other sisters of the bride. Among the ushers were Arthur L. Whitehouse, Edgar C. Leaycraft, and James G. Pettit of New York.

CANNON—COX.

Special to The New York Times.

CHERRY VALLEY, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Miss Julia Ten Eyck Cox was married at Grace Church here to-day to Henry Brevoort Cannon of Elizabeth, N. J. The bride is a daughter of A. Beekman Cox.

TALK OF THE DAY.

Judge Huntington of Woodbury, Conn., one of the men engaged in managing the Democratic campaign in his State, stopped talking politics long enough to have something to say about labor conditions in his State and in this city.

"One of our papers has just published a statement about the thousands of idle men you have in your city who are subsisting on charity, because they have nothing to do, and cannot find work. Let them come up to our State at an expense of only a dollar or two for railroad fare, and they will find plenty of work at wages that will not only enable them to support their families, but to lay by a sum for the Winter. They will have good food and a comfortable place to sleep in while they are at work in addition to their wages. Why thousands of bushels of apples are lying rotting on the ground in our State alone, and acres of corn are waiting the coming of the reaper to save it from frost, within an hour of the Grand Central Station. There is the nut crop to be garnered with the first frost, and our farmers are simply hollering at the tops of their voices for men to help them do the work of harvesting. A good sturdy man can clean walk to a certain job in Connecticut in a day, and there is no reason on earth why this big city should be compelled to support any man who wants to work. Shoo 'em up our way and all Connecticut will rise up and call you blessed."

Overheard in the Palm Room:

"And when we drove by Columbia College so as to get a good view of his Grace of Canterbury, whom do you think we should meet but Algy!"

"Dressed to kill, as usual, I suppose"—with a bit of a sneer on her pretty, pouting lips.

"Well, hardly that, even though he had on his football armor—dressed to maim rather than to kill, I should say."

And the two giggled immederately, as if they thought it really clever.

G. H. Cornell, a Florida railroad man, sat wiping the perspiration from his brow in the Manhattan at noon yesterday and complaining of the heat. For a man from our one semi-tropical State it seemed a bit weird.

"You people up here seem to think we are only at home in furnace heat apparently. Well, let me tell you right now that I have never suffered from the weather in twenty years in Florida as I have here the past three days. Humidity? I call it torridity. Why, you people do not know what comfort in Summer means. I know what it doesn't mean. It doesn't mean the sort of weather we are up against right now. And yet your Winter tourists have the nerve to sympathize with us Floridians because we have to pass the Summers in the South. Why, man alive, there hasn't been a day even down in the Palm Beach region when a Floridian would have as much discomfort as you people are having here now. Look for the Weather in our Summer resorts, like St. Augustine, Ormonde, and Daytona, it just lays away over anything you can show in the way of climate, judging from my experience since the first of August, and I have been taking in about everything between Bar Harbor and Atlantic City. Me for the South and good old Florida as a Summer resort hereafter. I don't care for any more New York in mine as a steady diet. And yet ever since I left the old Central Vermont system, I have had a longing to get back North and enjoy such a Summer and Autumn as I seemed to have a lot of pleasant memories about stored away in my brain. I suppose I must have changed, but, by George! this doesn't seem like the weather we used to have in my boyhood days. Let's surround a highball and get a fresh grip on life. It seems the only way."

Already the fact that Horse Show time is near begins to impress itself on the managers of the fashionable hotels of the city. Quarters for use during the week are constantly being applied for, and at two of the ultra-fashionable resorts all of the best suites have been engaged by people from the Western and Southwestern cities principally.

"It is certain that the Horse Show has a hold on the fashionable world out of town that nothing can seem to shake," said the manager of a hotel who speaks by the card. "I have had applications from people as far West as St. Louis—and even one from San Francisco—from as far South as Richmond, from Montreal and St. Paul as Northern limits, and from the East as far as St. Johns. Some suites were even bespoken a year ago by the parties who occupied them at that time, and, of course, a certain number are reserved by people here in town who will not open their town houses in time for the show."

Society, particularly the members of the younger set who run into town for shopping and have luncheon or dinner at one of the fashionable restaurants, has already begun to gossip as to the possibility of women of the Four-in-Hand Club taking part in a proposed competition for a piece of plate to be given the lady who shows in the ring the best coach and four. There is no doubt whatever that such a competition would excite the liveliest interest, but it is such a daring innovation that unless some leader of assured position gives the competition her approval the chances are against active competition except by the "climbers." The universal opinion seems to be that if the young ladies who are club members should go in for the affair, that the attendance on the day of the competition would be as great as it was on the "Duke of Marlborough night," when a record of attendance at a Garden show was established.

"And what a jolly lark it would be to drive a four-in-hand about the ring," sighed one to her companions, while they were discussing the Winter gayeties and their sheebeds.

WILLIAM ZIEGLER INJURED.

Thrown from a Carriage at His Home in Connecticut.

DARIEN, Conn., Sept. 28.—While William Ziegler, the arctic exploration enthusiast, who had just returned from New York, was being driven to his home at Collender's Point last night, the wheels of his carriage crumpled under the body of the vehicle as it turned into the gateway of the estate. The carriage was overturned, and Mr. Ziegler, the coachman, and the footman were thrown out.

The coachman in a moment had the horses under control, but not before Mr. Ziegler had been dragged a few feet. The family physician examined Mr. Ziegler and found that no bones were broken, although there were several contusions and evidence of a bad shaking up. Complete rest, the physician believes, will quickly restore the patient to his usual health.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—There will be showers to-morrow in the interior of the Middle Atlantic States and New England. Elsewhere the weather will be generally fair to-morrow and Friday. It will be warmer in the Middle Atlantic States and New England. On the New England Coast the winds will be light to fresh south on the Middle Atlantic Coast, light to fresh southeast to south.

Steamships departing to-morrow for European ports will have light to fresh southeast to south winds, with fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND FRIDAY.

New Jersey—Fair to-day, warmer in the interior; Friday fair; light to fresh southeast to south winds.

Eastern New York—Fair, warmer to-day; Friday partly cloudy; showers in the interior; light to fresh south winds.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair, warmer to-day; Friday partly cloudy, showers in north and west portions; light to fresh southeast to south winds.

New England—Fair, warmer to-day; Friday partly cloudy, showers in north and west portions; fresh south winds.

The record of temperature for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from THE NEW YORK TIMES's thermometer and from the thermometer of the Weather Bureau, is as follows:

The thermometer registered 64 degrees at 6 A. M. yesterday and 68 degrees at 2 P. M., the maximum temperature being 68 degrees at 2 P. M. and the minimum 62 degrees at 6 A. M. The humidity was 79 per cent. at 8 A. M. and 66 per cent. at 6 P. M.

THOUGHT TO BE POOR; LEFT $100,000 IN WILL

Old "Gus" Newman Remembered Second Avenue Friends.

BARBER AND CLERKS SHARE

Real Estate Man Who Bought Securities Didn't Forget Saloon Keeper—Ignored His Divorced Wife.

When old "Gus" Newman, a civil war veteran, who had a real estate office at 190 Second Avenue, died a few weeks ago in his little room at 224 East Eleventh Street none of his friends believed he was worth a dollar. His will which was filed for probate in the Surrogate's office yesterday, shows that he left an estate of at least $100,000.

The petition accompanying the will names Mary Newman of 64 Whitehall Street as "claiming to be Newman's widow," but the attorney for the executors said that the Newmans had been divorced about two years ago, and that Mrs. Newman had married again. She was not mentioned in the will, and neither was Newman's long-lost son, Gustave, who has not been heard from in several years. Newman, however, remembered a lot of his friends, including his barber and his favorite saloon keeper.

Gustave Newman served his adopted country in the civil war, and was one of the men who spent a year in Libby Prison. He received honorable mention in the records of the War Department, and after the war went to reside on the lower east side, engaging in the real estate business. The fact that he had never owned any real estate was looked upon as proof that he was poor, and those who knew him intimately believed that he barely made a living. But the old man was continually purchasing gilt-edge securities, and when his box in the Germania Safe Deposit Vaults is opened stocks and bonds of considerable value will be found.

By his will Newman bequeaths to Mrs. Margaret Dann, wife of Dr. Nicholas Dann of Second Avenue, 100 shares of United States Steel, 25 shares of New York Central, 100 shares of Manhattan Transit, 600 shares of Bay State Gas stock, a pair of diamond earrings valued at $2,000, and a diamond bracelet, "as a reward for her devotion to me during my sickness and for making home pleasant to me, may God bless her."

His friend Charles O'Connor gets a diamond ring and $500; William F. Schneider, a retired barber, receives the diamond ring the old man wore when he died and $500; Frank Sippellus, a diamond sword scarf pin, and Peter F. Rafferty a diamond pear-shaped scarf pin and $1,000. Some of the other bequests are:

To George Gemunder his hat, cane, and scarf pin; Dr. Nicholas R. Dann, $100; William D. Kennedy Post, G. A. R., $200, and the Hebrew War Veterans' Association $200.

He set aside $500 for a public funeral for himself, $500 for the purchase of a grave, $1,000 for a monument, and $100 a each of his executors for "expenses." He bequeaths his real estate business to his two clerks, Louis Eichhorn and August Gauther, and his friend Charles O'Connor. Joseph Bolts, a barber in Leggett's Hotel, receives a gold watch and chain. Charles F. Wickenheiser, at whose place on Eighth Street Newman was in the habit of quenching his thirst, comes in for his late customer's valuable collection of coins.

IN THE SHOPS.

All sorts of new things are to be seen at the openings, hints for the women shoppers. One of these is a young child's long coat of white serge, trimmed with a deep collar and cuffs of red and white calfskin, the hair out. A simple and inexpensive coat for a little girl is also of serge, a dark blue, trimmed with narrow bands of a dark tan leather. There are two of these around the skirt, two outlining the deep collar, with lapels running from shoulder to waist in front, and others on the belt and cuffs. There is a little waistcoat in front of pale blue cloth.

***

Exercise has come to take a sufficiently important place in women's and children's lives to be recognized in clothes. Gymnasium suits for young girls and misses cost from $3.50 up. They are in the form of a loose blouse and knickerbockers. One pretty one of dark blue serge is trimmed with bands of black silk, and the deep collar is finished with a bow of black silk in front.

***

A Persian lamb coat, with mink collar, cuffs, and facings on the fronts, can be had for $115. It is lined with a pretty brocade.

***

Lynx is among the best furs, and a set—long stole, collar, and muff of fine quality—will cost $215. One similar in style and also a beautiful fur can be had for half the price. A handsome collar, with a rather deep shoulder collar, will cost between $40 and $50.

***

A black velvet coat, a little more than three-quarter length, is so full that it is rather a cape than a coat, but has full sleeves. It has lapels of ermine down the front, and is lined with white satin.

***

A champagne-colored voile is trimmed with straps of green velvet ribbon and medallions formed of green baby ribbon velvet, plaited in and out to fill a large round opening. The contrast of the colors is good, and the plaited velvet medallions effective.

***

A black jetted net gown has a corsage belt of fancy colored ribbon in bright rose shades. Another is finished at the neck and wrists with bright colored silk.

***

A simple but pretty gown, made of messaline silk in a warm pearl gray shade, almost a pastel blue, has alternate narrow folds of the gray and rose pink finishing the stock. Tiny rosettes of the gray, rose, and white trim the bodice. There are shirred ruffles to the skirt.

***

A pink pongee gown is trimmed with cream lace.

***

A shirred gown has around the shoulders a standing ruffle, a finish to the shirring below, this standing an inch high. It is quaint and old-fashioned.

***

A long red coat for a woman has a small collar and cuffs of moleskin.

***

The promise of sleeves differing from the material of coats and gowns is fulfilled in one instance in a handsome coat of champagne-colored cloth. There is a yoke effect, made of the velvet several shades darker than the coat, this shirred, and the big sleeves are of the same material, with cuffs of the cloth.

***

There are Quaker effects in hats. One pretty one is of shirred gray silk crown and broad rim, the latter finished around the edge with a deep binding of velvet. There are three big plumes at the front.

***

Another hat of the same Quaker gray is like the first, but in place of the plumes are little smooth tufts of gray feathers forming a wreath around the crown.

***

A big Directoire hat is of brown velvet. The sides of the high crown are of robin's egg blue, and around the crown, resting on the broad rim, is tulle of the brown and of the blue. There are three very large brown plumes at the front of the hat, and underneath the rim are brown leaves to match the hat. The edge of the rim on top is finished with a narrow plaiting of brown silk.

***

A chinchilla neckpiece of the stole order, with narrow collar and long stole ends, has a fall of lace of a cream shade outlining the collar. More of the lace in a narrower width outlines the sides and lower edge of the stole ends.

LAFCADIO HEARN IS DEAD.

Succumbs to Heart Disease in Tokio—Born in 1850 in the Ionian Isles.

YOKOHAMA, Sept. 28.—Lafcadio Hearn, the well-known author, died at Tokio on Monday from heart disease. His funeral will take place on Friday.

General regret is expressed among the Japanese at the death of Mr. Hearn.

To a greater extent, probably, than any other Occidental Lafcadio Hearn succeeded in bridging the gulf which separates East and West. If ever a Westerner understood the Japanese it was he, and yet the intimate sympathy he possessed for their literature, their art, and their ideals was not the result of early association. It was quite late in life that he moved to Japan and made his home there, and his determination to go there was the result of pure accident.

Lafcadio Hearn was born in the Ionian Isles in 1850. His mother was a Greek and his father an Irish officer in the English Army. When he was sixteen years old he was sent to France to be educated, and three years later, an orphan without means, he came to America.

In a short time he learned to write and speak English perfectly, and before long he obtained employment on a newspaper in Cincinnati. Then he went to New Orleans. It was his translations from Théophile Gautier which first drew the attention of the literary world to him. Here, discerning critics said, was a writer in English with all the delicacy and subtlety of the French master, a word painter from whom great things were to be expected.

In 1887 Hearn, for whom the tropics always had a fascination, went to the West Indies, and after remaining there two years he came to New York. Afterward a visit to Japan decided him that there was the country in which he wished to live. He accepted a professorship at the Imperial University at Tokio, became a Japanese subject, and married a Japanese woman. He even took a Japanese name, being known in his adopted country as Y. Koizumi.

After taking up his residence in Japan Mr. Hearn contributed a large number of articles on that country and its people to American magazines, and these essays have been collected in various books. When he died he had just completed an important volume, "Japan: An Attempt at Interpretation," which will shortly be published in this country and in England.

"FATTY" GROTE IS DEAD.

East Side Politician Who Said "Never Let a Hungry Man Go Hungry."

William F. Grote, known on the lower east side as "Fatty" Grote, died yesterday in Bellevue Hospital. Grote was a well-known figure in local politics, and at one time was the County Democracy leader of the east side. He weighed almost four hundred pounds, and, like "Jakey Biff," another east side character, made thousands of friends by his affability and humor.

Of late years he went every day to a little restaurant in Ann Street, where he told and retold his experiences on the east side when Tammany Hall was fighting the County Democracy to the old-timers, who were glad to listen. Two years ago, as a follower of John C. Sheehan, he supported Low for Mayor, and his work in Mr. Low's behalf brought about his appointment to an Inspectorship in the Highways Department. Recently he returned to the Democratic fold, and, being a close friend of John C. Sheehan, attended the Democratic State Convention at Saratoga, as he put it, as a mascot to Sheehan. Upon returning to his home at 275 Rivington Street on Thursday of last week he met with the accident which resulted in his death. Having cut his foot by stepping on a broken bottle, he tried to care for the wound himself. The following day his foot was worse, and he then sent for the family physician. The doctor was out of town, and instead of sending for another Grote decided to wait. His physician returned to town on Monday and found his condition so serious that it was deemed advisable to remove him to Bellevue Hospital. He sank rapidly until the end came yesterday.

Grote had few enemies, and even when he was engaged in the liquor traffic on the east side some years ago he was noted for his many acts of charity. His motto was: "Never let a hungry man go hungry." He leaves a wife and six children. The funeral will be held on Sunday.

"MILT" G. BARLOW DEAD.

Old-Time Minstrel Succumbs to Cancer in the Throat.

"Milt" G. Barlow, known to theatregoers throughout the land as "Ole Black Joe," died on Tuesday of cancer in the throat at the Home for Incurables, One Hundred and Eighty-third Street and Third Avenue, at the age of sixty-five. Barlow originated the character of "Ole Black Joe" thirty-five years ago, and in 1875, during the tour with Haverly's Minstrels, he made the song bearing this name popular. In 1882, upon the dissolution of Haverly's troupe, of which Wilson, Primrose, and West were members, Primrose and West undertook their first theatrical venture with Barlow and Wilson. Later Barlow and Wilson set out by themselves, but were unsuccessful, and "Ole Black Joe" played the title role in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" for several years. Barlow afterward impersonated the negro character in the "Texas Steer." He was to have appeared in "The County Chairman," but his health failed and he was taken to the hospital last May suffering from cancer.

One of his old-time partners relates that it was customary for Barlow to receive his pay in nickels and dimes. These he used to carry about with him in cigar boxes. Barlow was three times married, and all his wives are still living. He is also survived by two children—a daughter Lillian and a son, "Milt" G. Barlow.

OLD-TIME ACTRESS DEAD.

Estelle Mortimer Began Her Stage Career with Mme. Janauschek.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 28.—Miss Estelle Mortimer, an actress in the "Bird Centre" company playing here, died suddenly to-day of a complication of Bright's disease and diabetes.

Miss Mortimer was fifty-two years old and her home was at 214 West Forty-third Street, New York. She began her stage career in the company of Mme. Janauschek, and later was with Booth and Barrett and also John McCullough. Her latest engagements were with Nat Goodwin, with whom she played several seasons.

BURIAL OF F. W. RHINELANDER.

Services at Belmont Memorial Chapel in Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 28.—The body of Frederick W. Rhinelander was brought here to-day from New York for interment in the family burial lot in the Island Cemetery. The funeral services were concluded in the Belmont Memorial chapel in the presence of members of the family, the Rev. Philip M. Rhinelander, Professor of Divinity at Berkeley College, and the youngest son of the deceased, officiating.

The pallbearers were J. Pierpont Morgan, F. Augustus Schermerhorn, Charles F. McKim, Rutherford Stuyvesant, John De Witt Warner, James Goodwin, George Gordon King, and Gen. Louis F. di Cesnola.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Mrs. William B. Ogden.

LENOX, Mass., Sept. 28.—Mrs. William B. Ogden of New York died at the Curtis Hotel here to-day, aged eighty years. For years she had spent several weeks in the Fall at Lenox. One sister, Mrs. George G. Haven of New York, survives her.

Mrs. William B. Ogden was Miss Mariana Arnot. She was the widow of William B. Ogden of Troy. Her suburban residence, known as Boscobel, is at the entrance to Washington Bridge. For years the late Andrew H. Green was the manager of the Ogden estate, and through his management the property became of great value. After Washington Bridge was opened Mrs. Ogden lived but little at Boscobel, preferring her residence at 298 Madison Avenue. Mrs. Ogden was the

LADY AMELIA FIRST WITH 140 POUNDS UP

Fleet Filly Astounded Horsemen with Her Remarkable Feat.

OISEAU EASILY TOOK HOLLY

Monacodor, at Odds of 40 to 1, Was the Surprise of the Day at the Gravesend Track.

Sensations were spread liberally through the racing programme at the Gravesend track yesterday, beginning with the truly remarkable feat of the fleet three-year-old filly Lady Amelia, winner of the opening event, a handicap open to all ages, under the unprecedented weight for her age and sex of 140 pounds. When Lady Amelia won two days before with 135 pounds it was considered that she had reached the limit.

Nine horses ran, but for all the weight she had to carry Lady Amelia always was the favorite, though the sharp bettors tried hard to pick around her. With Redfern up, Lady Amelia broke first and went out clear of her field at the start, Redfern then taking a steadying pull on her, but permitting her to race on in front in the impetuous style that suits her best. At the bend into the quarter stretch Lady Amelia still was well in hand, when Letola and Collector Jessup went after her, and the three made the bend into the straight abreast. Every horseman watching the contest then expected confidently that Lady Amelia would stop under her terrific impost and the pace she had set, but the brown filly astounded them by responding bravely when the last call was made and finish with quite as much courage as the two that pressed her, and with more speed at the end she lasted the distance out, and won, ridden out, by three parts of a length, while Letola beat Collector Jessup a similar distance for the place.

In the race for the Holly Handicap, for two-year-olds, also over the short six furlong course, there was another demonstration of what a really good horse can do in the matter of giving away weight, the stout Southern colt Oiseau in this event being the top weight with 126 pounds, and starting favorite in a field of twelve runners. Ridden by H. Cochran, Oiseau broke first and went straight on, simply galloping in front from end to end and winning about as he pleased by three lengths from Broadcloth, which was well up all the way, while Glorifier away back in the crowd, closed a lot of ground at the end and was a good third.

The betting surprise of the afternoon came with the decision of the fifth race, Monacodor, a 40 to 1 chance, that had but recently come on to New York from Buffalo, got away in the first division. Juvenga led until the horses were close on the most, with Monodor second and Holly third, where Juvenga dropped back a bit, and Monacodor got the decision by a nose, though to many spectators it looked as if Trapper, which closed fast on the outside, got on to time to beat Monacodor. MADE WILL, DRANK POISON.

Retired German Who Grieved Over Wife's Death Will Die.

John Schnauffer, a widower sixty years old, drank carbolic acid at his home, 14 Lewis Avenue, Williamsburg, yesterday afternoon after having made his will. He bequeathed all of his property, valued at many thousand dollars, to his two brothers in Germany, while his personal property he left to friends. Schnauffer was a retired manufacturer. Four months ago his wife, to whom he had been devoted, died. He brooded constantly over her death and visited her grave every day, keeping it covered with flowers.

After making his will yesterday he got a Bible and a prayer book, lay down on a lounge, and swallowed a large amount of the poison while reading.

On the return of his housekeeper last evening he was found dying. She sent for Dr. Charles Wuest, who found Schnauffer rapidly sinking. He said that, in his opinion, Schnauffer would be dead before morning.

McNALLY IN POOLROOM RAID.

Captain Had Been Asked to Explain Why Places Were Running.

Just as the third race at Gravesend was coming over the wire yesterday afternoon, the police say, Capt. McNally of the Church Street Station, who had been called upon to explain why he hadn't closed up two poolrooms raided over his head the other day, led a raid on an alleged poolroom at 63 Dey Street. The police had to break down the door of the room, which is over a saloon, but all of the considerable crowd were let go with the exception of Bernard Thomas, the alleged proprietor, and four others, who were held as principals. The police seized $70, some cards, and other paraphernalia of the racing game.

The prisoners were taken to the Tombs Court, and were admitted to $500 bail each for examination to-day. The place raided was known as the Porto Rico Tea and Coffee Exchange.

THIEVES GOT CHURCH BOILER.

Mystery for Harlem Police—Left Silver Service Behind.

The theft of a big copper boiler from the kitchen of the Lexington Avenue Baptist Church, One Hundred and Eleventh Street and Lexington Avenue, has been puzzling the police of the East One Hundred and Fourth Street Station for several days.

The boiler was in good working order on Sunday night. On Monday when the sexton arrived it was gone. The pipes had been cut. The pastor, the Rev. Walter A. Swafield, thinks that the thieves were hidden in the church during the Sunday night services, and after the church was locked started at their work. Mrs. Swaffield, wife of the pastor, said last evening that she could not understand how it was the thieves overlooked a valuable silver service which was close at hand.

PHOTOGRAPHER BADLY HURT.

David Hill Falls from Car and Fractures His Skull.

David Hill of 624 Madison Avenue, a photographer with a studio in West Thirty-fourth Street, fell from an east-bound Thirty-fourth Street car last evening and sustained a fracture of the base of the skull. He may die.

Mr. Hill attempted to board the car on the west side of Broadway in the rush hour. He swung on the front platform as the car started, but this was so crowded that he lost his grip on the guard rail and fell to the pavement, striking on the back of his head.

MAN SCHOOL BUILDINGS AGAIN.

Employers Can Push Such Work Now,—Tile Layers Bothersome.

It was announced at the Building Trades Club yesterday that enough men had been secured in all trades to enable work to be pushed without interruption on all the school buildings in course of erection. A number of buildings which have been held back for lack of plumbers were manned yesterday, and this will enable many mechanics who are idle in other trades to go to work. A number of these buildings have been greatly delayed, however, and, no matter how quickly work progresses, they will be far behind the time set for their completion.

It is admitted that the Tile Layers' Union is the hardest nut the employers have to crack in the present building fight. There were before the trouble only a limited number of tile layers in the United States, most of whom were in New York, and they were all in the union. The employers say they have seventy-six tile layers, but there were 600 locked out, and tile laying is a trade which requires several years to learn. No attempt has been made to organize a new union of tile layers, and negotiations for a settlement with the union have broken through.

After yesterday's meeting of the Building Trades Alliance it was stated that the employers had offered to pay the tile layers an advance of 50 cents a day, which they demanded some time ago, if they returned to work under the arbitration agreement; but that the union would agree to nothing unless the lock-out were declared off first. All negotiations were then broken off.

In the other alliance trades which are still locked out enough men have been secured for at least a partial resumption of work on all buildings.

ACCUSES INCOMPETENT'S SONS

Aged Man Who Cared for E. P. Day Beaten, Swanstrom Says.

As committee of the person and estate of Edward P. Day, an aged and wealthy real estate owner of Brooklyn, whose property is in litigation, ex-Borough President J. Edward Swanstrom appeared before Justice Maddox at Special Term of the Supreme Court yesterday in a proceeding to have Mr. Day produced in court, and accused George K. Day, one of the old man's sons, of having assaulted and abused an old friend of Mr. Day, in whose custody the old gentleman now is. Mr. Swanstrom obtained an adjournment.

Mr. Swanstrom alleged that the petition on which the order to show cause was granted was not signed by the old man. The object, he said, was to show that Mr. Day had recovered possession of his faculties, and to procure an order revoking the appointment of the committee. The applicants are the three sons of the old man, one of whom, Edward W. Day, obtained possession of $100,000 worth of property, which the committee is now seeking to recover. The estate is said to be worth $300,000. Mr. Swanstrom added:

"I placed Mr. Day in charge of his youngest son, Frederick C. Day, and gave him $150 for household expenses. He produced a deed, purporting to be signed by his father, conveying to him the homestead, worth $80,000, and borrowed $20,000 from the Title Guarantee and Trust Company. He failed to look out for his father, and I placed the old man in the care of an old friend of his. While this did friend, who is seventy-two years old, was putting Mr. Day to bed on Friday night, George K. Day broke into the house, grabbed the attendant, blackened his eyes, and broke his jaw.

"I may remind your Honor that this old man's sons have endeavored to deprive him of his property before, by signing blank papers which they represented to be leases, whereas they were deeds."

George K. Day, the son, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a warrant issued at the instance of Henry C. Bush, Mr. Day's friend.

JAIL FOR LAND FRAUD BAND.

Col. Greene Thinks He Has Evidence to Send All to Penitentiary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—Albert R. Greenie, the Special Inspector who had charge of the collection of evidence in the Oregon land fraud cases, is here for consultation with the Secretary of the Interior. For two years past Col. Greene has been engaged in working up these cases, and it is believed that sufficient evidence has been collected to convict the guilty parties of extensive fraud against the Government. A number of men are already under indictment, and other indictments will follow, with the probability that men prominent in affairs in the Northwest will be brought into the case.

Col. Greene said: "It can be easily seen what a vast amount of land must have been secured by the manipulations of this sharp band, and just what valuable tracts it was preparing to get in its possession. But the usual thing happened. One of the members of the gang did not think he was getting his fair share of the profits and gave the thing away. I was sent out, and spent two years in working up the case. I believe we have now secured sufficient evidence to send all the people concerned to the penitentiary. The trials will begin in November."

RECEIVER FOR SEA SCHOOL.

Slocum and Norge Disasters Caused Trouble for Providence Institution.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 28.—George H. Newhall of Providence was appointed today temporary receiver of the Nautical Preparatory School of this city. The appointment was made by Judge Tillinghast on a petition brought by George H. Eiswald, a stockholder, on the ground that the corporation is insolvent. No statement of assets or liabilities was available to-day.

Seeber Edwards of this city, attorney for the school, said that the trouble was due to a failure to secure the enrollment of a sufficient number of students to make the enterprise possible, parents having refused to permit their sons to go to sea after the General Slocum and the steamship Norge disasters.

The company chartered and equipped the ship Pennsylvania, which was to have sailed about Sept. 15 for a cruise in foreign waters. Two hundred and twenty-five cadets had been promised.

WOMAN RUN DOWN BY WAGON.

Stepped Under Horse's Feet While Dodging a Car.

Mrs. Kate Fitzgerald, 60 years old, of 200 West Sixtieth Street, while attempting to get out of the way of a north-bound Broadway car at Sixteenth Street last evening stepped in front of a delivery wagon which was going up town at a smart pace, and was trampled on by the horse before the driver could pull up. The wheels passed over her body, rendering her unconscious.

Mrs. Fitzgerald was removed to the New York Hospital in an unconscious condition. It was found that she had sustained internal injuries from the effect of which she may die.

CELTIC INQUIRY ENDED.

No Overcrowding, but Technical Error in Passenger List.

Solicitor F. E. Hamilton of the Collector's office concluded his investigation yesterday of the charges that the Celtic had been overcrowded during her last trip to this port, and that nearly a hundred of her steerage passengers were unprovided with berths. A re-examination of the ship by customs Inspectors demonstrated that there were more than enough berths. The officers of the ship testified that the passengers who slept on the decks did so from choice.

It was discovered, however, that there had been a clerical error in making up the steerage passenger list, which amounted to a technical violation of the law. This will make it necessary to forward a report to the Department of Commerce and Labor, which will probably remit the penalty of $1,000 imposed for such violation.

COTTON RECOVERS AT CLOSE.

Liverpool Break Causes Slump at Opening of Market Here.

A bad break in the spot cotton market at Liverpool, due to heavy receipts of cotton, depressed the future market in this city yesterday, at least during the early part of the session. Prices declined some 10 points, but in the afternoon the market improved under covering by shorts, so that at the close quotations were very near the level of the close on Tuesday. Receipts continue heavy and, although the news from some sections continues bullish, it is almost certain that the crop will exceed former crop records.

The only question is whether the price with such a crop can be maintained at its present level, or whether the demand will be such as to warrant an advance. The general opinion seems to be that there will be an advance sooner or later.

The range of prices yesterday was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Ch'ge.	Net Ch'ge.
September	10.40	10.28	10.34@10.37		— 5
October	10.46	10.27	10.35@10.36		— 2
November	10.40	10.23	10.37@10.38		— 2

April	....	....	10.54@10.56		..
May	10.66	10.50	10.56@10.58		+ 1

The market closed strong on sales of 300,000 bales.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 28.—Spot cotton quiet; sales, 5,000 bales; speculation and export, 300 bales; American, 4,000 bales; receipts, 11,000 bales; 5,000 American. Mid-upland, 6.04d. Futures opened easy, 6 points lower; closed steady, 20 points lower on September and 4@7 points lower on later positions. September, 5.59; September-October, 5.68; October-November, 5.61; November-December, 5.59; December-January, 5.58; January-February and February-March, 5.57; March-April, April-May, and May-June, 5.58. Manchester yarns quiet; cloths, full prices insisted upon, but business small.

TIE SILK VALUES ADVANCED.

General Appraiser McClelland Sustains Action of the Examiners.

General Appraiser McClelland yesterday announced two more reappraisements of the silks the advances in which have been under consideration for several weeks, affecting the entire trade.

The reappraisements announced yesterday were as follows: From Kniffler & Siegfried, Krefeld, 131.05 meters entered at 1.55 marks a meter, no advance; 41.50 meters from 1.45 to 1.55 marks; 131.05 meters from 1.45 to 1.55 marks, and 42.80 meters from 1.45 to 1.55 marks; from Torenrath & Co., Dulken, 1,019.65 meters from 1.30 to 1.40 marks, and 312.55 meters entered at 1.45 marks, no advance.

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

Short Pack of Maine and New York Corn Reported.

Damage by Frost the Reason of the Shortage—Plenty of Western Corn in Market.

Reports received in the wholesale grocery market yesterday from the growing and packing districts in New York State and Maine indicate a very serious shortage in the pack of canned corn. The principal cause of the shortage is the damage done by frost last week to the corn in the field. Some reports are that the packers will be able to deliver only 30 per cent. of their contracts, while others put the deliveries at 60 per cent. It is also reported that the packers are trying to buy corn in the Middle West to fill their contracts.

There is, however, plenty of canned corn offered by the Western and Southern packers, but complaint is made that some of it is of poor quality. It is bringing only 80 cents, while the New York and Maine pack commands $1. There is also a good deal of Maryland sugar corn in the market at 60 cents, free on board, factory.

JUDGMENT AGAINST H. B. SIRE.

Bank Holds Notes Against Theatrical Man for $60,554.

A judgement for $60,554 was entered yesterday against Henry B. Sire in favor of the Mercantile National Bank on three notes which were among the assets of the Seventh National Bank when it was absorbed in April, 1903, by the Mercantile National Bank.

The judgment is on the report of Referee Thomas F. Donnelly. Two of the notes were made by Henry B. Sire on Dec. 8, 1902, for $53,206 and on March 18, 1903, for $900, both of which were indorsed by Leander S. Sire, and the third note was made by Leander S. Sire on April 8, 1903, for $875, and was indorsed by Henry B. Sire.

Importers to Meet Merchants.

Warner Sherwood, Secretary of the Importers' National Association, announced yesterday that within a few days a conference would be held between committees representing his association and the Merchants' Association. The customs bureau of the Merchants' Association has been doing business with the bureau which the Importers' Association is organized, and it is expected that some plan of co-operation can be devised.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

Out of Town.

CLEVELAND.—A group of bankers has been named by the creditors of the Aultman Company of Canton to co-operate with Receiver Sullivan in straightening out the affairs of the concern, which made an assignment recently, with liabilities aggregating $1,500,000. On the committee are Gen. James Barnett of this city and W. F. Rust of the Freeman's National Bank of Boston.

PETITIONS IN BANKRUPTCY.

CONRAD B. KRAFT.—Conrad B. Kraft, druggist at 1,289 Franklin Avenue, Bronx, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $477 and nominal assets of $1,329, consisting of stock, $450; fixtures, $300; accounts, $49, and life insurance, $230. He bought the business about five years ago.

PARIS RESTAURANT COMPANY.—A meeting of creditors of the Paris Restaurant Company of 2,128 Broadway was held yesterday at the office of Seaman Miller, referee in bankruptcy, at 346 Broadway, and Julius M. Mayer was el UNITED ELECTRIC LIGHT & POWER CO.

OF BALTIMORE, MD.

First Consolidated Mtge. 4½% Bonds

DATED MAY 8, 1899 — DUE MAY 1, 1929

Interest Payable May 1 and November 1.

The United Electric Light & Power Co. controls the electric light and power business of the city of Baltimore—population, 508,975 (census 1900), and the sixth city in size in the United States.

The above Bonds, which are part of an issue of $3,263,000 outstanding in the hands of the public, are, in opinion of counsel, secured by a first mortgage on all property of the Company, subject to only $265,500 underlying bonds maturing 1910-16-24, and for the retirement of which a like amount of United Electric Light & Power Co. bonds are deposited with Trustee.

EARNINGS AND EXPENSES

As officially reported for years ended December 31st.

	1902.	1903.
Gross Earnings	$784,328.53	$867,726.76
Operating Expenses and Taxes.	433,122.13	500,521.85
Net Earnings	$353,701.40	$367,204.91
Bond Interest	159,835.00	159,835.00
Surplus	$193,866.40	$207,369.91

The Company, since its organization, has paid annual dividends of 5% on its preferred stock. For the past fiscal year the surplus earnings over and above the interest on bonds and dividends on the preferred stock were 8% on $2,000,000 common stock.

Having sold over $1,500,000 of the above bonds, we offer the unsold balance, subject to sale and advance.

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Irregular; Call Money Easy, 1 3-4@2 Per Cent.

A Larger Business Done on Less News—Aggressive Activity in the Steels—Ontario's Plan.

There was less news of general interest yesterday, but the market seemed to thrive without it. The weather was favorable for all crops, but cotton was merely steady; while grains were strong. There was in this condition of the produce markets nothing detrimental to stocks, for there was no new indication of any domestic shortage, the advance resting upon foreign deficiency of supplies and consequent increase of demand, which spells a larger price for no less bushels here. Sterling was weak, but merely because it was not steamer day, and so there were no implications regarding the money market, which was entirely placid.

The conditions called for a slumberous session, but there was much doing in several descriptions. There was aggressive buying of Steel, especially the preferred, which closed at the top with an advance of 2 points to the year's highest. In the two Steels was concentrated almost a quarter of the day's business, and yet the leading organ of the trade reports no corresponding revival in the business of making and selling iron. Union and Southern Pacifics dropped out of the class of leaders. Reading, Southern, and Ontario crowded the recent leaders into the background, but on the curb Northern Securities made a new high record, thus keeping alive the mystery of "something good" regarding this group. Reading and Southern were strong in sympathy with the tone of the most active stocks, but Ontario was soft despite the announcement of its plan for declaring a dividend and enlarging the franchise of the common stock.

That a stock should sell off upon an expected announcement is such correct speculative procedure that it is probably unfair to draw from the reaction an inference of general dislike of the proposals. But there were audible suggestions that the announcement of a bond issue and the declaration of "a dividend" were too closely coupled. Of course, a fair reading and construction of President Fowler's remarks negatives any insinuation that the dividend is payable from the borrowed funds. It was also remarked that 3 per cent. was somewhat too much of a good thing. A dividend was not wanted as a dividend, but as a means of dissolving the privilege of the preferred to elect a majority of the Directorate. A pro forma declaration would have met the views of the promoters of the movement, who had not expected to find the stock bought for the sake of control and converted into something desirable for its yield, the property being burdened simultaneously by new fixed charges. However, the result has been and will be to stimulate activity in a sluggish property, and it is not necessary for the purposes of yesterday's market to consider other features of the plan too seriously.

Brooklyn Rapid Transit lost its strength of Tuesday, parting company with Metropolitan, of which both varieties rose upon considerable business. It is said that Brooklyn has lost its chance of access to Manhattan through Delancey Street, and that Metropolitan is to be "compelled" to alter its single horse track into a double track electric route, monopolizing this business. Upon this tale, which floated across the great gulf fixed between Brooklyn and Manhattan Boroughs, was embroidered the fil-na-tured remark that Tammany would not need to worry about this Fall's election expenses, and that the political buying reported yesterday was adequately explained. It is more difficult to see why the story, even if confirmed, should depress Brooklyn. It would not cost it a single fare, and it would shorten the haul necessary to earn a nickel.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Traders Sell, but Prices Rise—Steel Up Two Points More—Position of Southern Pacific Preferred.

Much profit taking went on in the stock market yesterday, yet many of the active stocks made further gains, and a majority of the issues dealt in closed a little above Tuesday's level. In some quarters it was a matter of surprise that the list acted as well as it did, in view of the heavy selling of a number of stocks by those who were influenced by the further advances recorded early in the day to take their profits. In some cases the buying from whatever source it came was sufficiently influential to offset all such selling and to advance prices despite it. This was notably true in Reading, which, according to report, was sold quite heavily by Philadelphia interests, who had taken the long side of the stock much lower down. The buying of this stock which attracted most attention yesterday was that by H. B. Hollins & Co., who have executed a number of important orders in this stock in the past.

Short Interest Reduced.

Little doubt exists that at least some part of the market's recent strength has been due to covering by some shorts who had until lately refused to accept the situation and take their losses. That this movement has gone a considerable way toward reducing the short interest in the market, thus removing one of the sources of strength, is apparently indicated by the lessened demand for stocks in the loan crowd, reports from which say that for several days past the demand for stocks has been steadily decreasing. At the same time the general disposition seems to be to look for still higher prices, and important interests are credited with a willingness to still further promote the market's upward tendency.

Interest in Southern Pacific Preferred.

Among the Harriman stocks the trading that attracted most attention was that in Southern Pacific preferred, which was decidedly strong, despite the failure of the common stock to make any advance over the previous day's close. Decidedly good buying has been recognized in the new preferred stock for some time, and in many quarters the stock is expected to advance further. It is said that the first dividend on the stock will be declared immediately after the payment of the final installment on the stock on Dec. 1. The first declaration on the stock is looked for with interest for the reason that the Street is still in doubt what dividend the Directors will decide to pay on it. The point is frequently made that were it accepted as assured that the full 7 per cent. would be paid the stock would sell much higher.

Two-Point Advance in Steel.

Trading in the Steel stocks far exceeded in activity that in any other quarter of the market, and the gain in the preferred was the largest recorded in any active issue. It closed at the very highest of the day with a net advance of 2 points, the common showing a net gain of only a quarter. For this strength the prospect that the earnings for the past quarter will make a much better showing than had been expected was largely responsible. Moreover, yesterday's trade reports were more encouraging, and in many quarters the view was expressed that the situation at the moment is vastly better than any one thought safe to predict three months ago. There appeared to be a good deal of short covering in Steel, but the most persistent of the buying was not thought to be for short account.

U. S. REALTY DIRECTORS.

Temporary Board Replaced by Permanent—To be Larger.

At a meeting held yesterday the temporary Board of Directors of the United States Realty and Improvement Company was retired and a permanent board elected, consisting of James Stillman, P. A. Valentine of Chicago, H. S. Black, J. W. Gates, and R. E. Dowling. This board then elected officers of the company as follows: President—H. S. Black; Vice President—R. E. Dowling; Secretary and Counsel—R. G. Babbage; Treasurer—B. M. Fellowes.

It was voted to increase the membership of the Board of Directors from five to eighteen at the next stockholders' meeting, which has been called for Oct. 12. This necessary change in the company's by-laws to make possible this increase will be enacted at the meeting.

WILLIAMS OUT OF SEABOARD.

His Work to be Done by Blair—Middendorf Out, Too.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Seaboard Air Line yesterday John Skelton Williams and J. W. Middendorf resigned as Directors and Charles A. Conant and N. S. Meldrum were elected to fill their places. Mr. Williams also resigned as member of the Executive Committee, his successor being C. Sidney Shepard.

The office of Chairman of the board, held by Mr. Williams, was abolished, and the duties and powers of that office will devolve on James A. Blair as Chairman of the Executive Committee. The Williams holdings were bought by Thomas F. Ryan several weeks ago on behalf of the dominant interest.

IRON TRADE CONDITIONS.

In its weekly review of the situation in the iron trade The Iron Age says:

The apparently conflicting reports which reach the public with reference to the condition of the iron trade are less at variance when the situation is more carefully studied.

It is hardly necessary to repeat that the pig iron industry, with its open market, reflects most closely the shifting currents of the demand. It is here that activity has been sustained fairly well lately, quite a number of large buyers having entered the markets. Our correspondents at different points report quite an aggregate of orders, and note further inquiries.

Pig iron production is proceeding at an increased rate, but the very large interests express belief that the maximum will be reached early in November, and that then some blowing out may become necessary.

When we turn to the long and varied line of finished products we encounter two currents of belief which tinge the views of ironmakers. A large number of them see a good deal of encouragement in the greater freedom with which specifications on old orders are coming in, and attach little importance to the fact that, on the whole, new business is slow. Others state that they did not expect any stimulation of the demand from the recent reductions in prices and do not look for the development of a buying movement until February or March. The course of events in the interval must determine whether that buying movement will start at the present level or whether the widespread views in the trade that a somewhat lower range of prices must first be reached are sound.

GENERAL BUSINESS ITEMS.

According to Chicago dispatches the Illinois and Wisconsin Railroad has been incorporated to build from Chicago to Barrington, Ill.

At the annual stockholders' meeting of the Fitchburg Railroad an issue of $3,680,000 bonds was approved to pay bonds maturing June 1, 1905, negotiable promissory notes, and for additions and improvements.

Colorado Springs dispatches state that a new telephone company has been incorporated in Colorado City, to be known as the El Paso Telephone Company, with a capitalization of $500,000.

Twenty-five shares of National City Bank stock sold on the Stock Exchange yesterday at 277½.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Tradesmen's Trust Company of Philadelphia has been called for Nov. 22 for the purpose of voting on a proposition to increase the capital stock of the company by $500,000 to $1,000,000, and to raise the par value of the shares from $50 to $100.

Incorporation papers have been issued to the Chicago Southern Railway Company, with its principal office in Chicago.

ONTARIO AND WESTERN PLAN.

New Mortgage, Dividend, and End of the Voting Trust.

Announcement of the plan of the management of the New York, Ontario and Western which would make possible the declaration of a dividend was made at the annual meeting of the stockholders, which was held yesterday at the offices of the company in this city. The plan, in short, provides for a new mortgage of $12,000,000 to be authorized at a special meeting of the stockholders, and for the payment of a dividend of $3 a share on the common stock, thus ending the voting trust. There was no opposition at the meeting by the stockholders' committee, of which J. B. Clews is Chairman. That committee voted 112,280 for the regular Directors, while the management voted 394,922 shares, the largest number of proxies it ever held. After the meeting the stockholders' committee announced that the suit instituted for the purpose of dissolving the voting trust would be abandoned, as its object would be accomplished by the declaration of the dividend.

Under the company's articles of incorporation, when that is done the common stockholders will have the right to elect a full Board of Directors. It does not necessarily mean that the voting Trustees will go out of business before the forty preferred shares now outstanding are turned in. When the preferred stock is reduced to the level of a plain 6 per cent. stock, possessing no greater voting rights than those enjoyed by the ordinary shares, there will be no further object in holding them out, and they are therefore likely to be exchanged for bonds without delay under the terms of the legislative act. When this is done the voting trust will be a thing of the past.

As soon as Jacob H. Schiff had been elected Chairman to preside over the meeting, President Fowler read a statement, in which he referred with some feeling to the action of some of the stockholders, on the results of his long management of the property. He then outlined the plan for the payment of a dividend.

All of the old Directors were re-elected except Chauncey M. Depew, who was succeeded by J. E. Childs, General Manager of the company. Mr. Depew's retirement was due to the fact that he had sold the few shares of preferred stock he held.

THE LONDON MARKET.

LONDON, Sept. 28.—Money was in good demand in the market to-day. Discounts weakened in consequence of anticipations of easier money in October and an influx of gold into the Bank of England.

Prices on the Stock Exchange opened firm, with business quiet, and closed fairly steady. Consols hardened on the money prospects, but eased later. Home rails were active and higher on better traffic returns.

Americans opened irregular, grew firmer to above parity, the support being mostly professional, and closed steady at below the best quotations of the day.

Grand Trunk was strong.

Foreigns were undecided. Japanese were weaker. Imperial Japanese Government 6s of 1904 were quoted at 96¾.

Closing prices:

Consols for money, 88 5-16; consols for account, 88⅜; Anaconda, 4⅜; Atchison, 86; Atchison preferred, 103½; Baltimore and Ohio, 92; Canadian Pacific, 133¼; Chesapeake and Ohio, 44; Chicago Great Western, 17; Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, 163¼; De Beers, 18⅝; Denver and Rio Grande, 30½; Denver and Rio Grande preferred, 85; Erie, 32½; Erie first preferred, 69½; Erie second preferred, 48; Illinois Central, 142½; Louisville and Nashville, 128½; Missouri, Kansas and Texas, 26¼; New York Central, 133¼; Norfolk and Western, 71; Northern Pacific preferred, 92½; Ontario and Western, 37⅝; Pennsylvania, 68½; Rand Mines, 10½; Reading, 84⅜; Reading first preferred, 43½; Reading second preferred, 38¾; Southern Railway, 21; Southern Railway preferred, 58¾; Southern Pacific, 58⅝; Union Pacific, 104⅜; Union Pacific preferred, 95¼; United States Steel, 18⅝; United States Steel preferred, 72⅛; Wabash, 21½; Wabash preferred, 43½; Spanish 4s, 87⅞.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 37.23; Lisbon 20.

Bullion amounting to £5,000 was taken into the Bank of England on balance today. The sum of £50,000 was withdrawn for shipment to France.

In Continental Centres.

PARIS, Sept. 28.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were irregular, and the market closed dull. Russian Imperial 4s were quoted at 93.10 and Russian bonds of 1904 at 502.00.

The private rate of discount was 1¾ per cent.

Three per cent. rentes 97f 70c for the account. Exchange on London 25f 18c for checks.

BERLIN, Sept. 28.—On the Boerse to-day trading was more active, and prices were well maintained.

Exchange on London 20 marks 40¼ pfennigs for checks.

Discount rates—Short bills, 2¾ per cent.; three months' bills, 3 per cent.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 28.—The market was very active and strong. The leader in activity was Seaboard stocks, and Northern Central and Atlantic Coast Line stocks were also in good demand, and at advanced prices. The general tendency of prices was upward. OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

Yesterday's market in unlisted securities was on a more active and broader scale than in some time. The previous day's market leaders, Northern Securities and Greene Copper—were joined by Southern Pacific preferred, which jumped 1½ points to 116 on large purchases, and retained the greater part of the advance. American Can preferred and Interborough Rapid Transit both acted contrary to the general list and closed at the day's low. Electric Vehicle preferred gained 1¼ points on the day's trading, closing at the top, 22½, which is a new high record for the year.

***

NORTHERN SECURITIES, which has shown such decided activity and strength for the past three days, opened with a rush five minutes before the official opening, 10 o'clock, with the first sale at an advance of 1¾. The next figure was made at a loss of ⅝, but subsequently the price reached 109¾, the highest price for the year. Similar buying as on the two other days was in evidence, and it is computed that London bought about 10,000 shares.

***

ST. LOUIS TRANSIT.—Upon the announcement of the plans for a readjustment of the finances of the St. Louis Transit Company there was a drop in the stock, from the previous reported sale, of 3 points.

The stock of the St. Louis Transit Company is to be exchanged for common stock of the United Railways Company, in the form of voting trust certificates, at the ratio of two shares of United Railways common for five shares of Transit stock. The capitalization is to be as follows:

	Author-ized.	In Treas-ury.	Outstand-ing.
Bonds—Gen. mort.	$42,000,000	.....	$42,000,000
Bonds—Imp. 5s	10,000,000	.....	10,000,000
Preferred stock	20,000,000	$7,016,800	12,983,200
Common stock	25,000,000	86,200	24,913,800
Total	$97,000,000	$7,103,000	$89,897,000

This is a reduction in capitalization of $88,000,000.

ROOSEVELT LETTER ONLY A NEWSPAPER'S SATIRE

Epistle That Stirred the West Was Printed in New York.

HUNT IS ABRUPTLY STOPPED

Denials Come from Everybody Concerned Before The Evening Post Confesses Itself the Culprit.

While various persons in the West, including Federal officials, were endeavoring to run to earth the culprit who had perpetrated a campaign roorback by forging the signature of President Roosevelt to a letter on the meat strike, the explanation of this incident came out in New York. This editorial note appeared in yesterday's Evening Post:

"The Evening Post has long feared that it was not read as attentively in the White House as it should be, and to-day we have conclusive evidence on the point. President Roosevelt is calling upon the District Attorney of Chicago to 'discover and punish' the authors of an 'absurd and impudent forgery' of a letter purporting to have been written by him to Michael Donnelly.

"Now, the letter appeared as an editorial in The Evening Post of Aug. 1 and was explicitly stated to be a letter which 'the President might have written with advantage to himself and his country.' In other words, it was confessedly an imaginary letter, written for the sake of bringing out certain truths in regard to the meat strike. The sentiments which we put into the mouth of the President seemed and still seem to us admirable, and we are naturally pained that he should repudiate them with such heat.

"We had no thought, of course, of being able to make even a presentable imitation of the President's literary style, and as the article was at the time commented upon and reproduced somewhat extensively in the press, we never dreamed of its ever coming to figure as a 'campaign forgery.'"

This explanation came too late, however, to interfere with the searching inquiry ordered by William Loeb, the President's Secretary, at the direction of Mr. Roosevelt. Federal officials in Chicago had been asked to inquire of Mr. Donnelly if he had ever received such a letter from any source. Federal authorities in Denver were told to start a searching inquiry, calling upon the publishers of The Miners' Magazine, which printed the letter, for a copy of the document and information how it had come into their possession.

W. D. Haywood, Secretary of the Western Federation of Miners, of which the Miners Magazine is the organ, according to a dispatch from Denver, laid the responsibility on The Wisconsin Toiler. He did not know where The Toiler was published, but said the Miners' Magazine had copied it from that periodical.

From Chicago came word that Michael Donnelly, President of the Meat Cutters' Union, to whom the letter was supposed to have been addressed, had repudiated it. He thought it was "a stupid piece of political work."

United States Attorney S. H. Bethea, at Chicago, at the same time sent this word to William Loeb, Secretary to the President:

"I have seen Mr. Donnelly. He of course received no such letter as that referred to in the morning papers and expresses his desire to find the person who first printed it as a genuine letter and wishes to do anything in his power to counteract its extended effect."

The Socialists also hastened to absolve themselves from blame. William Mailly, their National Secretary, issued a statement at Chicago, in which he said:

"The Socialist Party has no share in the responsibility incurred by the circulation of the fictitious letter said to have been written to Michael Donnelly by President Roosevelt. The letter bears on its face the evidence of its own spuriousness, for, even if the President entertained the views attributed to him, it would have been eminently tactless and foolish for him to have given them out in that form at this time."

Inquiry in Milwaukee brought from the editor of The Wisconsin Toiler a statement that he had copied the letter from The St. Paul Globe. The Globe denied that it had ever had the letter before it, was carried in the press dispatches the night before.

HUNT FOR FORGER STOPPED.

Secretary Loeb Gets a Hint and Looks Up Back Files.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—In view of the discovery that the so-called forged letter to Michael Donnelly of Chicago, signed "Theodore Roosevelt," recently published in Western periodicals, was published in The New York Evening Post two months ago with an explanation that it was a letter which the President "might" write, the order given the law officers at Chicago to ferret out and prosecute the author of the alleged forgery was canceled to-day.

This morning a letter was received at the White House from Georgia in which the writer explained that the published letter which caused so much annoyance appeared in The New York Evening Post of Aug. 1. Secretary Loeb hunted up the files of that paper and discovered the statement of the Georgia correspondent was correct. At the White House to-night it was declared that the President had nothing to say about the matter beyond expressing satisfaction that the mystery had been removed.

HUMAN LADDER SAVES WOMEN.

Williamsburg Policemen Do Brave Work in Smoke-Filled Tenement.

But for the work of Roundsman Michael A. Lyons of the Bedford Avenue Police Station and Fireman Thomas J. Moloney of Hook and Ladder Company 56 there would probably have been a loss of life early yesterday morning at a fire which broke out among a large quantity of waste in the cellar of a three-story brick tenement house at 53 Kent Avenue, Williamsburg.

Thirty people were living in the house, and when they were aroused they discovered escape from the third floor had been cut off. Lyons and Moloney, with Edward McGrath, a special policeman, went through an adjoining house at 51 Kent Avenue and reached the roof of the burning dwelling. Moloney dropped from the roof to the third floor fire-escape, while Lyons leaned over the edge with McGrath sitting on his legs to prevent him from losing his balance.

Although the smoke enveloped the entire rear of the house, Moloney dragged Mrs. Tillie Walton out of her bedroom unconscious, and swung her over to the roof, where Lyons caught her. Mrs. Walton's mother-in-law and an eight-months-old child were also saved by way of the roof.

While this was going on Mrs. Carrie Brown, Mrs. Ellen Reddy, and Mrs. Jane Dempsey jumped from second-story windows and were severely injured.

STERN TO SUCCEED MACK.

Board of Education Postpones Election of a President.

Mayor McClellan announced the appointment yesterday of Samuel Stern to the Board of Education to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Jacob W. Mack. Mr. Stern is a Director and a member of the Executive Committee of the Mount Sinai Hospital, President of the Harlem Business Men's League, and a partner in the firm of Straiton & Storm.

As the result of a caucus held at noon in the office of Commissioner Abraham Stern the election of a successor to the late President Henry A. Rogers was laid over in the afternoon at the meeting of the Board of Education. Acting President Frank L. Babbot, the choice of the majority, has announced that he will not accept unless the vote is unanimous.

An advance report on the letter of Mayor McClellan regarding the part-time problem was made by the Committee on Elementary Schools. One paragraph read:

"The problem of giving a full day's schooling to every child in the city would be easy of solution if the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, the Department of Finance, and the Law Department would co-operate promptly with the Board of Education in the acquisition of sites for schools."

The full report will be given at a special meeting of the board.

NO POLICE PRESENTS.

McAdoo Won't Allow Gift from Men to Their Sergeant.

Friends of Sergt. Daniel L. Bunce of the Hamburg Avenue Station, in Brooklyn, met with a refusal from Police Commissioner McAdoo yesterday of their request that the patrolmen and other men under the Sergeant be allowed to present to him a gold watch on Dec. 21 in recognition of the anniversary of his twenty-five years' service in the Police Department. The Commissioner refused the request on the ground that to allow the presentation of the gift would be a violation of one of the department rules, which expressly forbids such gifts from the patrolmen to their superior officers.

Gen. Greene, Mr. McAdoo's predecessor, several times enforced the rule, and Mr. McAdoo thinks the rule good enough.

NAMED THE WRONG MEE.

Complaint Against George Blair Amended to Correct a Mistake.

Judge Lacombe in the United States Circuit Court yesterday signed an order in the action brought against George Blair, former Superintendent of the Outdoor Poor, by Annie Buser, as the committee of Robert Walmsley, non compos mentis, ordering the name of Joseph P. Mee erased from the complaint filed in the action and that of John Hubert Mee substituted in its stead.

The complaint charged that Joseph P. Mee, a San Francisco lawyer, "conspired with and assisted" Blair in securing Walmsley's property. An affidavit filed yesterday by counsel for the complainant stated that through an accident the name of Joseph P. Mee was used for that of John Hubert Mee, the Mee mentioned being, according to the affidavit, an "estimable and representative member of the bar of San Francisco," against whom "a great injustice was done through the publication of the charges alleged in the complaint against Blair."

Governors Thought to Have Discussed Removal of Telephones.

The Governing Committee of the New York Stock Exchange held a meeting yesterday, at which it transacted something more than routine business. Although no information about the exact nature of its conclusions was obtainable, it was learned that it had before it two members of the Exchange, William S. Alley and S. L. Blood. The former is head of the firm of Alley, Conger & Co. and the latter is head of the firm of S. L. Blood & Co. Both these firms were on the list of those who on June 23 last had their telephone connection with the floor of the Exchange removed by order of the board. Eleven firms were affected by that order, and as far as is known only one has succeeded in having its telephones restored to it. It was said yesterday that there would be some further restorations.

Secretary William McClure of the Exchange, although he admitted that there had been a meeting, refused to give any information except to say that an announcement would probably be made in the morning. At the offices of the men who were before the Governors little more was learned. At the office of S. L. Blood & Co. it was denied that the firm's membership had been suspended or that it had been expelled, but to the question as to whether its telephone connection had been restored no definite reply could be secured. At the office of Alley, Conger & Co. Mr. Conger refused absolutely to talk about the matter. The meeting was not a long one, and was over by 5 o'clock, and this was taken to indicate that there had been no trial such as must precede every suspension or expulsion. If there had been, the meeting would probably have lasted well into the night.

According to the best information obtainable, Messrs. Alley and Blood were the only members before the board, and speculation was rife in Stock Exchange circles as to whether or not clemency would be extended to the other firms which were disciplined earlier in the Summer.

BATTLESHIP CONNECTICUT SEEKS THE WATER TO-DAY

Thirty-five Thousand Persons Will Probably Witness Launching.

DRESS REHEARSAL A SUCCESS

Navy Yard Officials Differ About Alleged Attempt to Wreck Vessel on the Ways.

At least 35,000 persons, according to the estimate of officials at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, will attend the launching of the battleship Connecticut this forenoon. When the Commandant's office was closed yesterday afternoon that number of tickets and passes had been distributed, and with the many persons whose position in the navy or other branches of the United States service will provide them an "open sesame" to the launching the total number will probably be swelled to 35,000.

"A big ship is very much like a little girl, and there is no telling when she will be ready, but, providing there be no hitch, the Connecticut will glide down her ways into the East River at 11 o'clock to-morrow forenoon, or very shortly after that time," said Naval Constructor Baxter, who will be in charge of the launching, yesterday afternoon.

The preparations for the launching were finished last night. Practically the entire afternoon was spent in a final rehearsal. Four hundred and fifty workmen under the direction of Naval Constructor Baxter and his aide, Assistant Constructor Robinson, went through a series of manœuvres covering the mechanical part of the launching ceremony. Everybody that will take an active part in the function with the exception of Miss Alice Welles, the Connecticut girl who will name the battleship, was in attendance.

The grease-covered ways along which the Connecticut will glide into the water have been covered with canvas lest sand or dust get into the grease layer and make friction which might set fire to the wooden cradle in which the big ship rests the moment her journey toward the river begins. The men who will unfasten the wooden props that at present hold the vessel captive will work in three relays. To each relay has been assigned the work of knocking loose one set of the wooden beams with which the ship is held.

Officials of the navy yard were reticent yesterday regarding the alleged attempt to wreck the Connecticut at her launching by placing an obstruction on the ways. Commander Barry, aide to Rear Admiral Rodgers, who is in charge, declared that it was not an explosive or anything formidable enough to cause serious damage to the battleship.

"The obstruction," he said, "was discovered a couple of weeks ago. It certainly was not placed there with an evil design. A great deal of flotsam and jetsam comes into the channel where the Connecticut lies with an underwater current, and this fact may be responsible for the finding of the obstruction. Then, again, some time ago a lot of the riff-raff along the bank of the channel fell into the water, and that again may explain it. There was at no time any danger to the Connecticut. Divers have been examining the ways every day since Saturday. They will go down to-night and again to-morrow morning immediately before the launching."

The Connecticut was heavily guarded yesterday, and the guards about her ponderous hull were doubled after dark. One official who was in a position to know said that the obstruction could not possibly have gotten on the ways by anything but by design. The obstruction consisted, it is understood, of a large piece of scrap iron, and was securely fastened to the ways some ten feet from the shore line, where the ways are only a few feet below the surface of the water. How anybody could have succeeded in getting so close to the seawall of the navy yard without being discovered, even under the cover of darkness, is a riddle to many of the officials.

"We have never had anything of this kind happen," said one of the officials, "and it is almost impossible to foretell with any degree of accuracy what would have happened. It would probably not have made a hole in the bottom of the ship. What might have happened—and what in all probability was the intention of the person who placed the obstruction—is this: The wooden blocks under the bottom of the ship, on which she glides down the ways, would have been stopped by the obstruction, and there would have been a sort of log jam under the middle of her hull. The ship would have been held up on the ways, with her bow and stern without support, and her 6,600 tons of dead weight would almost surely have broken her back."

In anticipation of the great crowds which will see the launching, Police Commissioner, McAdoo yesterday assigned 300 men to look after things.

"The cows will go unmilked in Connecticut to-morrow," said the Commissioner, "and we are bound to look out for the throngs that will come to the launching."

Besides the force of 200 men which will be stationed in the immediate neighborhood of the yard, the Commissioner has assigned 100 men specially to guard the Williamsburg Bridge. As there is an excellent view of the ship from the bridge, it is expected that great crowds will gather on the structure. The police will keep them moving.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 28.—Gov. Chamberlain left to-day for Brooklyn to attend the launching of the battleship Connecticut at the Brooklyn Navy Yard to-morrow.

RETICENT ABOUT PUNCH BOWL.

Naval Officer Won't Discuss Kearsarge Controversy—Protest to Navy Department.

Officials at the Brooklyn Navy Yard would not discuss yesterday the story that officers of the battleship Kearsarge were exceedingly displeased because Capt. Hemphill, formerly in command of the battleship, but now Captain of the navy yard, had accepted as intended for him a magnificent punch bowl which the Kaiser presented to the "Captain, officers, and crew" of the Kearsarge at the time of the Kiel regatta a year ago last June. Capt. Hemphill was commanding the Kearsarge then.

The story has it that there is so much feeling among the officers of the Kearsarge that they intend to present a protest to the Navy Department respecting the loss of the imperial memento, which they contend was not presented to any individual officer, but to the ship.

Capt. Hemphill at his office in the navy yard would say nothing. The Kearsarge was moored at the navy yard. Reporters were permitted to cross the gangway only after having pledged themselves not to broach the story of the Kaiser's punch bowl.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—According to the understanding in naval circles here, the controversy between Capt. Hemphill, formerly of the Kearsarge, and the officers of that vessel over the silver punch bowl which was the gift of Emperor William after the naval manœuvres at Kiel, has already been [illegible] attention of the Navy Department.

It is believed [illegible] understood to [illegible] sion as custo[illegible] it to the vessel [illegible] Brooklyn Navy [illegible] of Capt. Hemphill.

BASED ON "MORAL VIOLENCE."

George Crocker Sues Prof. Doyen of Dreyfus Trial Fame.

"Moral violence" is the odd ground upon which George Crocker seeks through the French courts to compel Prof. Doyen of Paris to disgorge at least a portion of a $20,000 fee, which he declares he paid him for attending Mrs. Crocker, who died at Newport in July last from cancer shortly after her return from France.

Dr. Doyen, who came in for much unpleasant notoriety in connection with the Dreyfus trial, announced the discovery of a secret for cancer two years ago, and a little later declared that he had made twenty-one cures. Mrs. Crocker was examined by Dr. Doyen while at Cannes with her husband last Spring. Mr. Crocker alleges that the doctor said that he might readily effect a cure, although her case had been pronounced hopeless by noted American physicians.

Mr. Crocker, through Coudert Brothers as counsel, in a bill of complaint addressed to the President of the Civil Tribunal of the Seine, alleges that he then engaged Dr. Doyen. The doctor, he says, refused to name his fee beforehand. On May 11, however, after he had been treating Mrs. Crocker two weeks, he had a conversation with Mr. Crocker over the telephone, and, the husband says, fixed the fee at $20,000. He said, too, according to Mr. Crocker, that it must be paid at once or he would abandon the case. Mr. Crocker admits that he paid the money, although he regarded the demand as preposterous.

Mrs. Crocker grew worse as the treatment was continued, until on May 25 Mr. Crocker consulted another physician, who advised him to dismiss Dr. Doyen. Mr. Crocker further says that Dr. Lee, who was Dr. Doyen's assistant, confessed to him when Mrs. Crocker's condition became critical that he, Dr. Lee, had known for some time that a cure was impossible. Mr. Crocker asks the court to determine a fair fee for Dr. Doyen's services, and compel him to give up the difference. He also asks the court to award the entire amount recovered to the Pasteur Institute of France.

McADOO SLAPS AT CROKER.

Ignores Chief's Criticism of Police in Letter to Superior.

Police Commissioner McAdoo replied with some warmth yesterday to Fire Chief Croker's assertion that the police were neglecting their duty. He said that Chief Croker might better have made his criticism directly instead of having it printed in the newspapers first.

He later wrote a letter to Fire Commissioner Hayes, thus going over Croker's head. The letter said that Chief Croker had criticised the police for general laxity in patrolling and failing to send in fire alarms. It continued:

"You will, of course, not expect me to discuss with any other department a general criticism of the efficiency of the police, especially by an officer subordinate to you.

"The other criticism, however, is one with which we are all concerned, not only as public officials, but as good citizens, and if you will state to me in writing that there is any inefficiency on the part of the police or failure to do their duty in the matter of sending in alarms of fires, I will be glad to take the question up with you at once and issue such orders and take such other measures as I deem necessary to beget more vigilance on the part of the force in the performance of this important work."

WOULD STOP ALIENATION SUIT.

G. A. Collis Says He Didn't Authorize Lawyer to Bring It.

At the instance of George A. Collis, Justice Maddox, sitting in Special Term of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday handed down an order directing Overbaugh & Parratt, who are acting as the attorneys for Collis, to show cause why they should not discontinue an action brought by them, and in which Collis appears as plaintiff. The action is against Mayo L. French for $25,000 damages for the alleged alienation of the affections of Lillian E. Collis, the wife of the appliean[illegible].

In the affidavit accompanying the order Collis alleges that he never authorized his attorneys to institute the suit, and that he was made a plaintiff without authority. He further says that the suit may seriously affect his rights in another action, in which he is being sued by his wife for a divorce.

In an affidavit sworn to by Marvin E. Parrat he alleges that he was retained by Collis to defend him in the divorce proceedings; that the man made a statement to him which warranted the bringing of the action against French, and told him over the telephone to proceed with the suit.

ANOTHER TUNNEL VICTORY.

Certiorari Refused to the Lackawanna, Which Will Appeal.

SENATOR HOAR DEAD AFTER A LONG ILLNESS

End Comes Peacefully with Family at the Bedside.

UNCONSCIOUS SINCE TUESDAY

Physicians Long Ago Gave Up Hope, but the Senator Made a Brave Fight for Life.

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 30.—George Frisbie Hoar, senior United States Senator from Massachusetts, died at his home in this city at 1.35 o'clock this morning.

The end followed a period of unconsciousness that had continued since early Tuesday, and came so gently that only the attending physicians were aware of the exact moment of dissolution.

The attending physicians despaired of the Senator's life six weeks ago, but such was the vitality exhibited by their distinguished patient that even they were surprised and the public was at times led to cherish a faith in an ultimate recovery.

On Sunday last, however, all hope was abandoned after a last unsuccessful attempt to administer medicine and nourishment. Brief lucid intervals were followed by longer durations of unconsciousness until Tuesday morning, when the venerable statesman sank into a state of coma from which all efforts to rouse him proved futile.

When he died the immediate members of the Senator's family were at his bedside.

Dr. Warren Gilman said yesterday that Mr. Hoar had failed more noticeably Wednesday night than any previous night, and it was evident that the end was much nearer. The physician pointed out the possibility that the patient might live all day. He had taken no nourishment since Sunday.

Yesterday afternoon, said Dr. Gilman, the stupor of the patient had deepened. The Senator's condition was painless. His pulse was perceptible only to the expert finger, and his breathing feeble and irregular. Nevertheless, the doctor said, there was a constitutional hold on life which might not break for some hours.

At midnight the attending physicians said that their patient might live until well into to-day. He was maintaining to the last the wonderful fight he had made against death. The immediate members of the Senator's family were at his bedside.

Senator Hoar's Career.

George Frisbie Hoar, since 1877 a United States Senator from Massachusetts, and the last of the old-time Senatorial school, was born in Concord, Mass., Aug. 29, 1826. His father was Samuel Hoar, a distinguished lawyer of Concord, while his grandfather, Samuel Hoar, was a Captain in the Revolutionary Army. His mother was a daughter of Roger Sherman.

Senator Hoar was educated at the Concord Academy and Harvard University, graduating in 1846. He then entered the Harvard Law School, and after his graduation began the practice of his profession in Worcester. In a very few years he succeeded in building up a practice which was conceded to be the most lucrative and extensive in that part of the State.

Senator Hoar was twenty-five years of age when his political career began. This was in 1851, in which year he was elected a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, where he soon took rank as one of its ablest and most learned members. In 1857 he was elected a member of the Massachusetts Senate.

It was while a State Senator that he framed the exhaustive report, as Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, defining the boundaries of the executive and legislative branches of the Government. In 1869 he gained a great name for himself by his speech before the Legislature in advocacy of technical education, which was among the first, if not the first, adequate public statement in behalf of that important branch of education. This was Mr. Hoar's last notable appearance as a State legislator, for in that year, on his return from a vacation in Europe, he was nominated by the Republicans to represent his district in the National House of Representatives.

In accepting the nomination Mr. Hoar declared that the two great questions then before the country was the security of human rights and the duty of the Government to pay every dollar of the National debt in coin, according to the undertaking on which it was contracted. To labor for these ends he pledged himself, and in championing them he soon assumed a commanding position in a Congress among whose members were Stevens, Blaine, Conkling, Garfield, Kelley, Fernando Wood, Randall, Cox, Voorhees, and other able men.

Almost at the very beginning of his Congressional career Mr. Hoar was brought into the public eye by his reply to an assault made upon Massachusetts by Mr. Voorhees of Indiana. The young Congressman's reply to the Indiana statesman was such a sharp castigation that it was never necessary to repeat it.

In the same Congress Mr. Hoar had another famous tilt, his opponent being the New York Congressman "Sunset" Cox. Mr. Cox, it is said, deliberately tempted the Massachusetts man to a trial of skill in personal debate. After a lengthy duel, in which sarcasm and wit of every conceivable nature was resorted to, Mr. Cox voiced his regret that Massachusetts was not represented by her senior member and doughtiest champion, Mr. Dawes.

"Troy," said Mr. Cox, "was defended by Hector, yet Troy fell," whereupon Mr. Hoar replied:

"I have frequently noticed that when a man has done or is about to do something sneaky, he accompanies it with cursing Massachusetts. The Democratic Party, when they were whipping women and selling little children into slavery in the Southern States, always undertook to cover themselves from public attention by cursing Massachusetts. The gentleman has said that, like Troy of old, Massachusetts is not defended on this floor to-day by her ablest Representative. Let me say to that gentleman that Troy did not need to put forward Hector to defend her against an attack which was led by Thersites!"

It was his work in advocacy of his bill for National education upon which Mr. Hoar's fame in that Congress principally rests. The presentation of the bill was the occasion of a long debate, in which Mr. Hoar delivered two masterful arguments in its favor. The measure failed, however, and was introduced in the succeeding Congress and met with the same fate. Finally, in the Forty-third Congress, it passed the House, but was defeated in the Senate.

Another famous oration that Mr. Hoar delivered as a Congressman was in behalf of a bill he introduced for the rebuilding, at the exuense of the Nation, of the famous old Virginia institution, William and Mary College, the college having been destroyed during the civil war.

In the Fall of 1872 Mr. Hoar delivered a speech in favor of the election of Gen. Grant to the Presidency that Roscoe Conkling declared was the greatest speech delivered in that campaign. It was also in that year that Mr. Hoar delivered his eulogy of Charles Sumner.

Other famous incidents in his career in this Congress were his argument in the Belknap impeachment proceedings, which was so powerful that it is known to have changed the opinions of enough Senators to switch a majority against to a majority in favor of taking jurisdiction in the case. In the course of that great oration Mr. Hoar declared that the Constitution had no safeguards to throw away, and that the greatest evil resulting from the indiscriminate attack by the press upon public men was not that innocence suffers, but that crime escapes. It was also in this session that Mr. Hoar, with Gen. Garfield, made a great reputation in connection with the Electoral Commission. In 1876 Mr. Hoar was elected a United States Senator, taking his seat March 5 of the following year.

In 1880 Senator Hoar presided over the Republican National Convention, one of the greatest assemblages of the kind in history, and his handling of it, it is admitted, has never been surpassed, and seldom, if ever, equaled on any similar occasion.

Among the famous speeches delivered by the venerable Massachusetts Senator in recent years were those in opposition to the acquisition of the Philippines and on the Mormon question, and his remarks on the resolution looking to war with Spain. The following excerpt from the last speech is illustrative of the wonderful style and ability of the man.

"I confess I do not like to think of the genius of America angry, snarling, shouting, screaming, kicking, clawing with her nails. I like rather to think of her in her august and serene beauty, inspired by a sentiment, even toward her enemies, not of hate, but of love, perhaps a little pale in the cheeks, and a dangerous light in her eyes, but with a smile on her face; as sure, as determined, unerring, invincible as was the Archangel Michael when he struck down and trampled upon the demon of darkness."

In 1900 Senator Hoar was elected President of the Association of the Alumni of Harvard, and prior to that was, for many years, one of the Overseers of the University, and also a Regent of the Smithsonian Institution. Besides he was President of the American Antiquarian Society, a Trustee of the Peabody Museum of Archaeology and of Leicester Academy, President of the American Historical Association and a member of the American Historical Society, the Massachusetts Historical Society, the Historic Genealogical Society, the Virginia Historical Society, and the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences. The degree of Doctors of Laws has been conferred upon by by Harvard and Yale Universities and by Amherst and William and Mary Colleges.

Senator Hoar's illness may be said to date from the death of his wife during the last session of Congress. The devotion of the couple was well known in Washington, and it was predicted by many of the aged Senator's friends at the time that he would not long survive.

After her death he appeared only a few times on the floor of the Senate, and even then did so against the advice of his physician. When he arrived in Worcester from Washington at the end of the session, Senator Hoar's enfeebled condition was much commented upon by his friends. The fatal turn in his illness came on the 3d of this month.

The day following the announcement of his illness he issued a statement through The Associated Press in which he stated that he was ill of lumbago, complicated with what he termed Washington malaria. He further stated that on his return to Massachussettee he had violated the orders of his physicians and had delivered several addresses, one of them at Sutton in the open air and another in the Worcester Court House, in honor of his friend, Col. Stoddard.

"Senator Hoar," the statement concluded, "will be very glad to see any of his friends of the press, and will be happy to have them bring with them any obiuratory or imprecatory epitheta for which they have themselves no present use, and which they are willing to lend. They are things of which the nature of his disease requires frequent use. It is not likely that he will be able to be of much service in the early part of the campaign, unless possibly by writing one or two letters."

WOMEN HOLD MID-AIR COMBAT.

Delay Pennsylvania Express by Fighting on High Jersey City Track.

Two women fighting on the elevated tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Newark Avenue and Henderson Street, Jersey City, attracted a great crowd yesterday. The women berated each other roundly as they fought, and a little girl, who was clinging to the skirts of one of the women, filled the air with her screams.

Several men tried to climb the supporting pillars of the trestle to reach the struggling women, but were unable to make the ascent. Then above the uproar came the whistle of a locomotive, and an incoming express train was brought to a stop to avoid running over the contestants, who seemed quite oblivious to everything but their own encounter.

In the meantime the operator in the signal tower at Henderson Street had telephoned to the Gregory Street Police Station. Both women were placed under arrest and detained on the west-bound track until the delayed express train made its way to the station. Then they and the child were taken to the police station.

The woman with the child said she was Mrs. Louis Triby of 172 Morgan Street. She said her antagonist in the midair fight was Mrs. Jane Schultz of Hackensack, N. J.

GIRDNER VISITS PARKER AFTER COLORADO TALK

Ex-Gov. Thomas Had Told Judge of Bryan's Strength There.

BUSY WITH CALLERS ALL DAY

Democratic Candidate May Go to Esopus This Afternoon and Return Next Tuesday.

Probably the visitor whose presence in the apartments of Judge Parker at the Seville yesterday caused the most curiosity and whose visit was believed to be very significant was Dr. John H. Girdner, close political and personal friend of William Jennings Bryan. While neither the Judge nor Dr. Girdner would discuss their conference, it can be said it was of great importance. The man who almost invariably entertains Mr. Bryan at his residence when he comes to New York came to the Seville by invitation of Judge Parker.

It is believed that the visit of ex-Gov. Charles S. Thomas of Colorado on Wednesday, who devoted a large part of his talk to the strength of Mr. Bryan in the Rocky Mountain States, had a great deal to do with the invitation to Dr. Girdner. It develops that the conference between Judge Parker and ex-Gov. Thomas on Wednesday gave the candidate the greatest satisfaction. Every hope of carrying Colorado was held out, and also from what the Colorado man said there seemed a good many reasons for believing that Wyoming, Idaho, Nevada, Utah, and Montana would be found also in the Democratic column. Mr. Thomas described at length the enthusiasm observable in all parts of Colorado, and dwelt particularly upon the time it reached fever heat when William J. Bryan spoke to thousands in the Coliseum in Denver a short time ago.

Mr. Thomas brought Mr. Bryan's Denver speech to the Judge to read. Among the excerpts made as being particularly strong and therefore of interest to the Democratic standard-bearer of 1904, coming as they did from the standard-bearer of 1896 and 1900, were these:

"A blow struck at civil government anywhere is a blow struck at civil government everywhere."

"Put back the sword into its scabbard, the rifle into its place, and do justice between man and man, and make peace in Colorado and make it stay.

"You are sowing dragon's teeth in Colorado.

"If imperialism is practiced in the Philippines, we will ultimately have it in the United States.

"You can bring peace for a time by force, but not permanently. You have got to bring it by justice from man to man.

"I believe that the election of Parker and Davis will put this Nation upon a Constitutional basis, so that we may notify the world that we are no longer swaggering about with a chip on our shoulder, but are in a position to settle questions by reason and arbitration rather than by the sword.

"If you read history you will find that organized wealth never visited upon the masses punishment without evidence, without setting a precedent that in time was used against the very class that set the precedent."

The day was much akin to the first series of conferences held at the Hotel Astor. They came and went all day long. Some came confident; when they departed they were sure of victory. Some came doubtful and left their doubt behind. It is known that the buoyancy of the candidate acts like a tonic upon all who call.

Senator Gorman, National Chairman Taggart, State Chairman Meyer, John Sharp Williams, Lieut. Gov. Willard of Virginia, Senator Simmons of North Carolina, ex-Mayor McGuire of Syracuse, J. Hampden Robb, Justice P. Henry Dugro, and ex-Gov. McMillin of Tennessee were among Judge Parker's callers.

Mayor McClellan plans to visit the Judge this morning, and Senator Clark of Montana has arranged for a conference some time to-day.

About 10 o'clock yesterday morning the Judge drove to the Appellate Division's building, at Twenty-fifth Street and Madison Square, where he met Justice Morgan J. O'Brien. After a short confab the candidate and Justice Patterson sauntered together back to the Seville. On the way the two became engrossed in some subject that moved the one to pound his left palm with his fist and the other to cut and slash at the atmosphere with his cane.

The earnest demeanor of the candidate and his associate attracted considerable attention.

Judge Parker did not go away from the Hotel Seville for his dinner last night, but later in the evening he hurried away in one of the hotel coupes and was gone for over two hours. With Judge McConville, head of the speakers' bureau of the National Committee, he went to the Hotel Collingswood, where Judge McConville is stopping. Judge McConville alighted and went to his rooms, while Judge Parker was driven rapidly away, going east again. He did not make his appearance at the Hotel Seville until 11:15 o'clock. He said then he had spent the evening with a life-long friend. This friend, it is understood, was Justice Morgan J. O'Brien of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court.

According to the plans at present, Judge Parker will return to Esopus on the 4 o'clock West Shore train this afternoon. He will probably return to New York next Tuesday morning and will again stop at the Hotel Seville.

WHITEMAN JUMPS FROM TRAIN.

Prisoner Dives from Fast Mail and Escapes from Guards.

BUFFALO, Sept. 29.—While being brought from St. Louis to Buffalo, Alonzo J. Whiteman to-night escaped from Detective Sergt. Albert Solomon of Buffalo and William H. Field, Assistant Surperintendent of a detective agency here. Whiteman accomplished his escape in most daring fashion, jumping from the Lake Shore fast mail train near Dunkirk.

Whiteman and the two officers were in a stateroom on a Pullman car. Whiteman was lying on a sofa. The train was pulling out of the Dunkirk yards and was running at about thirty miles an hour.

Whiteman suddenly left his seat and dived head first through the car window. Solomon and Field rushed to stop him, but were too late. They saw him on the ground as the train whizzed by.

The officers went to the conductor of the train, Mr. Rogers, and demanded that he stop. He refused, on the ground that the train was carrying United States mails on a fast schedule. The train, however, was stopped at Silver Creek just for a moment, to allow the detectives to alight, and they returned to Dunkirk on an accommodation train and began a search for the prisoner.

Whiteman was being brought back to Buffalo on an indictment charging forgery and grand larceny. He is suspected of having been implicated in a swindle in which the Fidelity Trust Company of Buffalo was the victim.

He was a graduate of the Columbia Law School. He went to Michigan and Minnesota, where he was very prosperous. He was elected to the Minnesota State Senate as a Democrat when but twenty-five years old and made an excellent record. He was the author of the Whiteman election law, which is now in force in Minnesota.

Whiteman served for a time as Chairman of the State Democratic Committee of Minnesota, and was a delegate to the National Convention of his party in 1888. In 1890 he lost his fortune in wheat speculation, and his downward career began.

Since then he has been arrested several times in various parts of the country.

H. C. PAYNE IS SERIOUSLY ILL.

Postmaster General Has Heart Trouble —Grave Concern Felt.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Postmaster General Henry C. Payne is seriously ill at his apartments at the Hotel Arlington here. Marked symptoms of heart trouble have developed, and his condition became so serious during the day as to cause grave concern.

Mr. Payne returned recently from a trip in the West, and appeared to be feeling much stronger, though his health has been poor for a long time. He went to the White House to attend the meeting of the Cabinet last Tuesday, and that night was very restless.

He was at his desk at the Post Office Department during the forenoon yesterday, although feeling very bad, but did not return to the department after lunch. He became very ill last night, and has been confined to his bed ever since.

Dr. G. Lloyd Magruder, who was his physician during his severe illness of some months ago, has been attending him, and Dr. Rixey, the Surgeon General of the Navy, also has been called in. During this evening President and Mrs. Roosevelt called at the hotel and made inquiries.

Dr. Magruder on leaving Mr. Payne's room late to-night gave out this statement:

The Postmaster General has not been feeling well for several days. Recently decided symptoms of heart trouble have developed. These were very serious during the night and the early part of to-day. He is responding to the remedies employed and is resting easier.

Mr. Francis H. Whitney, the Secretary to the Postmaster General, said late to-night: "The Postmaster General's will power kept him up till last evening, since which time he has been confined to his bed."

WOMAN ROBBED IN CAB.

Jewelry Taken from Her by Her Companion in Central Park.

That Mrs. Albert M. Reihl, wife of a Philadelphia business man, was beaten and robbed of her jewels in a cab in Central Park at 1 o'clock Tuesday morning came to light last evening, when two men were locked up at the Tenderloin Police Station charged with grand larceny. The prisoners said they were Charles D. Castleman, thirty-two, a gambler of 14 West Park Street, Newark, and Victor Anderson, twenty-four, of 312 West Twenty-third Street.

When Mrs. Reihl first told the police about the robbery she said that several weeks ago she was introduced to a man who said he was "C. D. Hullis" by a mutual friend. He said he was a theatrical agent, told Mrs. Reihl she had an excellent voice, and, as she wanted to go on the stage, she was much interested in stories he told about being acquainted with men high in theatrical circles. Hullis explained to Mrs. Reihl and her husband that he knew Col. Henry Savage very well, and if they desired would ask him to give Mrs. Reihl a chance to try for the stage. Mr. Reihl was finally persuaded by his wife to allow her to come to this city. She arrived on Monday last and registered at the Grand Hotel, Broadway and Thirtieth Street. Hullis was registered at the hotel. He had arrived a few days before. On the following day Hullis got a cab and with Mrs. Reihl drove to Central Park, entering at Seventy-fifth Street.

After they had driven a short distance, she alleges, Hullis grabbed her by the neck and struck her a blow in the jaw and leaped from the cab with a bag containing the jewels.

Among the jewelry was a diamond brooch, an opal and diamond ring, a gold brooch, a gold watch and chain, and a wedding ring.

Policeman McNamara, who was in the vicinity and saw the man running through the brush, drew his revolver and fired several times. The cabman and the policeman then searched, but were unable to find Hullis.

Mrs. Reihl was taken to her hotel and left for her home in Philadelphia that night.

Detectives searched the pawnshops, and yesterday they found that some of the jewelry had been pawned by a man answering the description of the man they were looking for. Some time later a clerk in the store saw the man who had pawned the jewelry across the street and called Policeman Steimmeier, who placed him under arrest. With him was another man.

The second man followed, and when Sergt. Place asked the prisoner his name he replied, "Charles D. Castleman." The second man smiled and said:

"Keep your mouth shut, Charlie," and started to leave the station house.

Sergt. Place thought the man acted in a peculiar manner and ordered his arrest. The pawnbroker identified Castleman as the man who had pawned the jewelry and stated that he had given him a $100 bill, two $50 bills, and the remainder in $10 bills. Similar bills had been found when he was searched.

Castleman, whom Mrs. Reihl describes as "Hullis," admitted, the police say, that he pawned the jewelry, but said that it belonged to his wife, and that he was not the man to whom Mrs. Reihl referred.

J. COLEMAN DRAYTON APPEALS TO M'ADOO

Says Police Sergeant Took Unusual Interest in Boy's Charges.

LAD HAD HIM IN COURT

Magistrate Could Find No Ground to Sustain Charges of Assault—Story of Seized Telegrams.

J. Coleman Drayton, son-in-law of Mrs. William Astor, was acquitted by Magistrate Flammer in the Yorkville Court yesterday of having assaulted Patrick O'Toole, an eighteen-year-old Western Union messenger boy, who had but recently landed from Ireland. Following his acquittal, Mr. Drayton placed the details of the case before Police Commissioner McAdoo, alleging that Police Sergeant William T. Judge of the Leonard Street Station called on him before the summons was served and invited a settlement out of court.

Mr. Drayton first called on District Attorney Jerome, and his action in placing the matter before Mr. McAdoo was the result.

O'Toole, who hardly looks his age, is a native of the County Mayo. According to the story he told Magistrate Flammer he had two telegrams to deliver Wednesday morning. One was for Miss Caroline Drayton and the other was for a person in the same neighborhood. He went to the Drayton home, 109 East Fifty-seventh Street, and rang the bell. There was no response. The house was dark, and he rang again. Finally a night watchman came to his assistance, and rang the bell several times.

"Mr. Drayton came to the door himself," said O'Toole. "When I told him I had a message for him he grabbed the whole thing out of my hand, delivery sheet and all. I was standing half way in the door, and when I told him all the telegrams wasn't for him he gave me a shove, and I would have fallen to the street if I hadn't fallen against the storm door. That saved me."

"Did it hurt you?" asked Magistrate Flammer.

"Sure I wasn't hurted," said O'Toole. "Do you suppose I'm waiting till I get hurted to go to coort?"

He said that Mr. Drayton threw the message, which was not addressed to his number, with the delivery sheet, at his head, and locked the door, after giving him another shove. He said he was unable to get back the telegram not meant for the Drayton home. As soon as he was off duty he consulted with Sergt. Judge, who is his brother-in-law, and was advised to get a summons. He did so, and served it himself.

Mr. Drayton denied that he had used the least bit of violence in dealing with O'Toole. He had come down stairs, sleepy, and the boy had handed him two telegrams. When he found out that one of the messages was not for him he handed it back.

Mr. Drayton was represented in court by ex-Assistant District Attorney James [redacted]. Assistant District Attorney Corrigan was also in court, but the reason for his presence did not develop until later in the day. O'Toole conducted his case for himself, although he had the moral support of Sergt. Judge, who was present.

Mr. Osborne said that he was surprised that Sergt. Judge should be in court, or that he should have mixed himself in the case at all.

"I am here," said the Sergeant, "because I have known the boy from childhood, and want to see him protected."

Magistrate Flammer asked O'Toole if the night watchman was in court, and the boy said he had not thought it necessary to produce him. The Magistrate then declared that he did not think the evidence submitted justified the issuance of a warrant and dismissed the summons.

After this action had been taken it developed that Mr. Corrigan was in court under instructions from District Attorney Jerome, who wished to find out just what part Judge was taking in the case.

After telling what happened at the house as he had done in court, Mr. Drayton last night made the following statement:

"The following morning I went to my office as usual. I had been there only a short time when Sergt. Judge arrived. He came in, announced his rank, and showed me his badge. He then informed me that the messenger boy who had brought a telegram to my house the night before was about to get out a summons for me on the charge of assault. He advised me to settle the matter without going into court.

'I know the boy,' the Sergeant told me. 'He has a great pull with the papers, and he can make a lot of notoriety and unpleasantness for you.'

"I asked the Sergeant what he had to do with the case, and he said that he was my friend and did not want to see me get into trouble. As soon as he left I went to District Attorney Jerome's office. Then I went to see Police Commissioner McAdoo. He was very busy, and I saw Inspector McClusky instead. He heard the case and then asked me to write a history of it from the beginning.

"When I reached Fifty-seventh Street on my way home I saw Judge and the messenger boy waiting on the corner. As I drew near Judge left. After I had entered my house the messenger boy rang the bell and asked to see me. When he came up stairs to my study he served the summons on me."

"I found a note to me from my daughter when I got home, telling me that Judge had called at the house after I left for the office and accused me of having assaulted the messenger. I rang up the employers of the night watchman, who, according to the messenger boy, was present when the telegrams were delivered. The man came to see me and said that he had not witnessed any assault.

"I have preferred no charges against Judge or anybody else. I have simply written Police Commissioner McAdoo a full statement, upon the advice of Inspector McClusky, to whom I was referred by the District Attorney's office, of all that occurred. I do not think that the action of Sergt. Judge in advising a settlement out of court and warning me that the boy had a pull with the newspapers and was able to make a great commotion was in accordance with the duties of his position."

Police Commissioner McAdoo did not care to discuss the case further than to say that it would be fully investigated.

Police Sergeant Judge does not deny that he called on Mr. Drayton at his office. He is most emphatic, however, in declaring that he advised no settlement of any kind. He was simply actuated by a desire to see that his young relation, who was new to America, was not harshly treated.

"I didn't mention money to Mr. Drayton," said Judge, "and I had no idea of trying to get any settlement of the charges except in court. I wanted justice for Patrick, that was all."

WILD ANIMALS AT LARGE.

Three Bears, a Buffalo, and Wolf Caught —Two Wolves Still Free.

LEXINGTON, Mass., Sept. 29.—The doors of several animal cages at Lexington Park accidentally were left open to-day. Three bears, a buffalo, and three wolves escaped. They were captured before they had roamed far, with the exception of two of the wolves.

These animals are very tame and are not considered dangerous by the keepers.

Founds Home for Drunkards' Wives.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Sept. 29.—Twenty thousand dollars to establish a home for drunkards' wives in Iowa is one of the bequests of the late James Callanan, the pioneer advocate of temperance during the latter years of his life.

PROFESSIONAL FASTER MOBBED

Man Immured in a Tower Becomes a Target for Stone Throwers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—There was almost a riot to-day on the Festwelse at Munich, where the annual country fair is being held.

A professional starver named Sacco caused himself to be immured in a tower and completely walled in. Sacco was seen only through a grated window. For some reason or other the people came to the conclusion that the affair was a fraud. A youth led a mob to the tower crying, "He is a fakir," and then stones were thrown through the window at Sacco's head.

The police arrested the youth and then told masons to dig the frightened Sacco from the tower. They have prohibited further exhibitions, fearing for the man's safety.

W. C. P. BRECKINRIDGE ILL.

Kentucky ex-Congressman Suffering from Stroke of Paralysis.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 29.—For the first time in years Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge, the noted criminal lawyer, is missing from his office in this city. His absence is due to an attack of vertigo which he suffered Wednesday night.

The attending physicians say to-night that the attack developed into a stroke of paralysis, but that the patient is resting easy, with chances for an early recovery greatly in his favor.

For twenty years Col. Breckinridge represented the famous old Ashland District in Congress, but the past few years he has devoted his time to the practice of law in this city.

AUTO WRECKED BY CAR.

Chaffeur's View Obstructed by Van, He Ran Into Trolley.

A ten-thousand-dollar automobile, while speeding south along Broadway about 6:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, ran into a north-bound trolley car at One Hundred and Sixteenth Street. The automobile, which belonged to J. L. Rice of 430 West One Hundred and Sixteenth Street, was demolished and the car was knocked off the tracks. William Martin, the motorman, and George Guttenberg, the chauffeur, were a little shaken up, but otherwise unhurt. Fortunately the passengers escaped without injury.

Guttenberg had driven Mr. Rice home and was on his way to a garage down town. As he turned into Broadway he discovered a big furniture van directly in front of him. The van acted as a screen and he could not see the approaching car.

HARVARD INSTRUCTOR KILLED.

Arthur D. Wyman Struck by an Automobile Run by a Student.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 29.—Arthur D. Wyman, an instructor in the chemical laboratory of Harvard, and a son of Charles F. Wyman, the Russian Consul at Boston, died to-day from injuries sustained by being run down by an automobile at midnight. The automobile was owned and operated by Leon Strauss, a student at Harvard.

Strauss was arrested on a charge of manslaughter to-day, but the case was continued until Oct. 8. Strauss furnished bail of $1,000.

Large Increase of Cases of Disease Reported from the Cities.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 29.—Just now the State Department of Health is receiving returns which show a large increase in the number of cases of "vacation typhoid" fever, especially in the cities. The disease, it has been proved, is contracted in the country, where the air and water are so "pure."

In many cases the water wells in country places where Summer boarders are taken are found to be contaminated with sewage

ADVICE TO RADCLIFFE GIRLS.

Dean Tells Freshmen to Keep Shoes Tied and Avoid Looking at Boys.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 29.—"Stand up straight, don't look at the boys, and keep your shoes tied," said Dean Irwin to girl freshmen at Radcliffe College to-day, when they assembled for the first time as a class to get a few words of advice concerning their conduct during the next four years.

Miss Irwin evidently was seriously impressed with the fact that Harvard University, less than 200 yards away, has a large number of attractive young men, for she cautioned her young hearers to act always with due decorum on the street.

"Walk right straight ahead, don't go looking about, and be modest," was the advice she offered as an antidote. She also cautioned them to hurry through the yard and to keep their skirts from dragging.

APARTMENT HOUSE COLLAPSES

Five Persons Hurt in Chicago Alderman's Building.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Three men were probably fatally injured and two less seriously to-day in the collapse of an apartment building being erected for Alderman Thomas Carey.

Standing on the roof timbers, Architect David Robertson was talking to the mason contractor, William Shea, at the time. Robertson escaped with slight injuries, but Shea is not expected to live.

The cause of the accident is believed to have been the breaking of a steel support.

CUNNEEN BARS THE WAY TO BARGE CANAL FRAUD

Forces the Board to Amend Plans and Specifications.

RESTRICTION PUT ON ENGINEER

Form of Contract Changed—Gov. Odell Ignores Law and Fails to Issue Bonds.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 29.—Plans and specifications for the first six contracts under the barge canal appropriation were approved this afternoon by the State Canal Board, but not until Attorney General Cunneen had forced the board to take such action as he believes will prove an effective obstacle to frauds in the construction of the $101,000,000 barge canal.

Mr. Cunneen caused changes to be made in the specifications which require that the contracts must be worked out in strict accordance with the plans and specifications, without leaving to the State Engineer or any of his assistants any discretion to deviate from them.

The board also adopted a standard form of contract, which leaves it optional with the bidder to submit prosopals in lump form or for each unit of work, or both.

An important development in connection with the barge canal scheme is that Controller Kelsey has paid no attention to the law directing him to issue bonds to secure the necessary money for meeting canal expenses. He has paid out $325,000 thus far in this connection, but has borrowed the money to do this at the direction of Gov. Odell, who evidently has feared the effect of a canal bond issue at this time upon voters.

It was anticipated that there would be trouble at the meeting of the board, but Attorney General Cunneen seemed to be the most unconcerned member present. Others present were Secretary of State John F. O'Brien, who is endeavoring to supply the coal for the State Consumptive Hospital at Raybrook, in the Adirondacks, through the influence of Gov. Odell, and State Fiscal Supervisor Harry H. Bender; State Engineer Henry A. Van Alstyne, personal appointee of Gov. Odell and ex-manager of the Furnaceville Iron Company; State Superintendent of Public Works Charles S. Boyd, State Treasurer Wickser, and Controller Kelsey.

FORM OF CONTRACT.

When the board took up the plans and specifications for the first six and most intricate pieces of work on the canal the Attorney General suggested that the contractors be required in bidding on each piece of canal work to submit a lump-sum bid, representing the amount for which they would complete the work, and a unit bid showing the price of each item. Mr. Cunneen said that such a course not only would permit the State authorities to see at the outset, through such lump-sum bids, whether or not the work could be completed within the engineers' estimates, and would also enable them to accept either bid on the basis of whichever would be best for the interest of the State.

"In past canal history," said Attorney General Cunneen, "frauds have been perpetrated on the State because the bidding has been confined to unit prices and because of classification. By compelling the submission of a lump sum bid upon each piece of contract work we will to a large extent prevent the possibility of a recurrence of those frauds. Were each item only bid for the quantities bid on might vary and loopholes be offered for excessive bills for extra work.

"This was especially true of the work under the $9,000,000 canal improvement law; a lump sum bid would give the people an idea of the actual cost of the work and show just how near it will come to the engineer's estimates. I, for one, do not want to go into this work on the supposition that it is going to cost $101,000,000 and then find out later that it will cost two or three times that sum. If lump sum bids had been required under the $9,000,000 law people would at once have discovered that the amount was deficient."

Secretary of State O'Brien replied that if lump bids were demanded the contractors would put up the price, and that such a course would encourage the sentiment that the barge canal proposition should be resubmitted to a vote of the people.

State Engineer Van Alstyne thought Mr. Cunneen's plan would discourage bidding.

State Controller Kelsey, after much discussion, had Mr. Cunneen's motion amended by making it permissive instead of mandatory, so that now a canal contractor may submit either a unit bid, a lump sum bid, or both as he sees fit. All the Republicans voted against Mr. Cunneen's motion.

CAN'T DEVIATE FROM CONTRACTS.

More important than the amendment referred to above were other amendments offered to the plans and specifications by Attorney General Cunneen whereby he caused a dozen changes to be made so that contracts will have to be worked out and completed in strict accordance with the plans and specifications without leaving to the State Engineer or any of his assistant engineers discretion to deviate from these. The plans and specifications as submitted by State Engineer Van Alstyne provided that the contract work shall be done according to the plans and specifications unless changed by engineers or permission to deviate therefrom is granted by the State Engineer's Department.

The Republican members of the board did not like the amendments suggested by Attorney General Cunneen, but he insisted upon their adoption, and, although some of the members of the board were opposed, they did not dare to vote against them, in view of the exigencies of the present political situation.

Other changes were suggested by Attorney General Cunneen which will minimize the opportunity for fraud in the construction of the barge canal, especially with a view of preventing a reclassification of excavated mud as rock in the interest of the favorite contractors.

The six pieces of work for which plans and specifications were adopted to-day call for an expenditure of $8,000,000, and will now be advertised by State Superintendent of Public Works Boyd, who has the sole authority to award the contracts. He is to advertise for bids once a week for four successive weeks, which means that no bids will be awarded until after election.

The specifications approved provide for the following work: Excavating the Hudson River channel between Northumberland and Fort Edward; canal and lock construction at Waterford and at Fort Miller on the Champlain Canal; excavating for about five miles at the east end of Oneida Lake, about six miles across the Montezuma Marshes near Savannah, and about four miles west of Rochester.

ODELL AND CORTELYOU ALIKE, SHEPARD SAYS

One Governor-Chairman, the Other Secretary-Chairman.

PUBLIC OFFICE FOR PROFIT

Speaker Wakes Up Brooklyn Crowd with Old-Time Democratic Doctrine Despite the Downpour.

Edward M. Shepard woke up the Democracy of Brooklyn last night with an old-time Democratic speech. His attack upon the Republican Party was delivered in a tent on the site of the old Academy of Music in Montague Street.

During the greater part of Mr. Shepard's address the rain poured through the folds in the newly pitched tent so that people had to change their seats and those on the platform, with the exception of the speaker, had to retreat. Mr. Shepard got wet, but didn't seem to mind it. He said in part:

"I want to speak first of the situation in this State. The Democratic Party in convention at Saratoga, after many conferences, free to the last degree, chose Judge Herrick. In this State we have known a singular and extreme development of corruption. I don't mean that the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor, and chief Republican leaders have taken bribes or filched the public moneys. I mean something more serious.

"Gov. Odell made himself the Chairman of the Republican State Committee. He was not chosen by the votes of his party. It is no secret that it was against the will of his own party and in defiance of the best sentiment of that party that he united in himself the powers of Governor and Chairman. It is the sign and the symbol of a serious thing, the union of partisanship and profit with the power of public administration.

"President Roosevelt proceeded to have enacted a law in 1903 establishing the Department of Commerce. Its head to be a member of the Cabinet. In that he established a Bureau of Corporations. Read that law in the light of what has happened. The Republican Party gave up the larger part of the actual control of the transportation companies, the monopolies with their unfair privileges. President Roosevelt created a bureau at Washington that might gather information and put corporations under Federal jurisdiction. Cortelyou was made a member of the Cabinet and Superintendent of corporations. He was the private secretary of the President, knowing even his secret thoughts, and he was put in a place where he superintended the affairs of the corporations of the United States.

"Roosevelt knew well then that he was the Republican candidate for the Presidency. He has said that the department worked diligently. When the work was completely done then Cortelyou was made by fiat of the President himself, overriding the statesmen of his own party, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, the prime function of which is to gather the means for the political campaign.

"There are two things both significant and prominent in the campaign, and they are the Governor-Chairman and the Secretary of Commerce-Chairman. There is the alliance of the corporations dependent on Federal leniency on the one hand and the Republican politicians on the other.

"In New York we voters are to repudiate the candidate of the alliance between the Republican Administration and business gain. To do this we have nominated a foremost citizen and a most trusted one, Judge Herrick. I have known him for many years in politics and as a Judge. Since he has assumed the bench no one can truly say that his administration was not honest and independent to the last degree. It would be difficult to find any one who stands so well as Judge Herrick, and I predict that he will be elected by an overwhelming majority on election day.

"I carry a Republican campaign book with me, and I note a table of figures which I ask you to consider. It shows that there has been a large increase in the deposits of the savings banks. That is true, because this, like other nations, is growing richer and the practice of saving among the poor has increased. Observe the figures of the trust companies and the banks of deposit. They have increased enormously over those of the savings banks. That is Republican testimony.

"The inference I draw is that though, thanks to God, the soil, the genial rain, yes, this rain, the wealth of the wage earner has increased, thanks to the brain, the muscle of the American workingman, prosperity has gone on, but is the division fair? Do those who are poor get their share under the legal monopoly of the tariff?

"Mr. Carnegie accumulated out of the duties on steel and iron a fortune of $500,000,000. He and his associates have had built a Chinese wall about the United States, and every man, woman, and child in the United States has paid for this. These millions came from the pockets of the plain people of the United States.

"That is an illustration of what I mean of the alliance of Government and private business, politics and private business. The Republican Party is subsidized and the monopolists rewarded in legislation. If we are foolish enough to maintain this system, it does not become us to throw stones at those who profit. We have ensured this alliance. It is our fault. We propose to put an end to it by electing first Judge Herrick, and then that statesman of patience and forethought, Judge Parker."

Daniel Monahan presided at the meeting, and before Mr. Shepard's arrival speeches were made by George Foster Peabody and Henry George.

CABINET OFFICERS TALK.

Secretary Morton Says Prospects Couldn't Be Better, Even Here.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, who spoke at Binghamton Wednesday night, passed through the city yesterday on his way to New Jersey, where he is scheduled for several meetings. He will close his Eastern itinerary Saturday night at Springfield, Mass.

"I have been in West Virginia and New York for about a week," said Mr. Wilson, "and I have found no apathy in either State. All the meetings which I have addressed either in West Virginia or New York have been enthusiastic to an extent which leaves no doubt in my mind with regard to the strength of the President with the voters of both Commonwealths. It is my opinion that the President is strengthening the State ticket in every State in which I have spoken.

"I find that the workingmen of the country are afraid of the vigorous interference with the tariff which might result from the election of a Democratic administration. This is really the leading issue in all the manufacturing centres. The manufacturer himself has a lively remembrance of what happened between 1893 and 1897."

Secretary Morton of the navy was in the city yesterday to attend the launching of the battleship Connecticut. Speaking of political conditions, Secretary Morton said:

"While the information which I have about the situation is as yet confined to the reports which the President has received in Washington, I am convinced that the prospect for Republican success could no, be better."

"Even in New York?" the Secretary was asked.

"Even in New York," he replied.

American Divers Get Trophy.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29.—Theodore Lewald, Commissioner General from Germany to the World's Fair, who protested the award in the diving contests of the Olympic games and announced that he would withhold the trophy that he offered for the event, to-night notified the Olympic Games authorities that he had decided to award the trophy to the American team.

ASKS CLEVELAND TO PRESIDE.

Manhattan Club Rally in Garden to Hear Herrick and Olney.

Grover Cleveland has been requested by the Manhattan Club to preside over the big meeting which the club is arranging to be held in Madison Square Garden on or about Oct. 12. The plans for this meeting are on such a large scale that the promoters declare it will wake up the town in good, old-fashioned mass meeting style.

As yet no reply has come from Mr. Cleveland, but as the invitation was extended by close personal friends it is hoped that he may respond and make a ten-minute speech.

Among the speakers who have been secured for this meeting are Judge D. Cady Herrick, Richard Olney, and Congressman W. Bourke Cockran. Judge Parker is also expected to be present at the meeting and at a reception to be given in his honor at the club, but as yet no consent has come from him to make a speech, although strongly urged to do so. While the meeting is to be a Manhattan Club affair, the Democratic Club and other organizations have been invited to participate.

GOV. GARVIN RENOMINATED.

Rhode Island Democrats Name State and Congressional Candidates.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 29.—The Democrats of Rhode Island in State Convention to-day, nominated a State ticket, chose Presidential Electors, and then, separating into district conventions, named candidates for Congress. The men selected for State officers are: Governor—Lucius F. C. Garvin of Cumberland; Lieutenant Governor—Adelard Archambault of Woonsocket; Secretary of State—John R. Keenan of Providence; Attorney General—George T. Brown of Providence; Treasurer—Edmund Walker of South Kingston.

The candidates named for Presidential Electors are: John W. Davis, Pawtucket; David S. Baker, South Kingston; Hamilton Fish Webster, Newport; James E. Sullivan, Providence.

D. L. D. Granger was renominated for Congress in the First District and Franklin P. Owen in the Second District.

The platform indorsed the National platform adopted at St. Louis and pledged support to the National candidates, Parker and Davis.

Gov. Garvin accepted the renomination in an address in which he criticised the Republican legislative majority for its alleged efforts to frustrate Constitutional reform, and at the conclusion of his speech the convention adjourned.

WANT WHITNEY TO RUN.

District Leaders Offer Him Congress Nomination—Fight in Fifteenth.

Thomas E. Rush, James J. Martin, and George F. Scammell have formally tendered the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Thirteenth District to Harry Payne Whitney, who will be nominated at next Monday night's convention if he will consent to run for the seat now held by Francis Burton Harrison, nominee for Lieutenant Governor. Mr. Whitney asked for time in which to consult with associates of his in financial life, and his decision will be made known to-day or to-morrow.

Should Mr. Whitney be unwilling to make the run, as is not likely, Col. George R. Dyer of the Twelfth Regiment will be nominated to succeed Congressman Harrison. In the event of Mr. Whitney's nomination, however, Col. Dyer will be nominated for the State Senate and will make the run against Senator Elsberg in the Fifteenth Senate District.

There is a lively fight on for the Democratic nomination in the Fifteenth Congressional District, now represented by Congressman Douglas, Republican. George W. Loft, the candy manufacturer, and Capt. Stewart M. Brice are out for the nomination, and their friends are bringing every pressure to bear in their behalf.

Word was passed along in Tammany circles last night that Judge Parker had requested Charles F. Murphy, in the interest of harmony, to have William Randolph Hearst renominated in the Eleventh District on Monday night. There had been a strong disposition in the organization to turn Mr. Hearst down.

DELAWARE FACTION WAR.

Republicans Could Not Agree on Candidate for Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 29.—Conferences between the factions of the Republican Party ended to-day without an agreement on the State ticket. According to the leaders of both factions, the harmony efforts are at an end.

Both the Dupont, or regular Republicans, and the Addicks, or Union Republicans, have held their conventions and nominated separate tickets, with the exception of Presidential electors, which are the same. The hitch is over the choice of a candidate for Governor, each faction insisting that it shall have the naming of the candidate.

Recently the regulars made a proposition that each side withdraw its ticket and that the regulars submit the names of five men from which the union Republicans might select one as the candidate of both factions for Governor.

The State Committees of both factions met here to-day and endeavored to come to an agreement. After each committee had met separately, sub-committees were appointed to confer.

The sub-committee of the Union State Committee, headed by National Committeeman J. Edward Addicks and United States Senator J. Frank Allee, carried the reply of the Unionists rejecting the proposition of the Regulars and submitting the following names from which the Regulars might make a selection as a compromise candidate:

Henry C. Conrad, the nominee of the Union Republicans for Governor; Isaac C. Parker, Abraham Frantz, George W. Marshall, George H. Murray, Hiram R. Burton, and Daniel J. Layton. All but Layton and Murray are candidates on the Union Republican State ticket.

This list was rejected by the sub-committee of the regulars, who submitted the following names to the Addicks men: Dr. Joseph Chandler, the regulars' nominee for Governor; William W. Lobbell, Otho Nowland, Preston Lea, Henry Cleazer, Merritt N. Willits, Theodore N. Clark, and Daniel W. Corbitt.

The Union Committee rejected these names as being those of men hostile to a majority of the Republicans of the State, asserting that the Union Republicans comprise a majority of the party in the State, had been twice recognized by Republican National Conventions as the lawful party, and declaring that the Union Party had rights which must be respected.

The union committee then offered to hold a joint primary election throughout the State for the purpose of allowing the voters to decide the disputed question, both factions to abide by the result. The regulars said this could not be done under the law.

The committees then adjourned without agreement for a further meeting.

It is confidently said that within forty-eight hours—perhaps a little longer—the warriors will agree upon one candidate for Congress. Information from New York is to the effect that the Congressional Campaign Committee would be satisfied with Horace Greeley Knowles.

Indeed, it may not be disclosing a secret to say that this name has been suggested to Mr. Addicks and Senator Allee as one entirely satisfactory to the National Committee. Further, it is declared that Dr. Hiram Burton, whom Mr. Knowles has befriended in a political way many times, is ready to step aside for his young friend.

Clinton County Democrats Nominate.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Sept. 29.—In the most harmonious County Convention in years the Clinton County Democrats here to-day nominated J. Warren Harkness of Peru for Member of Assembly, Hugh Behan of this city for Sheriff, and Acting City Judge Victor F Boire of this city for District Attorney.

Named for Congress in New Jersey.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 29.—The Democratic Congressional Convention for the Fifth District met this afternoon in the Lyceum Theatre here and nominated James E. Martine, the Plainfield "farmer orator" by acclamation.

VAN WYCK HERE WITH WORD FROM CROKER

Brings Ex-Leader's Love to "Old Guard" Dinner.

WILL MAKE HOME IN DUBLIN

Out of Politics Here Forever—Ex-Mayor Enthusiastic About Nominations of Parker and Herrick.

Declaring that Richard Croker would shortly go to live on his new Dublin estate, and never again would take any part in New York politics, ex-Mayor Robert A. Van Wyck, who returned to the city yesterday on the White Star liner Baltic, brought a message from the retired Tammany leader and gave it to his old followers last night at a dinner held in the Democratic Club in honor of Greater New York's first Mayor. The dinner followed an enthusiastic welcome home to the ex-Mayor at the White Star dock, some 400 Tammanyites and members of the Croker "Old Guard" being on hand to greet him.

At last night's dinner ex-Senator John Fox, President of the Democratic Club, presided. On his right sat ex-Mayor Van Wyck, with Charles F. Murphy on his right. At the left of the presiding officer sat Senator Victor J. Dowling, with John F. Carroll next to him. The others at the speaker's table included Philip J. Britt, ex-Justice Augustus Van Wyck, Justice P. Henry Dugro, Myron D. King of Indianapolis, Patrick Keenan, John W. Keller, Eugene L. Bushe, M. Warley Platzek, Lewis Nixon, Samuel Untermyer, Andrew Freedman, Frank H. Croker, Edward C. Sheehy, John F. McIntyre, F. La Montagne, and John M. Shaw.

There were sixty-six covers laid in all, and the other diners included Francis J. Lantry, Nicholas J. Hayes, John B. Sexton, William Dalton, Jefferson M. Levy, Louis Wendel, George H. Fahrbach, John C. Hertle, and Harry Walker. Chairman Taggart of the Democratic National Committee and Mayor George B. McClellan were prevented from attending by previous engagements. The dinner was followed by a reception, at which several hundred club members met again the ex-Mayor.

"Hearing that you were homeward bound from a European trip," said ex-Senator Fox by way of introducing the ex-Mayor, "your friends in this club made haste to welcome you back in a fitting manner. That feeling of respect which we all have for you, which we have felt for you since your early manhood, and which we have carried to this day; that respect for your public services as Judge and as Mayor, leads us to feel that you will be appreciated and your work admired long after you have passed away. We give you a hearty welcome home and fill our bumpers full to drink to your long life."

There were cheers for the ex-Mayor as he arose to reply.

"I assure you I did not expect such a greeting on my return," he said, "especially after the fine dinner you gave me before I went abroad. But at this demonstration of good will at my return to my own country it would be unbecoming of me did I not do honor in this club to the chief who so long led us all—Richard Croker.

"I was with him at Wantage, where I was glad to see him, and where he was glad to see me. We talked together and walked together for hours, and he talked of every Democrat of prominence in the city, but of no one had he a harsh word to utter, and he sent by me a message of love to you all.

"He is delighted with his life at Wantage, a life of repose which could not but be welcome to any man who had gone through the stormy fights for others that he has made. He said he never again would take any part in New York politics. Never again will he participate in the battles he fought for us year after year, but he sends by me the word that he will regard all who are loyal to Tammany Hall and to the Democratic Party as loyal to him.

"As I saw him at Wantage, with his daughter and his niece, and with his son Frank, who was there at the time, there could be imagined no more delightful home. However, he has purchased a magnificent place at Dublin, and I am confident that at as early a day he will make his home there. He said he had received the kindest treatment on the part of all in Wantage from English and Irish and Scotch, but you know that down deep in the corner of his heart is his love for old Erin, and it would not astonish me to learn within a few months that he had gone to his new Dublin place to live for good.

"As for myself, I am here to lend my humble efforts to the success of our State and National tickets, and shall start in on Saturday by attending the Herrick notification in Albany."

When Mr. Van Wyck concluded, Senator Fox said he should like to call next on the leader of Tammany Hall, but that Mr. Murphy had begged to be excused from speaking, on the plea that silence is golden.

"Bumpers to the health of Charles F. Murphy!" cried ex-Mayor Van Wyck, rising and drinking to the health of the Tammany chief.

Senator Dowling and Lewis Nixon also spoke.

The ex-Mayor, when he landed from the Baltic yesterday, had something to say about the political situation. He asked many questions as to what conditions brought about Judge Herrick's nomination.

"I do not care what conditions brought him to the top," he decalred, "the fact remains that his nomination was the best that could be made. Herrick is ahead of Jerome as a candidate. I wonder how they came to agree on such an acceptable man.

"As to National politics, you know how I stood when I went away. I was for Cleveland, first, last, and all the time. I believe Judge Parker is just such a man as Cleveland. He thinks and acts for himself. He is the best man to head the ticket next to Cleveland. Parker's telegram to the convention was the most courageous act known in politics."

Mr. Van Wyck was asked whether he thought Roosevelt would be re-elected. He replied that he did not know much of the campaign, but he did know that the Republicans would not carry New York State, and to this added that it was necessary for them to carry this State to win.

He was asked if it were true that he had wagered several thousand dollars on the Presidential election, as has been reported. He admitted that he had made some bets previous to the Democratic National Convention, but said that they were entirely contingent on the nomination of ex-President Cleveland for a third term.

"As he was not nominated," added Mr. Van Wyck, "the wager is off."

"Do you intend to place any money on the result of the election?" he was then asked.

"I don't make my living by gambling," replied the ex-Mayor.

Mr. Van Wyck created something of a tempest in a teapot in England by declaring that Herrick was better city than London. When asked about the matter he said: "Here is the paper with that interview in it. It is correct, and you can use it if you desire. The English people are cold and foggy, like the climate."

OPPOSES SAVINGS BANK TAX.

Higgins Says He Would Recommend Abolition if Elected Governor.

OLEAN, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Lieut. Gov. Higgins, in an interview to-day, said that he had not completed his address to be delivered in response to the Committee on Notification, but he had no hesitancy in saying that he would take a pronounced position in relation to certain matters, among which is the repeal of the savings bank tax.

He said that, while the tax, at the time the act was passed, seemed necessary, owing to the increased revenues under the liquor tax law and the surplus accumulated in the Treasury he can see no good reason at this time why the tax should be continued, and if elected that he shall recommend the repeal of this law.

Allan McDermott Renominated.

Congressman Allan L. McDermott was renominated in the Tenth New Jersey District last night. The convention for the Ninth District will be held on Monday night. Allan Benny of Bayonne will probably be renominated.

MAY ANNEX PART OF KANSAS.

New Plan to Settle Water Litigation with Colorado.

PUEBLO, Col., Sept. 29.—An effort at a solution of the Kansas-Colorado water suit is in progress, and if the efforts of those most interested in the case are successful, a strip of the western portion of Kansas, about one hundred miles wide, will be annexed to the State of Colorado, and the litigation now before the Supreme Court at Washington will be thrown out. Prominent politicians in Kansas and Colorado are making every effort to get the passage of an annexation bill through the Legislatures of both States.

To the east of Dodge City virtually no water is taken from the Arkansas River for irrigating purposes, and the suit against Colorado was brought for the purpose of securing a sufficient amount of water in that portion of the State extending westward from Dodge City to the Colorado State line.

VAN ALSTYNE AND CUNNEEN.

State Engineer in Harriman's Company When Disputed Work Was Done.

Additional interest was given yesterday to the charge of Attorney General Cunneen in connection with the payment of $18,618 to the Furnaceville Iron Company against his protest because the company, as Mr. Cunneen alleges, was charging for the excavation of rock when he proved by twelve witnesses that there was no rock in the stretch of work in question.

The new interest was due to the fact that Henry A. Van Alstyne, Republican candidate for State Engineer, was the engineer for the Furnaceville Iron Company at the time the work about which there was a dispute was done. He was with that company, which is controlled by E. H. Harriman, from 1897 to 1899, when he entered the employ of the State for the second time and became a division engineer on canal work.

The close relationship between Gov. Odell and Mr. Harriman is generally known, and it was understood at the time that Mr. Van Alstyne was chosen State Engineer to succeed E. A. Bond that he owed his office to the combined influence of his former employer, Mr. Harriman, and his political sponsor, Louis F. Payn, the Republican boss of Columbia County.

After the Animal Dies, Amount Goes to Testator's Mother.

In the first clause of his will filed for probate yesterday in the Surrogates' Office Charles S. Woodward makes provision for his favorite horse, Trilby. Mr. Woodward resided at 210 East One Hundred and Sixteenth Street, but he died at Glens Falls, up in Warren County, on June 27 last. The clause of the will referred to reads:

"After the payment of my just debts and funeral expenses I will and bequeath to my executrix hereinafter named the sum of $600 in trust, however, to be used by her for the care and support of my horse Trilby, said $600 to be taken from the proceeds of my real estate when the same is sold. In the event of the death of my horse Trilby, whatever balance may be and remains in the hands of my executrix unused for the care of and support of my horse, I will and bequeath to my mother, Emilie F. Woodward."

The balance of the estate, which amounts to $12,000, is bequeathed to his mother for her use during her lifetime, and upon her death it is to go to the testator's sisters.

PLANS FOR NEXT BATTLESHIP.

Will Carry No Guns Between 10 and 3 Inches Calibre.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—On the recommendation of the general board of the navy the board on construction has requested the Bureau of Construction and Repair to draw plans for a battleship which shall carry twelve heavy turret guns of not less than ten inches calibre, at least four of which shall be twelve inches, and a secondary battery of not more than three-inch guns. It is expected that this type, if found practicable, will be adopted for the next battleships authorized by Congress. The general board is now holding daily sessions deciding upon types of new ships.

After the first naval engagements in the Russo-Japanese war it became evident that all the guns between the heaviest and lightest on the battleships were comparatively inefficient. This fact is responsible probably for the armament to be adopted on the New Hampshire and other vessels of her class.

The plans of the battleship New Hampshire, which was authorized at the last session of Congress, have been completed by the Board of Construction and preparation is being made to begin construction. This ship is not to exceed 16,000 tons displacement and the cost is limited to $4,400,000, exclusive of armor and armament.

The armament will be the heaviest for a vessel of this class. In the main battery there will be four 12-inch, eight 8-inch, and twelve 7-inch breech loading rifles and four submerged torpedo tubes. In the secondary battery there will be twenty 3-inch fourteen-pounder rapid-fire guns, twelve three-pounders, and four one-pounder semi-automatic guns, two 3-inch field pieces, two machine guns, and two automatic guns.

BIG DEAL BY WIRELESS.

Ex-Congressman Levy Sells Fifty City Lots from Liner's Deck.

When it became known yesterday that Jefferson M. Levy had sold a plot of over fifty lots fronting on the Harlem River at Two Hundred and First Street, some surprise was expressed that so large a deal had been put through in the interval since the ex-Congressman's return from Europe on Sunday.

Mr. Levy was explaining it yesterday to his friends.

"Nothing remarkable about it," he said. "Just used the wireless on shipboard, so that all the details of the deal were out of the way, and all that I had to do when I arrived was to put my name on the contract. They use the wireless for everything else, so I thought I'd try it on real estate.

"Before the St. Paul left Southampton I had received an offer for this property by cable, and had replied that it was not satisfactory. Just a few minutes before we were leaving Cherbourg another cable dispatch for me was brought aboard, containing a better offer for the lots, but before it could reach me the ship had started.

"In mid-ocean, I think it was on Wednesday, we came up with the Umbria and sailed along in sight of her nearly all day, until some temporary trouble with the engines made it necessary to stop our ship for some time. The Umbria began to draw away, and, knowing that offers on real estate are not kept open indefinitely, I just had a message flashed over to the Cunard operators to the brokers who would make the offer: 'Accepted. Draw contracts.' As soon as the Umbria was in communication with a land station on this side the message was repeated and sent on to this city."

HADLEY PLEADS FOR HONESTY.

Yale's President Scores Unscrupulous Lawyers in Address to Students.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 29.—President Hadley was present to-day at the opening of the Law School and welcomed the students to the university. He warned them that they must recognise and follow the high ethical standard of the profession.

"Every day," President Hadley said, "we see unscrupulous lawyers who plan and scheme at evasion of the law. Men who sell their honor for gold often times are called successful. But the men whose imprint will never be effaced from our memory, whose deeds stand brightest in history have been men ever mindful of honor and integrity, not the men of wealth and social position."

REPUBLICAN CONGRESS CONVENTIONS IN CITY

Only Contest Develops in Seventeenth District.

BENNET WINS AFTER FIGHT

Andrews Called a Traitor When He Seconds Nomination—Attacks on Gruber and Strausbourger.

Republican Congressional District Conventions were held last night in the eleven districts of New York County. The most exciting time was in the Seventeenth District, where Judge William S. Bennet was nominated, after a bitter fight, in which the words "traitor" and "backslider" were freely flung at Harvey T. Andrews, who seconded Judge Bennet's nomination.

The convention was held in a hall at One Hundred and Twenty-seventh Street and Lenox Avenue, and it was not until after two hours of wrangling and excitement that the nomination was made.

Kingsbury Foster of the Twenty-first District, in which Judge Bennet resides, placed the Judge in nomination. When Harvey T. Andrews, who two years ago made the race in the Seventeenth and was defeated, arose to second the nomination he was received with a storm of hisses by the supporters of ex-Assemblyman William H. Smith, the candidate from the Twenty-third Assembly District, for the Congressional nomination.

The reason for the outburst against Andrews was that in his race two years ago Smith was one of the most ardent of his supporters, and when he took the platform there were cries of "Traitor! traitor!"

When Andrews had concluded, Moses M. McKee, the leader of the Twenty-third District, made a speech nominating Mr. Smith, in which he scored Col. Abraham Gruber and Samuel Strasbourger, the leaders of the Twenty-first and Thirty-first Districts, respectively, for the tactics which he said they had employed to bring about Judge Bennet's nomination.

The vote was taken amid an uproar. When Leader Strasbourger arose to cast the vote of the Twenty-third for Bennet he was hissed by the delegation from the Twenty-third. The vote as announced was 109 for Bennet and 70 for Smith.

As the result of the vote was called out by the Secretary of the convention one of the Smith men shouted out:

"Now see if you can elect him!"

There were howls at this, mingled with pleas not to bolt the Republican Party. In the midst of the excitement Leader McKee moved to make the nomination of Judge Bennet unanimous.

"Nix! Nit! No! No!" came from the members of his delegation, and the nomination was not made unanimous.

Judge Bennet is thirty-four years old, served two terms in the Assembly, was appointed Judge of the Municipal Court for the Twelfth District by Mayor Low, but when he ran for that office at the next ensuing general election was defeated through a combination between Tammany Hall and the Citizens' Union.

The results in the various districts were as follows:

Eighth—Frank L. Frugone, editor of the Bollettino Della Sera, an Italian newspaper.

Ninth—Adjourned until Oct. 8.

Tenth—Adjourned subject to the call of the chair.

Eleventh—Adjourned until Oct. 12.

Twelfth—Dr. Henry Carey of 145 East Thirtieth Street.

Thirteenth—Adjourned until Oct. 8.

Fourteenth—Lucien Knapp, a manufacturer of 24 Franklin Street.

Fifteenth—Jacob Van Vechten Olcott, a lawyer, with offices at 27 William Street.

Sixteenth—Records of Prince.

Eighteenth—Adjourned until Oct. 7.

All day long yesterday Republican leaders from the Congressional districts in which there are contests over the nominations were hanging around the Fifth Avenue Hotel waiting for Gov. Odell to see if he would not take the side of their favorite and settle the contest.

For the Chairman to have the final word in Congressional fights is something new in Republican politics, but it is rapidly becoming apparent that the present State Chairman is having the final word on everything that has to do with organization politics in both the State and city.

There was a conference yesterday afternoon at the office of Alexander T. Mason to settle upon the nominee for the Thirteenth District, but without result.

MESSMER FAVORS ROOSEVELT.

But the Archbishop Says He Cannot Speak for the Vatican.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 29.—"I cannot speak for the Vatican," said Archbishop Messmer, when a dispatch from Rome saying that the Church authorities favored the re-election of President Roosevelt was shown to him. He added:

"I believe that President Roosevelt's policy in regard to the Philippine friars has met the approval of the Vatican authorities, and that there is a feeling that in case of his election they would be assured of straightforward and considerate treatment.

"Personally I should be glad to see Mr. Roosevelt elected, though I can speak only for myself.

"I consider him an honest, straightforward man, who desires to do right. He has shown this in his dealings with matters in the Philippines. Owing to the complicated questions that have arisen in regard to the Philippine friars and other Church matters in the new American possessions, he has had closer negotiations with the Vatican than any other President. The general impression is that he did what he considered right in solving the questions as they came up."

PRESIDENT HAS TOOTH FILLED.

Dentist Works in Full View of a Large Crowd.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—President Roosevelt visited a dentist's office in New York Avenue, near Fourteenth Street, today, to have a troublesome molar filled. He was driven to the dentist in an open carriage.

The presence of the President and his carriage attracted a crowd, but when the President seated himself in a chair and the dentist began to work, in full view of the passersby, the crowd grew to large proportions. Mr. Roosevelt did not appear to be annoyed by the presence of so many persons. His characteristic smile disappeared while the dentist was at work, but he stood the ordeal well, according to the curious ones.

As he left the dentist's office the President lifted his hat in response to the greeting of the crowd which had enjoyed the novelty of seeing a President having his teeth filled.

COLUMBIA 1908 MEETS SOPHS IN BITTER WAR

Struggle in Terrace Garden Ended by Police Reserves.

FRESHMEN CAPTURED '07 MEN

These They Take to Entertainment—Sophomores Rushed the Hall and Many Things Ensue.

The freshman class of Columbia University gathered for the first time in its history last night to hold a vaudeville entertainment and—it was reported—some boxing.

They held the entertainment in Terrace Garden and imprisoned sixteen sophomores meanwhile. Then 300 sophomores attacked the hall, forced an entrance, and beat the 200 freshmen till the reserves of the East Fifty-first and East Sixty-seventh Street Police Stations put an end to the pummeling. Cothing was torn galore, hats smashed a-plenty, and noses bled merrily, but the police wouldn't make any arrests.

The hall was well wrecked, and the diners and drinkers in the Garden were kept in a state of excitement while the fighting lasted. A crowd of thousands of people gathered to see what the matter was.

Nineteen-O-Eight had a big moving van, which was driven by a freshman and cleverly backed up to the curb. Then to the astonishment of a mass of curious spectators the freshmen opened the back and with a yell of "Rah for Nineteen-O-Eight!" they dragged out sixteen disgusted sophomores, bound hand and foot and gagged.

Singing and howling a college song, the 200 and more freshmen lugged the sophomores up to the dance hall, slid them across it on their backs, and slammed them into a little closet that just held the prisoners.

Shortly afterward the telephone rang in the East Fifty-first Street Station, and Manager Susskind of Terrace Garden, at the other end, cried:

"Send me your reserves, Captain. They're smashing the place."

When the Captain, with a dozen reserves and half a dozen "plain-clothes" men, rushed up to the doors, 300 sophomores had found a rear entrance on Fifty-ninth Street and were in the dancing hall.

It was fight. Men picked out antagonists and battered each other this way and that. The immense rush of the 300 on the 200 made the latter give way, but they did it bitterly, and smashed a soph head often.

Amid it all the yells of 1907 and 1908 were screeched, sung, and howled. The "sophs" pushed their way to the closet, where sixteen comrades were locked up. The freshmen made another stand there and the lower strata hot and heavy, but the sophomores undid the door and yanked out their men. They cut the ropes with knives and freed their men, who rushed like crazy men at the freshmen and hit out wildly in their eagerness to "get square."

Capt. Bingham ran up and tried to stop the fighting, but the fighters paid no attention to him and his voice was drowned. Then he ushered his men at the mob, but they could do nothing. Capt. Bingham then telephoned to Sixty-seventh Street for their reserves, and they came down twenty strong in a patrol wagon. The forces combined and charged both classes. Slowly pushing them they ran the sophomores down stairs again, through the dance hall, and out the Fifty-ninth Street way.

The freshmen managed to spirit away the soph prisoners, but Bingham's men let them loose. The entertainment was then resumed by the freshmen and their talent. The Captain with his entire double force of reserves and detectives waited around to keep off the sophomores. The latter did not return.

ELECTION BETTING DIFFICULT.

No Parker Money at 1 to 2 and No Higgins Money at 8 to 10.

Considerable difficulty was experienced in placing bets yesterday, either on the outcome of the general election or on that for Governor. Odds shifted substantially at times during the day, but no wagers on the general election were reported.

Foster & Lounsbery placed a bet with another Stock Exchange house that Roosevelt would carry the State of New York. This wager was $200 even, and several other small wagers at the same figures were said to have been made. The odds on the general election ruled at 4 to 10 offered by the Democrats and 1 to 2 asked by the Republicans. Money on Herrick was offered freely at 10 to 8½, and some at 10 to 8, but again no Higgins money appeared at these figures and no wagers at any figures were reported.

BIG MOVEMENT OF WHEAT.

Three Million Bushels Coming East from the Pacific Coast.

Special to The New York Times.

DULUTH, Minn., Sept. 29.—One of the most remarkable movements of grain that has ever been undertaken is now under way in the Northwest. Three million bushels of Pacific Coast wheat are coming all rail to Duluth, to the order of millers in New York State and along the Pennsylvania and Ohio shores of the great lakes.

This wheat will go from this city by the lakes to its destination. It will occupy more than 3,000 large freight cars, and will pay 27 cents a bushel freight to the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Roads, before it gets to this city, while here it must stand elevator charges and the lake freight to get to its destination. It competes with Northwestern Spring wheat that pays only 7 to 9 cents to get to this city.

Northwestern wheat is moving remarkably well for a year that was unfortunate in having a famine crop, a late harvest, and a car shortage all combined, as this year. Receipts of grain at Duluth last week exceeded those of the corresponding week the year before by 1,500,000 bushels.

It is an astonishing thing that there should be a famine in rolling stock and motive power in a year when business throughout the country is said to be poor, and when there is not supposed to be any large crop to move. But its effect is felt to-day through all the country served by the leading Northwestern roads, and many stations that should be moving trains of wheat daily are able to get only three or four cars.

One entire division on the Northern Pacific Road is said to have received no cars for wheat other than what have come into the division with other freight and have been unloaded there and turned back. The Soo Line also is badly tied up by the same trouble. The indications are that the crop of the Northwest is better and larger than was feared three or four weeks ago.

ONCE there was a man who went fishing with a friend who prided himself on his veracity.

"I'll never go fishing with that fellow again," he said.

"Didn't you catch any fish?" asked a neighbor.

"No, I didn't; but the worst part of it is I don't dare say I did catch any fish for fear he'll tell the truth about it, and if you cannot lie about a fishing trip what's the use of going?"

It's to be regretted that a great many stores conduct their advertising after the manner of the proverbial fish story, and the evil they do is reflected on the stores that pride themselves on the veracity of their advertisements.

Many stores seem to be of the opinion that every time they make an announcement they must stretch the worth of the merchandise—say they're selling $1 articles for 50c. when in reality they are selling a 50c. article for 50c., and they know it, but hope the buying public will not know it.

They seem to think that this manner of publicity adds to the drawing power of their advertisements, and that every one who responds to their announcements will take their word for the value.

Still we had not ought to complain—the fact that some stores do this sort of advertising helps the growth of our business.

When we say an article is worth so much you can depend upon it.

We do not say so because we think so, but because you cannot buy the same article of equal quality elsewhere for less than what we state it is worth.

To the fact that we make it a point to religiously live up to every promise we owe our ever increasing business—your patronage—your good will.

Criterions of style in wool waists.

ROMAN stripes, in all of their blended prettiness, are invading exclusive creations, and especially is this boldly-marked pattern visible (in the trim wool) waist for general wear. The material is of fine French flannel, with a soft Saxony finish (and taffeta turn-overs.)

Leather motifs, such as cuff and collar turn-overs, reflect current tendencies (and these unique finishers) are in contrasting color to the waist fabric, Henrietta-russet being used on green, scarlet on blue, etc.

Albatross embroidered all-over in eyelet style (or broderie Anglaise,..) forms some matchless conceptions in ivory white, Army blue (Jacqueminot red.. and other colorings.) French knots of burnt orange lend a vivifying touch to plaited nun's-veilings, waists that present the (desired elongation) of shoulder, and Rob Roy sleeves. Venise applique decorates another.

Second Floor.

Serge plaids are new, with brass buttons adorning box-plaits at the front. Prunella cloth (in all colors) is a reminder of the fashions of a decade ago.

Over one hundred special Friday bargains for to-day.

New coat fashions for misses and girls.

CHRONICLES of fashion record new departures in (proper attire.) for the younger generation, for the wants of children and young folks have to be decided (just as much.) as the demands of their elders, and we justly claim the finest collection (of outer apparel.) that you'll wish to see. For materials, we've some unmatched models in broadcloth in the new stone color, showing long shirred shoulders and neck. There are collar and cuffs of moleskin, (and a bit of color..) is expressed in scarlet pipings, lining and catchy brass buttons. We've a beauty in the color of the hour "cachou" or onion, with double-breasted front closing with brass buttons, Watteau back, and stylish fichu collar of Venise lace. The belt and the lining are white.

Imitation bear in rich cardinal colored red is an importation we're proud of. It's an automobile style (with white lining.....) and buttons and moleskin trim it.

The New Open Armhole is a feature of a moleskin coat (that has a touch.) of blue introduced in the motifs, and appliques.

There are some sumptuous coats (in black.. broadcloth) we should enjoy having you see. Notice the new "Coachman's" collar.

Fine lingerie underwear

PERFECT fit and finish are demanded in undermuslins, (and first of all....) do women desire dainty materials and fluffy laces for the making, such as French nainsook, Persian lawn and yards of bow-knot and dot laces.

With this in mind we're taking the initiative in presenting the prettiest ideas possible that Paris and Germany can offer in a new cut and shaping, known as the Circular Cut.

For women (who wish to avoid.....) the appearance of too much flesh, they're highly recommended (because the garments...) fit without any unnecessary fullness. The drawers (being circularly shaped.....) are of ample dimensions around the lower edge. The chemise obviates the need of a corset cover and underpetticoat. Women (who once) try..... these perfectly adjusted garments (will insist.....) on none else.

Circular ruffles (made of handkerchiefs.....) frilled with Point de Paris lace are original expressions (in sheer.....) Persian for drawers. Bows a la Francaise (are set on the centre..) of the ruffle.

There's a good imitation Duchesse lace (used in quantities.....) on lingerie, and "ruby" val. made into deep flounces of one row built (on the other...) is an extravagantly pretty embellishment of some bridal sets in drawers, petticoats and night gowns.

Do you prefer pajamas? We've the handsomest (assortment in town....) in domestics and Japanese importations in plain taffeta, pongee and madras. Ask to see them.

Second Floor.

Handsome assortment of bridal sets—trimmed with fine laces, ribbon beading and ribbon—all fine sheer nainsook—made and finished with the best workmanship—prices are 4.95, 6.00, 6.95, 10.00, 10.50, 11.95, 14.50 and upwards.

Gowns of fine nainsook and cambric—high and low neck effects—elbow and regular lengths—sleeves all trimmed with fine laces, embroidery and ribbons—all the newest styles and effects—prices are 1.50, 1.95, 2.50, 2.75, 2.95, 3.25, 3.50, 3.95, 4.50, 4.95, 5.50, 5.95 and upwards.

Everything Special

The key-note of interest.

It rings true. Therefore our great audience every day.

In a thousand ways the Fine Arts and the Liberal Arts unite to charm, amuse, instruct and profit our guests.

Attention centers upon the Picture Gallery, Fifth Floor. It has been reorganized. Pictures have been removed, others added. Old friends should see its freshness. New charms should create new friends.

Now first shown a Triptych of large canvases, presenting

MARY AT NAZARETH,
MARY AT THE CROSS,
MARY RETURNING FROM CALVARY.

These pictures were No. 56, Paris Salon, 1903.

Artist J. J. F. Aubert. Pupil of Cabanel and Yvon. Honorable mention, 1887; Third Class Medal, 1888; Bronze Medal, 1889 and 1900. Hors Concours.

So important a contribution to the current Picture exhibitions of New York should command the attention of all interested in pictorial art.

It is well understood that the season in styles for Women's Costumes is not open until the Wanamaker Exhibits appear. Three extraordinary collections are now current here.

First. Second Floor. Very latest Dresses and Wraps from Paris and Vienna. Mr. Wilkinson's collection.

Second. Second Floor. Paris Millinery.

Third. Fifth Floor. Models for Costumes to order. Monsieur Dumas-King's collection.

This is the fourth day of the showing. Unmatched effort has produced unmatched result. The approval of the most intelligent and critical clientele in New York City marks the occasion as the most successful and important fashion incident of the year.

Fall in Line For Your Fall Suit

Second floor, Fourth Avenue.

This is but a chapter out of the WANAMAKER book of Men's Fall Fashions. The full volume is on display in our Men's Clothing Store, in the shape of table after table of fine new things.

Chapter I—Blue and Black Sack Suits

Every man appreciates the uplift that a dark, plain-colored suit gives to his wardrobe. Consequently we are selling these Sack Suits, black or blue in quantities, to men who wish to have a stylish, but inconspicuous suit to put on as a welcome change from the light suit of mixed cheviot.

Materials are thibets—soft and fine, and handsomely finished; cheviots, rougher, but smart-looking and serviceable; and unfinished worsteds—a sort of compromise between extremes.

Made Single or Double-breasted, and finished in faultless fashion. Stocks are so broad, too, that the man must be an exception, in figure or fancy, that we can't fit to a T.

There are—

Double-breasted Suits—

In black, at $12 In black or blue, at $15, $18 and $20.
In blue, at $22 to $30.

Single-breasted Suits—

In black, at $12 In black or blue, at $15 and $20.
In black, at $25 and $30.

Trousers for a Change-off—

Striped Worsted Trousers, in a fine variety of patterns, at $5 to $10.

And Fancy Waistcoats—

In choice assortment, at $2.50 to $5.

Well-Hatted Men Wear Stetson's

Second floor, Ninth street.

We invaded this town with Stetson Derby Hats two years ago—not very many New York men then knew them, though all men knew Stetson's Soft Hats.

Invasion is occupation—hundreds of men now wear Stetson Derbies—coming back, season after season, for new ones.

The reasons are found in comfort, style and quality. The "Self-Conforming" Stetson Derby fits the head like the old soft hat you wear a-golfing—while the Stetson "Featherweight" is the lightest of all "full stiff" derbies.

Each comes in black and browns, at $3.50 and $5.

Then there's the Stetson "Clear Nutria" Derby at $6—the finest, best stiff hat in the world.

Stetson Soft Hats are as well known as a Winchester rifle or a Pullman car. All kinds here, from $3.50 to $15—hats for the subfreshman or the grandfather, in the approved Autumn styles and colors.

New Tailored Suits

for women, of which we show a remarkably interesting gathering. The pointed 1830 girdles in the dresses, for instance, find an echo in the vests seen in many of the suits. The high shoulders, too, are in evidence, and there are touches of trimming, all of which emphasize the tendency to the graceful, flowing lines of the period of Louis Philippa.

Prices for these charming American Tailored Dresses start at $12, and rise, by easy stages, to $60.

A few particulars:

At $16.50—Walking Suits of tweed; three-quarter length jacket with loose belted back. Unlined gored plaited skirt.

At $21—An assortment of Walking Suits of tweed, cheviot, broadcloth; single-breasted, tight-fitting jackets, trimmed with braid; also fitted and short jackets with vests. Unlined gored skirts, each gore with inverted plait.

At $24—Walking Suits of cheviot tweed; jacket faced with peau de soie; and showing fancy vest. Gored skirt, falling in plaits from knee.

At $27.50—Walking Suits of broadcloth; plaited blouse; jacket with yoke, braid trimming.

Other Suits at prices up to $60, are of tweeds, coverts, cheviots and broadcloths, and have Eton, blouse and jacket effects, in the various lengths.

Why These Covert Cloth Coats Are RIGHT

Second floor, Broadway.

Most of the makers of Women's Coats who brought their Autumn models to us had to take them back and alter them, before we would accept them. Why? Because the sleeves were too small.

There's not a coat in our stock now, that can't take care of the new large sleeves that are put in the latest dresses, comfortably and without crowding.

Illustrated by these new Covert Cloth Coats—made of fine materials, finished with special care throughout, and admirably stylish. They're popular, too, for Fall wearing. In fitted, half-fitted and loose styles. $15 to $45.

The Fall Shirt-Waists Are Effective

Second floor, Tenth street.

French flannel, albatross, nun's veiling, velveteen—every desirable fabric. A multitude of good colors and shades, and almost as many styles as there are waists. Simple waists, elaborate waists, solid colors and smart contrasts—a perfect revel for the woman who likes to see pretty things.

All exquisitely made, from the black brilliantines at $1.50 to the dashing Scotch plaids, from $5.50 to $8.

We're proud of them.

Black Spangled Collars

Tenth street.

A sale just in time. For spangles are going to be liked this year. Well-made, well-proportioned black collars. Excellent designs, scintillating on foundations of good net. All new.

$2.50 to $3 Collars at $2 Each
$4 and $4.50 Collars at $3 Each

"Princess May"— Wonderful Gloves for $1

Tenth street.

Most women know the "Princess May" Gloves—do not need to be reminded that they are the best ever sold for $1. In fit, workmanship, beauty, style and the qualities of wear, equal to gloves costing half as much again.

But all women will be glad to learn that this Fall the shades are more attractive than ever.

The "Princess May" Cape Gloves, one-clasp: outseam; made like a man's glove; an exclusive model. In the new Indian tan, black and white. $1.

"Princess May" Pique-sewn Gloves, one-clasp: in tan, mode, brown, gray, white and black. $1.

"Princess May" Overseam Two-clasp Glace or Three-clasp Suede Gloves, in the new Fall shades, and black-and-white, $1.

Three Styles of Boys' Norfolk Suits

Second floor, Ninth street.

We are showing three distinct styles of these good-looking Norfolk Suits for boys of nine to sixteen years—each in a variety of handsome patterns. Altogether, it makes the finest assortment we have ever had to offer.

One style is called the "Rodman"—with a single-breasted jacket, plaited to belt. Then there's a double-breasted yoke Norfolk jacket; while the third style is the regular single-breasted Norfolk jacket, with plaits and belt. Materials are best imported and domestic mixed cheviots; and prices are $6.75 to $12.

They're suits that every boy will be proud to wear; and the bloomer trousers with which they are equipped are smart as well as comfortable.

Separate Bloomer Trousers, of mixed cheviots, in sizes for 6 to 16 years, are $1.50 and $2 a pair.

New Hats For Children and Girls

Second floor, Broadway and Tenth.

Trimmed hats for the new season. Pretty as pictures, every one; with every imaginable variation of shape and style and color. All in the best of taste, all youthful and becoming.

Appreciative mothers will be delighted with them. And the prices are moderate, indeed:

White Sailor Hats, with black velvet ribbon bows and streamers; or with bows of Dresden silk. $5.

Beautiful Beaver Hats, in all fashionable shades; trimmed with silk in solid colors; Persian and Dresden effects. $8 to $12.

Beaver, Silk and Velvet Pokes, in a vast number of styles; trimmed with ostrich feathers and ribbon. $8 to $18.

And a broad assortment of Baby Hats, $3 to $15.

Lillian Corsets at $3.75

Second floor, Tenth street.

An advanced model of these splendid Lillian Corsets, made abroad especially for us, that is pleasing many women nowadays. Especially adapted for slender figures—high bust and short hips; giving the small, tapering waistline that is so desirable.

No side steels—hence lots of comfort, as well as grace. In white only. $3.75 each. Fitted by experts to the wearer.

Hand-Made Crochet Lace Irish and French

Broadway.

Irish peasantry, working on the patterns handed down from generation to generation. French workmen, adding the finesse and grace of the Gaul to the sturdy beauty of the Celt. Those are the two sources whence we derive this fascinating collection of Crochet Laces and Lace Collars.

These laces appear, to a greater or less extent, on every costume that Paris sends, used separately, or in combination with the lighter laces; and every woman knows what a note of distinction they add to the frock on which they are used.

Notes of the price-ranges:

Real Irish Crochet Laces, 1¾ to 10 inches wide, at $2.25 to $18 a yard.
Real Irish Crochet Insertions, 1 to 4

These Shoes Save Money

Fourth avenue.

The actual amount of cold cash you spend less than you anticipated isn't all there is to a shoe bargain. There are cases when two pairs of shoes at $1.50 are not nearly as good a purchase as one pair at $3.

It all depends on the wearing qualities of the shoes themselves. These shoes, for example, aren't made merely to sell at their prices, but to give good service at these prices—in most cases, at higher prices than they're now selling for. And the money you save stays saved:

Women's Kid Shoes at $1.50

Lace and button, in various styles and shapes, that were $3 in our regular stocks; others from one of our best factories. Sizes out here and there, but nearly every size in the lot.

Women's Ideal Kid Shoes at $2.20

Three hundred pairs, made up for a jobber on a last different from those in his stock. They wholesale for $2.80, but you can buy them here at $2.20 a pair; laced; on arched instep last, with straight tips, military heels and welted oak-leather soles.

Girls' Spring-heel Shoes at $1.20

Firm kidskin, with tips of patent leather, lace and button; solid oak leather soles; sizes 11 to 2; smaller sizes at $1; C, D and E widths.

Boys' Shoes at $1.30

Sturdy well-made Lace Shoes, of kangaroo calf, with heels. Sizes 13 to 5.

Some Odd Lots

Women's Oxfords, worth $2, now $1.
Children's Shoes and Oxfords, odds and ends, at 50c.
Men's $3 Coolie Cloth Shoes at $1.

Mohair Figured Nub Cheviots

Rotunda and Fourth avenue.

A fine quality of cheviot, with its attractiveness enhanced by the addition of glistening nubs of mohair, in desirable colorings—that's the story of these splendid dress goods, that are

65c and 75c a Yard
Instead of $1.25

A maker's surplus—that's the reason. Some of the materials are in self-colors; others have an enlivening dash of white—all are extremely stylish.

Colors are golden brown, dark brown, royal blue, navy blue, garnet and black. Fifty inches wide. Nearly half price.

Handkerchiefs From the Ould Sod

Broadway.

Just off the boat, from the land of the blackthorn and the shamrock—fresh, attractive, pure flax.

Initial Handkerchiefs for men and women, they are—the letters all hand-embroidered. Put up in boxes of six; but sold singly, if you prefer:

Two styles of Women's Initial Handkerchiefs: one with plain block letter, one with wreath in fleur-de-lis, encircling block letter. At 12½c each, or 75c for box of six.

Two styles of Women's Initial Handkerchiefs: one with plain script letter, the other with dainty wreaths of clover and bow-knot design; at 25c each, or $1.50 a box of six.

Women's fine sheer Handkerchiefs, in French effects; corded borders, with small block initial; at 50c each.

Men's hemstitched Handkerchiefs, with hand-embroidered initial; liberal size; two styles, plain script or openwork; at 25c each; $1.50 a box of six.

Men's Handkerchiefs, finer quality, with handsome block letter; at 50c each.

New Paris Jewelry

Jewelry Store, Broadway, Tenth street.

The new arrivals of Jewelry from Paris present a brilliant exhibition. These decorative pieces are wonderful in their artistic effects; though the jewels are imitations, the designs are artistic as though real diamonds and pearls were to be mounted.

The collection includes everything from hat-pins and brooches to the most elaborate tiaras.

And the prices are wonderfully little:

For instance, Hat-Pins, in floral design, or Automobile Hat-Pins, with imitation pearls, rhinestones, topaz, coral, jade, and so on, are 25c to $4.

Then there are LaVallieres, at $1.25 to $14, Tiaras and Collars, set with pearls and rhinestones; Brooches in profusion at $2.25 to $12.50; Rhinestone Buckles, at $2 to $14, and so on down the list—Vanity Boxes, Fan Chains, Barrettes; and a variety of Comb Sets, at 50c, for imitation shell or amber, to $13.50, for brilliant rhinestone mountings.

An Onslaught on Toilet Goods and Mirrors

Toilet Goods, Tenth street.

Staple, well-esteemed toilet preparations that need no introduction. High-grade, good-looking mirrors. And these slashing changes from their normal prices:

25c size Aromatique Dentifrice at 16c.
15c size Borine Tooth Powder at 6c.

A Field Day in CHINA

A Stirring Demonstration Before Retreat Is Sounded

It's the last day of the China Sale, considered as a September event. Tonight the splendid forces, that have held the field all the month long, withdraw. And the movement ends with a demonstration in force, with the Dinner Sets occupying the right of line. Of course, though interest will henceforth be more centered on the new arrivals of China and Glass, many of the fine offerings will hold over into October.

But when the time comes to break ranks tonight, you'll find that regiments—brigades—divisions will have marched straight into garrison in many a fort where the commandant is a thrifty housewife:

Dinner Sets Lead the Van

A fine English Porcelain open-stock pattern, with a fine full enameled decoration, and gilt, in a 113-piece Set, that has always been $45, and never less, is today marked $25 a Set—and for today only.

The remaining open-stock pieces of this pattern are on a counter at half price.

A Chas. Field Haviland Dinner Set of 101 pieces, in fine flower decoration, and all pieces gilt, is now reduced to $27.50 from $37.50.

Other Chas. Field Haviland Dinner Sets of 113 pieces; flower decoration and all handles gilt, are $25, from $37.50.

Fine Austrian China Dinner Sets of 101 pieces, with soup tureen and three platters; flower decoration and all handles gilt; now $12.50, worth $22.50.

American Porcelain Dinner sets of 100 pieces, with a fine flower decoration and all handles gilt; soup tureen and three platters; are priced at $10, worth $15.

Theodore Haviland China Chop Sets, consisting of a round chop dish and twelve plates, in a fine moss rose design and heavily gilt. Sets that we have never sold for less than $4, and then at half price, are marked today at $2.75 a Set—and they won't last long. Basement.

Austrian China Fancy Pieces

In a fine decoration of roses in clusters, and a pretty gilt border:

Salad Bowls, at 30c, from 40c.

Water Tumblers, $5 and $12 a dozen; worth $8.50 and $20.

Basement and Tenth street aisle.

A Thousand Silk Umbrellas At $2.75 and $3.75

Ninth street Aisle.

The lowest-priced Umbrella in the lot is worth $5.

The finest are worth $10 to $15—and there's a generous representation of these higher values.

It's the greatest Umbrella Offering we have had to chronicle in many seasons.

Every umbrella in the lot is pure silk. The handles alone are in most cases worth more than the present price of the whole umbrella.

And it's by being on the alert, and snapping up a good thing when it came our way, that makes us able to tell you this fine bit of news. There are Umbrellas for Men and for Women:

The handles on the Women's Umbrellas are full-length silver, ivory-and-silver, pearl-and-silver, gun-metal and natural wood, silver or gold-plate trimmed, and fancy horn.

The Men's Umbrellas have carved and plain ivory, cape and stag horn, shell, silver and natural wood, silver-trimmed handles.

Some of the silk coverings have had a thread dropped in the weaving. It doesn't hurt the wearing ability of the umbrellas in the least, and would take a very expert eye to discover it.

Fine Umbrellas for your own hat and hat-rack, or—as gifts—for some one else's, at

$2.75 and $3.75, worth $5 to $15

If the Dish Runs Away with the Spoon—

Basement.

It's because of the general scatteration of these splendid utensils-for-all-over-the-house that the very low September Sale prices are responsible for.

And today they're lower than ever on many things—for instance, the fine Blue-coated Enamel Ware comes down a third below the low sale prices—a perfect snap for the provident housewife. And many's the bargain to be found among the miscellaneous housekeeping things—all of which are A1 in quality:

White Lined Blue Enamel Ware

Each article is steel, double-coated with pure enamel:

Housefurnishings

Chamois Skins, 35c.
Hot Plate Lifters, 5c.
Copper Tea Kettles, nickel-plated, No. 7, 90c.

MAIN RUSSIAN FORCE NOW NORTH OF MUKDEN

Belief That No Serious Attempt Will Be Made to Hold City.

JAPANESE CAPTURE DA PASS

Oyama Begins the Offensive and Threatens Kuropatkin's Left Flank—Approaches to Mukden Mined.

LONDON, Friday, Sept. 30.—Telegraphing from Niu-Chwang yesterday, The Daily Mail's correspondent there says:

"The main force of the Russian Army has retired to the north of Mukden.

"Strong bodies of troops have been thrown out to defend both flanks, and the southern approaches to the city have been carefully mined.

"The indications are that no serious attempt will be made to hold Mukden."

Correspondents with the Japanese forces also announce that the Russian Army has retired to the north of Mukden.

ST. PETERSBURG, Friday, Sept. 30.—News was received here from Mukden yesterday to the effect that the Japanese had at last begun the offensive. It was stated that they had captured Da Pass, and were pressing on Gen. Kuropatkin's left flank.

[Da Pass, or Ta Pass, meaning Great Pass, is situated about forty-five miles southeast of Mukden, and about the same distance northeast of Liao-Yang. It is about twenty-five miles south of the Hun River. The Japanese attacked Da Pass, which was occupied by the troops of Gens. Mistchenko and Samsonoff, on Sept. 24, but, according to dispatches from Harbin, were twice repulsed.]

The War Office is unable to confirm this report officially, because Gen. Kuropatkin's dispatches are following the Emperor, who has gone to Odessa, but The Associated Press is informed by the General Staff that all indications point to the news being correct.

It is believed that the Russians abandoned Da Pass without serious resistance. Several other passes of the Da range eastward of Bentsiaputze, (twenty miles southeast of Mukden,) are also in the hands of the Japanese.

Gen. Kuropatkin is evidently drawing in his forces to the less mountainous country northwestward, where he may decide to give battle. In the meanwhile sharp fighting is regarded as imminent southeast of Mukden, whence the Japanese are expected to deliver their main attack, the flank movement from the west being of secondary importance.

The absence of the Emperor is causing an even greater dearth of official news from the front than has been experienced heretofore. Communication with Mukden has been practically suspended, and St. Petersburg is therefore suffering another period of anxiety and suspense just after the intimation was given that important developments were imminent.

TIE PASS, Sept. 29.—The Japanese armies around Liao-Yang are reported to be decimated by epidemics, due to decaying corpses.

The Japanese are said to have dammed the Liao River abreast of Liao-Yang, flooding the country in order to protect their left flank.

War clothing is being received by the Japanese from America.

MUKDEN, Sept. 29.—Gen. Kuropatkin has issued an order of the day to his officers on the lessons of the ten days' fighting at Liao-Yang, pointing out the shortcomings of both armies as exposed by the battle.

PORT ARTHUR CONFIDENT.

Garrison Expects to Hold Out Till the First of the Year.

VLADIVOSTOK, Sept. 29.—Private reports from Port Arthur state that the garrison there is confident of being able to hold out until the beginning of next year.

The report of the loss of three Japanese torpedo boats and the damaging of a Japanese cruiser by Russian mines is confirmed.

Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovitch has telegraphed here offering the hospitality of a specially constructed villa on his estate at Altodor, in the Crimea, to officers wounded in sea fighting. Admiral Skrydloff has given permission to Lieut. Dombrovski and Midshipman Baron Aminoff to accept the invitation, and they will start for Altodor shortly.

ST. PETERSBURG, Friday, Sept. 30.—Port Arthur is more nearly isolated than ever, and the only news from that place comes by way of Vladivostok. It contains, however, the hopeful intimation that the garrison is confident of being able to hold out until the first of the year.

A special dispatch received here from Che-Foo says three Japanese warships are blockading that port. This evidently is under an agreement with China, in order to prevent the possibility of any of the ships of the Port Arthur squadron from seeking refuge at Che-Foo.

LONDON, Friday, Sept. 30.—The Daily Telegraph's Shanghai correspondent gives a vivid account of the terrible ravages of beri-beri among the Japanese, and especially among those besieging Port Arthur. He asserts that the deaths from disease exceed the number of those killed in the fighting.

The correspondent adds that it is rumored the Japanese are preparing to occupy Sakhalin.

RUSSIAN CRUISER BREAKS DOWN.

Other Ships of Baltic Squadron Engaged in Target Practice.

ST. PETERSBURG, Friday, Sept. 30.—The cruiser Oleg, which was preparing for sea at Kronstadt, broke her cylinder while making her trial trip, and probably six weeks will be required to make the necessary repairs.

The other ships of the Baltic Squadron are still engaged in target practice at Reval.

Mr. Berg, representing Flint & Co. of New York, is here, it is reported in connection with business with the Admiralty.

RUSSIA'S NEW CAMPAIGN PLANS

Second Army to Consist of Six Corps—Czar Receives Grippenberg.

ST. PETERSBURG, Friday, Sept. 30.—It was reported last night that Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch's commission as Commander of the Manchurian armies had been made out, but the report cannot be confirmed.

The Emperor will return here from Odessa on Oct. 4. He stopped his train at Vilna in order to receive in audience Gen. Grippenberg, (who is to command the Second Manchurian Army,) who went there to hand over the charge of the military district. His Chief-of-Staff at Vilna, Gen. Roussesky, has been appointed Chief-of-Staff of the Second Army. Russesky served with distinction during the Turkish war, and was wounded at Plevna.

Gen. Schwank, Chief-of-Staff of the Sixth Corps, in Poland, has been appointed Quartermaster General of the Second Army, which will be composed of six corps, including the Eighth Odessa Corps and the Sixth Siberian Corps. The latter is now with Gen. Kuropatkin.

The remaining four corps are not yet designated, though it is understood that they will include one corps from Kieff, one from the Caucasus, and the Sixth Corps, from Lomja.

DENIES MEDIATION RUMORS.

Von Buelow Says the War is Deplorable, but Nothing Can Be Done.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES
Special Cablegram.
Copyright, 1904, THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—Count von Bülow, the Imperial Chancellor, is reported today as saying:

"We have absolutely no idea of intervening between Russia and Japan. As far as I know, nobody has any thought of doing so.

"The German Government takes the same view as the French Government, which recently, in The Temps, repudiated the idea that it should intervene.

"How should we think of offering intervention before one of the belligerents has asked us to mediate? That would be equivalent to forcing advice on them. Like all civilized mankind, we deplore this terrible war, which will perhaps go on a long time, but we have no means of preventing its continuance."

MORE SOLDIERS FOR JAPAN.

New Ordinance Provides About 200,000 Additional Men.

TOKIO, Sept. 29.—The emergency ordinance amending the army conscription law was gazetted to-day. It extends the service of the second reservists from five to ten years, and abolishes the distinction between the first and second reserve conscripts. Reservists will be retired at the age of thirty-seven.

At the Foreign Office this evening it was stated that the new conscription regulations would augment the available Japanese fighting force by about 200,000 men.

A contemplated increase in the army involves a new scheme of divisional organization, the plan of which has not yet been disclosed.

PEACE CONGRESS UNWELCOME.

Russia Would Probably Decline to Send a Representative.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 29.—Considerable public interest has been aroused by the report that President Roosevelt is sounding the powers as to the advisability of calling another peace conference at The Hague.

In official circles the proposition is not considered to be exactly opportune. The Russian Government is naturally greatly interested in the tribunal, which owes its existence to Emperor Nicholas's initiative, and under ordinary circumstances would welcome anything to forward its aims. But it is pointed out that during the war such a proposal as is reported would hardly be received with favor.

The neutral powers would, of course, desire to limit the activity of the belligerents. Russia admits that there are many questions growing out of the war in the Far East which it would profit all the powers definitely to settle, and she is in favor of a conference at the close of the war.

While the war lasts, however, Russia will probably be unwilling to be a party to a conference at which the neutrals would have a preponderance, and could restrict the belligerents.

Therefore it is likely that Russia would decline to send a representative.

NEW REGIME UNDER MIRSKY.

A Number of the Late M. de Plehve's Lieutenants Have Resigned.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 29.—Prince Peter Sviatopolk-Mirsky assumed active direction of the Ministry of the Interior today.

It is already apparent that there will be almost a clean sweep of the old de Plehve régime. A number of the lieutenants of the late Minister have resigned. The gendarmerie will become an independent department, the new Minister having firmly refused to have any connection with the police.

The speech of Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky at his reception of the officials of the Ministry of the Interior this afternoon is interpreted as the harbinger of a mild and broad régime. It practically reiterates what the Minister said to The Associated Press at Vilna Sept 23 about the Emperor's manifesto furnishing the guiding spirit of his administration.

It is understood in an authoritative quarter here that ex-Senator Schaumann, father of Eugen Waldemar Schaumann, the assassin of Gov. Gen. Bobrikoff, who was arrested on suspicion of having had knowledge of his son's crime, has been found to be implicated.

VILNA, Sept. 29.—By virtue of the Emperor's ukase extending the privileges of residence to certain classes of Jews within the Palc the police have received instructions not to expel Jewish workmen from villages in which they have taken up their residence since 1882.

NEW LORD MAYOR CHOSEN.

Alderman Pound to Succeed Sir James Ritchie—Is Very Wealthy.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Alderman John Pound, Chairman of the London General Omnibus Company, was to-day chosen Lord Mayor of London for the ensuing year.

The new Lord Mayor will not assume office till November, but the election always takes place in September. Alderman Pound will succeed Sir Thomson Ritchie, brother of the ex-Chancellor of the Exchequer, who has proved one of the most successful Lord Mayors of recent years.

Mr. Pound is a well-known London business man. He was born in the City, was educated at the "Bluecoat" School there, and after leaving school entered his father's business in London, of which he is now the head.

In 1869; when he was forty years old, Mr. Pound entered the Corporation as a Councilor. He became an Alderman in 1892, and in 1895-6 he served as Senior Sheriff. He is a Past Master of the Leathersellers' Company, the Fanmakers' Company, and the Fruiterers' Company. He is extremely wealthy.

American's Portrait of Merry del Val.

ROME, Sept. 29.—Maurice Fromkes of New York, the first American artist to be intrusted with the task of painting a portrait of Cardinal Merry del Val, the Papal Secretary of State, for the Vatican, will be allowed to exhibit the painting at an exhibition in New York. The Cardinal is most pleased with Mr. Fromkes's work.

Kaiser Now in Perfect Health.

BERLIN, Sept. 29.—Emperor William is described by members of his suite as being in perfect health and speaking in a clear and natural voice. He enjoyed his yachting trip in the Mediterranean last Spring, and it is possible he may go there again next year, although no determination to do so has been expressed.

Rain of Ashes in South Italy.

ROME, Sept. 29.—There has been a plentiful fall of fine ashes or sand in South Italy, which is attributed to the eruption of Mount Vesuvius or to the strong winds from the African Desert.

FOR AN INTERNATIONAL CODE OF PRIVATE LAW

Dr. Jitta's Suggestion at St. Louis Congress of Lawyers.

TRIAL BY JURY ATTACKED

Resolution That Czar Call Next Conference Voted Down—Cheers for Roosevelt.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29.—Suggestions of an international congress which shall provide a general code of private law were made at the international congress of lawyers and jurists to-day. Such a code would provide world-wide rules on validity of marriage, divorce, guardianship, and civil procedure.

Dr. Josephus Jitta, professor in the University of Amsterdam, was one of the chief speakers on this subject.

"Between 1893 and 1904," he said, "four conferences of European nations were held at The Hague in order that a unification of private international law—that is, the law of private relations of men of various countries—might be secured. The conferences have led to four treaties, namely, on civil procedure, validity of marriage, divorce, and guardianship, while four other treaties are prepared in draft. The most important treaties have been put in force in the Netherlands, France, Germany, and Sweden, and as a result the European Continent is entering upon a new era of prosperity.

"The participation of all the civilized nations of the world to further conference, that such legislation may be universally enacted, is a matter of serious consideration."

Dr. Meili, profesor in the university of Zurich, in a philosophical review of the conferences relative to the enactment of a private international law, said:

"If we are to work toward accepting universal uniformity in the rules of conflict it is necessary that all nations take a lively interest in the international private law, that particularly Anglo-American jurisprudence shall reform its views on certain topics, and that England and America shall study and test the questions discussed at the conferences in order to determine whether they will participate in them.

"It is further imperative that international private law be taught at all universities, and that officially conducted legal bureaus be created in every country to give information to foreign courts as to the existing private law."

President Brewer begged the delegates to give the matter the most serious consideration, and said that the most earnest discussions in the Supreme Court had been those affecting the validation of divorce when the two parties lived in different States.

There was an animated discussion on the jury system, following a speech made by Alfred Nerincx, Professor of Law in the University of Louvain, Belgium, who said:

"I do not believe in civil jury trials. In the first place, the difficulty of securing a good jury in the best cases is extreme. A civil jury is not sounder than a good, honest, well-trained Judge. When you cannot get men of high standing in the community for jurymen, you get men of a lower tenor, whose judgment cannot be depended upon. Most lawyers would rather go to a Judge than to such a jury.

"I think the jury system is itself on trial to-day, and there is every indication that the verdict of public opinion is against it."

The following resolution, on which the Committee of Nations had reported favorably, was adopted by the congress with unanimity and applause:

"Resolved, That the Universal Congress of Lawyers and Jurists, sympathizing with all movements to bring about peace among nations by international friendly agreement, welcomes the announcement of the President of the United States that he proposes to call a new conference."

The congress voted down a resolution on which the committee had reported unfavorably to the effect that the Emperor of Russia be requested to call the new conference.

ANOTHER ARMENIAN MASSACRE.

Private News Received in Constantinople—Details Lacking.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—The Temps this afternoon published a dispatch from Constantinople saying private information has been received there to the effect that the village of Ramsa, Armenia, was yesterday the scene of a massacre of Armenians by Kurds.

Details are lacking.

HOOLEY HELD FOR TRIAL.

Henry J. Lawson, Another Company Promoter, Also Committed.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Ernest Terah Hooley, the company promoter, who was arrested in London on May 10 on the charge of conspiracy to defraud, and Henry J. Lawson, another company promoter, who was taken into custody the same day in connection with the charge against Hooley, were today committed for trial.

Hooley merely reiterated that he was not guilty, and reserved his defense.

In the course of a long statement Lawson said he had been engaged in business in London for over twenty years, during which time he had formed fourteen companies, with a total capital amounting to over £2,000,000, with which companies fifty-five peers and 130 members of the House of Commons were connected.

"If such business and connections have brought me to Bow Street," Lawson added, "I am proud of being there."

KINGS MOURN PROF. FINSEN.

Two Monarchs at His Funeral with Princes and Ministers.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 29.—Few scientists have been recognized in death as was Prof. Niels Finsen (discoverer of the so-called Finsen rays of light for the cure of lupus and head of the Finsen Ray Institute, at Copenhagen, who died Sept. 24,) at his funeral, which was held in the Frederick Church to-day.

Two Kings, those of Denmark and Greece, were present, and almost every other European ruler was personally represented, while Princes, high Ministers of State, and leading scientists came to pay a last tribute to the dead man.

Wreaths carried by special representatives came from Emperor William, King Edward, Queen Alexandra, and Count von Bülow, the German Imperial Chancellor. The Crown Prince of Denmark and Princes Waldemar, Karl, and Hans were present in the church.

SECOND HUMAN LEG FOUND.

First of the Discoveries Off Astoria Made Three Weeks Ago.

While digging for sand worms at Riker's Beach, Astoria, yesterday, Michael Bittner of 28 Mark's Place, saw a human leg floating in the water. He notified a policeman, who brought the leg ashore and took it to the Astoria Station. It was that of a woman and had evidently been in the water some time.

The leg of a woman, which was wrapped in what looked like hospital bandages, was found in the water near the Astoria Ferry about three weeks ago.

Sir George Newnes Arrives on Baltic.

Sir George Newnes, Bart, M. P., publisher of The Strand Magazine, Tid Bits, and other publications, arrived in New York on the White Star liner Baltic yesterday afternoon. It is Sir George's first visit in seventeen years. He said one reason Englishmen wanted Mr. Roosevelt elected was that they wanted to keep Mr. Choate in London.

ZIEGLER RELIEF SHIP TO SAIL NEXT JUNE

W. S. Champ Tells of the Frithjof's Unsuccessful Voyage.

THE AMERICA WELL SUPPLIED

Not Much Reason for Anxiety—It Is Not Likely That She Will Be Heard from This Year.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—W. S. Champ, secretary to William Ziegler of New York, who was in charge of the expedition sent to search for the arctic exploration steamer America, will sail for New York to-morrow. He will report to Mr. Ziegler the details of the two attempts of the Frithjof to reach Franz Josef Land.

Mr. Champ states that the next relief expedition will sail in June, 1905. After leaving Vardo on Aug. 6, Mr. Champ says, the Frithjof reached almost 79 degrees of latitude, when drift ice drove her back. After endeavoring to find another passage the Frithjof was obliged, on Sept. 14, to give up the attempt, as now ice was forming very fast.

Mr. Champ said it was just possible that the America might be able to release herself during October, but probably she would not be heard from until next year. He believed, however, that the expedition was amply supplied with necessaries, and that there was not much reason for anxiety concerning it.

EPISCOPALIANS NEED MONEY.

Bishop Coadjutor Greer Asks Funds for Charity and Missions.

Need for more money, both for charitable and missionary work, was urged upon the one hundred and twenty-first annual convention of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of New York by Bishop Coadjutor David H. Greer, who presided, when it assembled at the old Leake and Watts Orphan Asylum yesterday. He favored the establishment of a diocesan fund. He also urged the necessity of securing more real estate for church purposes in the Bronx before the price advances with the expected influx of population.

"Our Roman Catholic brethren have acquired property worth $9,000,000 there," he said. "I don't envy them, but I want to know what this Church is doing."

He pleaded for two more negro parishes in this city, where there are now but two, and also for diocesan support for the school for deaconesses, which, he said, should not be allowed to depend wholly upon the rector of Grace Parish for its maintenance.

Use of the revised version of the Bible was made permissive by an overwhelming vote.

The Rev. Pascal Harrower offered a resolution appealing for aid in completing the choir and the crossing of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. This will cost $1,000,000, but will provide seatings for 5,000. The Rev. Dr. William R. Huntington spoke in favor of the resolution, and it was unanimously adopted.

SAID MEXICO SWINDLED HIM.

Man Dead in New Orleans Had Big Claim Against His Former Country.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 29.—Ramon Llerena, a wealthy Mexican, who said he was fleeced by the Mexican Government out of thirty miles of valuable lands in the States of Michoacan, Lajisco, and Colima, died here to-day at the residence of his daughter.

He and his brothers inherited the property from their father, and instituted proceedings to obtain possession of the lands. When they visited the tract the brothers were murdered, but Ramon escaped.

Litigation followed and Señor Llerena was forced to become an American citizen. He accumulated other wealth, but his claim against the Mexican Government for his inheritance is still pending.

NEGRO METHODISTS INDIGNANT.

Drug Store Refused to Sell Soda Water to Bishop Derrick.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio, Sept. 29.—The African Methodist Conference, in session here to-day, was thrown into confusion when it became known that its presiding Bishop, W. B. Derrick of New York City, had been unable to obtain a drink of soda water at a local drug store.

The Bishop ordered a drink at the drug counter, but the clerk said it was against the rule of the firm to serve negroes, and he refused to violate it.

The conference later adopted resolutions denouncing the druggist.

BRINGING C. E. FORBES BACK.

Detectives Sail with Their Prisoner on Last Stage of Journey.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The White Star liner Majestic, which sailed from Liverpool yesterday and Queenstown to-day for New York, had on board Charles E. Forbes, alias Irving W. Humphrey, who was arrested in Buenos Ayres in July at the request of the United States authorities on the charge of forgery committed in New York.

Detective Sergt. O'Connell and a Pinkerton man, who covered 25,000 miles in tracking Forbes and bringing him back, are the officers in charge of the prisoner.

Forbes, who was the confidential cashier of G. W. Cole & Co. of 141 Broadway, New York, was arrested in December, 1902, charged on five counts with forgeries against his employers amounting to $25,000. He was admitted to bail and fled.

Earl of Yarmouth Here.

The Earl of Yarmouth, who, while following a stage career in America, met and married Miss Thaw of Pittsburg, was among the arrivals on the White Star liner Baltic yesterday. His wife, the Countess of Yarmouth, arrived here several weeks ago and is now in Pittsburg at the home of her mother. The report is that the Earl comes over to welcome a possible heir to his title. He left for Pittsburg last night.

TOO BASHFUL TO TELL.

C. B. Green, 52, and Miss Dutton, 44, Married in Greenwich Sept. 15.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Sept. 29.—Charles B. Green, a New York banker, who has spent fifty-two years in single blessedness, and Miss Jennie Dutton, daughter of Justice Haskell Dutton of New York, a spinster who admitted that she was forty-four years old, were married in Greenwich on Sept. 15 by the Rev. W. E. Schofield at the Methodist parsonage, and the record has just been filed in the Town Clerk's office.

The parties concerned were too diffident to announce the fact before.

FIRE STALLS THE ELEVATED.

Ninth Avenue Trains Stopped for More Than Three Hours.

The plate-glass factory of J. Fitzpatrick & Co., at North Moore and Greenwich Streets, was damaged by fire last night to the extent of $40,000, according to Fire Chief Croker's estimate. The fire started on the second floor of the building and spread quickly to the third and fourth and finally to the sixth story. Chief Croker turned in a third alarm and also ordered out the fireboat New Yorker.

The smoke from the fire was so dense and poured out of the windows in such volume that the firemen found it almost impossible to do effective work. Despite the handicap, however, they managed to confine the fire to the glass works.

Owing to the proximity of the Ninth Avenue elevated railroad structure to the fire and the additional fact that the firemen found the structure one of the most effective points from which to fight the flames, the power was turned off in the third rails, with the result that from 10 o'clock until after 1 o'clock this morning no trains ran on that line below Fifty-ninth Street. The Ninth Avenue trolley line and all the horse car lines in that section of the city were likewise put out of commission.

The fire gave Chief Croker his first chance to use his new forty horse power automobile. It can go fifty-five miles an hour and is a big red affair that weighs 2,900 pounds.

BUFFALO ALDERMEN IN COURT.

Seven, Under "Graft" Charges, Plead Not Guilty.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 29.—As the result of District Attorney Coatsworth's investigation of charges of alleged "grafting" on the part of city officials, three present Aldermen and four ex-Aldermen have been indicted by the Grand Jury.

They are J. Thomas Harp, Henry Moest, and Orrin F. Pierce, Aldermen, and Edward C. Beiser, Louis G. Roedel, Henry G. Schneider, and John G. Busch, ex-Aldermen. All were arraigned to-day and pleaded not guilty. Bail was fixed at $1,500 each, and the District Attorney announced that he would bring the indicted men to trial on Oct. 10.

The indictment against Harp and Moest charges that they asked for and received $350 for their vote and influence in connection with an application to connect a plant outside the city with a city sewer.

Pierce is charged with asking and agreeing to receive 50 cents a load from a contractor for cinders which were to be used in grading and resurfacing a street. Beiser, it is charged, asked for and agreed to receive the sum of $2,225 for his influence and vote in connection with the purchase of a site for a schoolhouse.

Roedel and Busch, it is charged, asked for and agreed to receive from a contractor who had in tenders for the construction of a sewer $900 each for their votes and influence in connection with the letting of the contract.

Schneider is charged with asking for and agreeing to accept a bribe of $25, with the understanding that his vote and opinion would be influenced thereby in connection with the letting of a contract for coal for the waterworks.

Mayor Knight has suspended from office Aldermen J. Thomas Harp, Orrin F. Pierce, and Henry Moest.

Suits and Top Coats for Men

At Fifteen and Twenty Dollars.

Oftentimes a single phase of a great organization serves to give a true perspective of the whole. So that you may grasp the magnitude and power of this clothing shop of ours, analyze with us just two series of our suits and top coats—those at fifteen and those at twenty dollars. In numbers, models and styles of fabrics, our collection of these specific garments is greater than the entire stock of the average shop—greater, mind you. Instead of accepting the garments of uncertain character which the market has to offer, we tailor in our own shops every garment which our label identifies. What does that profit you? Much. Our tailors are masters of their craft—tailors who are clever enough to fashion the garments which we present at thirty-five and forty dollars. That promises something for every suit and top coat they fashion, be the price ever so modest, does it not? Yes, and it insures that character and impressiveness which make every Saks garment distinctive.

Suits and Top Coats, At $15.00

Suits, six single and three double breasted models in thirty-four styles of cheviots, thibets, worsteds tweeds and cassimeres in solid colors, mixtures and designs of browns, grays, black or blue.

Top Coats, four box models in fourteen styles of coverts, whipcords, twills, cheviots and vicunas in tan, gray, brown, Oxford or black.

Suits and Top Coats, At $20.00

Suits, eight single breasted, four double breasted, two Chesterfield cutaway and two English frock models in forty-eight styles of fabrics in the new browns, light and dark gray, black or blue.

Top Coats, five box, two paddock, two paletot and two tourist models in nineteen styles of covert, whipcord, cheviot, twill or vicuna, many of which are silk lined.

BATTLESHIP CONNECTICUT TAKES BIRTHDAY PLUNGE

Cheered by Multitude on Shore and River Craft.

HER YOUNG BUILDER OVERCOME

Miss Welles, the Sponsor, Fails to Break the Bottle, but a Workman Comes to Her Rescue.

The Connecticut, sister ship of the Louisiana, and, therefore, one of the two greatest battleships afloat, was launched successfully at the Brooklyn Navy Yard yesterday morning. In just twenty-eight seconds after the final blocks holding the enormous hull were sawed through, the 6,800 tons of steel slid down the 600 feet of greased ways and rode the waters of the East River.

Miss Alice B. Welles, granddaughter of Gideon Welles, Lincoln's Secretary of the Navy, was the ship's sponsor. She failed to break the bottle of native champagne over the vessel's prow, but John Gardner, a workman employed in the construction of the ship, came to her rescue. He was in a knot of workmen gathered high up in the vessel's bow looking down at the ceremonies.

As the ship began to move, and he saw the unbroken bottle dangling at her side, he seized the silken tri-colored lanyard from which the bottle was suspended, and swinging it far out let the bottle smash against the vessel's side, the wine foaming and gurgling down her bow just as her stern took the water.

In the few seconds that elapsed between her failure and the workman's act, Miss Welles stood the picture of dismay, her face pale and tears gathering in her eyes. As she saw the giant hull recede she uttered a little cry of disappointment and failed to speak the words assigned to her, "I christen thee Connecticut." Secretary of the Navy Morton and Rear Admiral Rodgers, who stood by her side, hastened to assure her that the ship would be called the Connecticut just the same. When Miss Welles saw the act of the quick-witted workman, she smiled through her tears and some of the color returned to her cheeks.

"They wouldn't let me grasp the bottle by the neck," she said later, "for fear that I would cut my hands, and I could not swing it hard enough by the silk rope. I am sorry, but it has happened to others, hasn't it?"

Gardner, the workman, was correspondingly happy. "I have been working on the vessel since her keel was laid," he said, "and I just couldn't see her go into the water without the bottle being broken on her bow. It was a pity the young lady failed, though."

The launching was set down for 11 o'clock, and it was only 16 minutes after the scheduled time that the naval giant slid down the greased toboggan. At that time there were gathered in the navy yard, on the cob dock, on the Williamsburg Bridge and in the boats in the river at least 50,000 persons intent upon seeing the exercises. Every person in the yard had a good view of the launching, and at no point was there any undue crowding.

CROWD STILL AS DEATH.

When Naval Constructor Baxter sang out through his megaphone, "Saw off," the great crowd, realizing that the momentous instant was at hand, was as still as death. "What will she do?" went from mouth to mouth. The tension was intensified by the stories lately afloat that some miscreant had tried to interfere with the successful launching. Suddenly the grating noise of the saws stopped. "All ready!" sang out the cheery voices of the workmen, and Miss Welles poised her bottle of champagne for the blow.

There was one more rip of the saws, and while the crowd still held its breath the great warship glided down the greased ways as lightly and as easily as a feather wafted on a breeze. There was no shock, no tremor, and, before the great throng realized it, the Connecticut was floating gracefully in the waters of the East River. She glided out into the river under the momentum of the slide until she was nearly under the Williamsburg Bridge, when a couple of bustling little Government tugs, above whom she towered as Gulliver above the Lilliputians, took her in tow and brought her back to the dock.

In that instant in which the Connecticut touched the water and it was seen that the launching had been a success even beyond the fondest hopes of those responsible for the work, pandemonium broke loose. Women shrieked, men tore off their hats and waved them frantically in the air, the giant crane emitted a fearsome whistle, and this was taken up by every vessel in the river and from every shop in the yard. Admirals and Generals on the guests' stand waved their hats and cheered. Below in the great throng the women danced about in their enthusiasm and waved handkerchiefs.

On the great battleship itself hundreds of workmen were gathered on the deck. They hung far out from the barbettes, and from every porthole, and every man jack of them was waving his hat and cheering. The picture was completed when the guns from the Kearsarge, her yards and turrets black with sailors, boomed out a salute of twenty-one guns, yet in the din this salute was almost lost.

"The most successful launching in history," was Rear Admiral Rodgers's terse comment as the vessel was seen proudly floating in the water. After the wave raised by her initial plunge as her stern struck the water there was scarcely a ripple as she glided out among the craft that surrounded her.

The proudest man in all that navy yard yesterday was Assistant Naval Constructor Richard H. Robinson, the young man whose genius had done it all. Mr. Robinson is but twenty-nine years old, yet to him was intrusted the delicate task of superintending the construction of the monster vessel. But yesterday he was not in the picture. He was far down among the wreckage of blocks and timbers supervising the last minute details. The cheering multitude saw the Admirals and Generals and other officers in their uniforms and gold braid, but they did not see the young constructor, whose heart was full of joy when he saw the vessel taking the waves so proudly.

YOUNG CONSTRUCTOR WEPT.

"He wept," said a workman coming out of the débris of timbers, his clothes greasy and grimy, but his face aglow with pride. "He wept like a man, and he ought to be proud of it, for it was him that done the whole thing."

The great crowd began to stream into the navy yard as early as 8 o'clock. Special arrangements had been made by the naval authorities to handle the throng, for 33,000 invitations of all kinds had been issued, and it was believed that few of the invited guests would fail to be on hand. Details of marines and yard policemen were stationed at all the entrances and along the roadways leading to the scene of the launching. A detail of 300 policemen had been sent over by Commissioner McAdoo and placed under the orders of Rear Admiral Rodgers.

The Navy Department went into great detail in providing for the expected crowds, and it was this detail that interfered with the handling of the crowds. There were seven styles of tickets out calling for admission at one place or another, and in their anxiety to get as near as possible to the scene of the launching guests were shoved from gate to gate as their tickets provided.

"Them's our orders," was the phrase most frequently heard during the morning, as the sorely tried sentries heard the plaints of arguing visitors. Every detailed man had orders from some superior officer to allow certain things and not to allow others. Every man tried to explain that he was only following his instructions when some person tried to give him an argument, but it was hard work to make a crowd of over 30,000 persons understand.

In spite of all these drawbacks, however, the great crowd which thronged the section of the yard nearest the Connecticut was comfortably settled at 11 o'clock, the hour set for the launching.

On four stands, two on each side of the vessel, were stationed the bands from the several war ships now in the navy yard, and these played popular airs at intervals. All these stands, as well as those provided for the launching party and specially invited guests and for the press, were gay with bunting.

On one side of the vessel the big cob dock was jammed with elisted men and their friends. Off to the left the Kearsarge, gayly dressed with flags, was black with men even in her fighting tops, while thousands more stood gazing and waiting on the bunting-bedecked Hancock, Kentucky, Dauphin, Texas, Indiana, and Chattanooga. Every building within sight of the launching held crowds of men and women on its roof and in its windows, while little specks of humanity could be seen moving about on distant buildings and on the Williamsburg Bridge, a mile away, all waiting for the moment that the great ship should seek the waves.

SHIP'S BIRTHDAY FAIR.

The day broke fair and the sunshine poured down on the resplendent scene until a few minutes before the launching, when the gray clouds gathered in the sky, but even with the sun shut out the picture was a continuous kaleidoscope of color and movement. Above all the buildings in the yard towered the great red steel hull unrelieved by a touch of other color except at her black painted hawseholes, which stared out two great sightless eyes over the heads of the multitude.

One moment she rested on her cradle like a great dead thing, and in the next she moved with life and floated out as gracefully as a swan into the river, to the acclaim of the multitude. It was as if the breath of a great spirit had been breathed into her. It was a transformation worthy of the brush of a great painter.

When the sponsor, Miss Welles, arrived she was accompanied by Rear Admiral Rodgers, who carried for her a huge bunch of American Beauty roses. Directly after her came Mrs. Chamberlain, wife of the Connecticut Governor; Mrs. Rodgers, wife of the Rear Admiral; Miss M. G. Houghton, and Miss W. R. Mowe of this city. All the women carried large bunches of pink roses. Miss Welles was gowned in pastel gray, and wore a black hat trimmed with black plumes.

Notable among the other guests and in full dress uniform were Major Gen. Corbin and Brig. Gen. Frederick Dent Grant. In the naval division were Rear Admirals Chester, Coghlan, Melville, Erben, Cooper, Wise, Lamberton, Davis, and Strong. Among the civilians were Secretary of the Navy Paul Morton, Gov. Chamberlain of Connecticut and his staff, Gov. Murphy of New Jersey, and Gov. Warfield of Maryland; Edgar T. Welles, once President of the Wabash Railroad and father of the sponsor; Lewis Nixon, Herbert Parsons, Miss Helen Gould, Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Munn, Capt. Parsons, President of the Maritime Exchange; Commissioner McAdoo, Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, Col. Thompson, and Robert C. Ogden.

Admiral Rivet and a number of his officers from the French flagship Duplex were also guests, and were the recipients of much attention.

After the launching had been successfully accomplished the guests were entertained at luncheon in the sail loft. Miss Welles occupied the seat of honor, and on either side sat Secretary Morton and Gov. Chamberlain. Miss Welles kept a jealous eye on the shattered bottle, still encased in its silken covering, which had been brought to her.

It was at the luncheon that Secretary Morton, in a brief address, made the announcement that, although it was with sorrow that the department announced that Rear Admiral Rodgers would retire on the age limit next week, after forty-seven years' continuous service for his country, it had been arranged that the Navy Department would retire in another way. When this announcement was made there was great cheering.

Secretary Morton was asked later as to the details of the plan, but he would say only that Admiral Rodgers was to be the head of a bureau. "Ask him," was his reply when asked the name of the bureau. Admiral Rodgers refused to make any statement.

Secretary Morton said it was a great day for the American Navy, and that it was proper that such a great ship should be named for a great State. He congratulated all who had to do with the building of the ship, especially Naval Constructor Baxter and Assistant Naval Constructor Robinson.

Gov. Chamberlain said that the people in his State had noted with patriotic pride the laying of the keel of the great vessel, and felt proud that she had been named for a patriotic State. Then the bands played "The Star-Spangled Banner" while the guests stood, and thereafter "The Marseillaise," in honor of Admiral Rivet, who expressed himself as much moved by the courtesy. Thus ended the ceremonies.

AT WORK BEFORE DAWN.

The actual work of launching the Connecticut, however, began hours before the first spectator arrived. While the navy yard was still wrapped in darkness hundreds of workmen came hurrying down the different streets to the slip where the ship lay. Long lines of sentries guarded the vessel, and all approaches to it, and not even a workman was allowed near until orders came.

When daylight broke it was seen that several guards, with loaded guns and pistols, were at the stern where the launching ways go down into the water. Guards in boats patrolled the East River and the waters of the basin. It was 4:30 when Mr. Robinson gave an order, and the electric lights began to glimmer along the under sides of the ships. No man was allowed to go to work, unless he wore the red button that distinguished the laborers.

All morning two divers were in the water about the stern and along the two broad timbered tracks down which the ship was to slide. The officers in charge took no chances, and the divers were kept at work until a few minutes before the final preparations were completed.

The first work of the launchers was to knock out the stern keep blocks, which were below water at high tide. Then tumbling blocks, so called, were substituted. Soon the men went to work to knock out the shoring posts.

At 8:30 the task of lifting the monster steel hull was begun. This was done by long wedges, 480 of them, and they were to lift the ship's weight from the keel blocks and cribs so that the latter might be more easily cut away. They were driven by heavy wooden rams, four men to a ram. It took a lot of hammering to raise the 6,800 tons of steel, and the men worked in fifteen-minute shifts until the job was completed. The ramming continued until thirty minutes before the vessel slid into the water.

Then the keel blocks were knocked away, and the huge vessel stood apparently without support, and with seemingly nothing to keep it from toppling over sideways. The centre of gravity was in the keel, however, in a space about twenty feet square, and that was sufficient to hold the vessel upright.

The weight of the vessel was now resting entirely upon the launching ways. These were greased with 8,500 pounds of tallow of the best quality. Every pound of it had been boiled down in kettles in the yard, freed from grit and applied to the ways by hand. The only thing that now held the Connecticut in her berth were two heavy beams, called "shoe pieces," and directly above these, on either side of the ship, were hydraulic rams to give the hull a push in case it did not move of its own weight. There still remained the blocks under the bow, and between these bags of sand had been placed.

At the first signal from Constructor Baxter that all was in readiness, workmen with axes hacked at these cushions of sand. The sand ran out, the blocks tumbled away, the huge saws severed the shoe pieces, and the Connecticut was afloat twenty-eight seconds later.

The Connecticut is a sister ship of the Louisiana, which was launched several weeks ago from the yards of a private shipbuilding concern at Newport News. The construction of the Connecticut has been watched with keen interest, as it was considered a test of the Government's ability to cope with private enterprise. If the ship launched yesterday is completed before the Louisiana, it is taken for granted that most of the Government work will be done hereafter in the navy yard.

The Louisiana was laid down in February, 1903, and the Connecticut in April of the same year. In spite of having to erect a plant in the navy yard to do this work, the Connecticut is only two weeks behind her sister ship in taking her first plunge into the water, while she was laid down two months later.

RIVER CRAFT'S GAY WELCOME.

Tugs, Yachts, and Steamboats Greet the New Battleship.

From tugs and pleasure craft in the East River nearly 5,000 persons gave the Connecticut an uproarious greeting as she glided into the water.

Fully an hour before the time set for the naval ceremony, all manner of craft, bedecked with flags and crowded with passengers, could be seen steaming up the river to a point off the navy yard where the new war vessel, resplendent in a coat of red paint and arrayed in full dress of flags for the christening, lay resting in her cradle. Nearly every tugboat in the harbor not otherwise engaged was on the scene with a full complement of passengers. Tiny steam yachts carrying private parties mingled with the crush of other craft, and there were not a few excursion steamers jammed with passengers.

Thousands of people thronged the Manhattan shore. Every pier from which a glimpse could be had of the navy yard across the river, Corlears Hook Park, the roofs along the river front, and every place presenting a favorable point of vantage had its quota of humanity. The promenade of the new Williamsburg Bridge, which afforded a splendid view of the ceremony was crowded from shore to shore.

The United States revenue boat Mackinac was patrolling the river in front of the navy yard to see that none of the pleasure boats ventured near enough to get in the way of the Connecticut as she was launched. By degrees, and after jockeying for positions for a considerable time, they ranged themselves in a wide semi-circle. The police boat Patrol was on hand to assist the naval authorities in maintaining order, and there was not the slightest hitch.

The hour set for the launching was 11 o'clock, and from that time on there was a constant narrowing of the semi-circle of pleasure boats in the river. Finally, at 11:15, a cry went up:

"There she goes! There she goes!"

All eyes were focused in an instant on the Connecticut's cradle. The fireboat William L. Strong, carrying a party of city officials and flying the Mayor's flag and the flag of the City of New York, steamed in a little closer to the launching place and gave a vigorous blast with her whistle, in which the whistles of the other craft immediately joined.

At first the motion of the big battleship on her ways was hardly perceptible, but it increased as she neared the water. White smoke belched forth from the gun ports of the battleship Kearsarge, which, dressed in her naval splendor of bunting and with her fighting tops manned, lay moored at the navy yard.

Her guns spoke—twenty-one times—but so vigorous was the tooting of steam whistles and so mighty the cheer of spectators that the thunder of the National salute on the river sounded like the popping of so many toy pistols.

The cheering continued for many minutes after the ship had reached the water. She presented a magnificent spectacle as she glided down the ways. As the Connecticut struck the water a big steam barge, flying a flag that bore the trademark of a big brewing concern, was hovering about the scene. On the bow of the battleship could be seen still the marks where the baptismal champagne had trickled down. As though that was not enough, two deckhands on board the barge tossed a beer keg overboard, and it was bobbing up and down on the waves almost alongside the big battleship as she was being towed back to shore.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Sept. 29.—At the annual session of the Fairfield County Woman's Christian Temperance Union this afternoon Mrs. C. B. Forbes, the State President, denounced the use of champagne in naming the battleship Connecticut.

SAYS BROTHERS ROBBED HER.

Two Boys Accused by Sister Who Befriended Them.

Bernard McNaugh, seventeen years old, and his brother, John, nineteen years old, were arraigned before Magistrate Pool in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday, charged by their sister, Mrs. Evelyn Doyle, with having ransacked her apartment at 109 West Fortieth Street of all the clothing and bric-à-brac it contained.

Mrs. Doyle told the Magistrate that the boys had lived with her until three weeks ago, and that she had supported them. On the evening they left the flat she and her husband went to the theatre, and on her return found that it had been robbed. The two boys were arrested Wednesday night coming out of a dance hall. The police say they confessed that they had robbed the flat.

They were held in $500 bail each for examination Saturday.

GOT POCKET 'PHONES THIS TIME

Police Took Wall Insruments from Alleged Poolroom on Saturday.

Capt. Shire and detectives of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station raided an alleged poolroom in East Thirty-second Street between Third and Lexington Avenues late yesterday afternoon. The same place had been raided by Capt. Shire on Saturday last.

On the five men arrested were found four pocket telephones which had been used, the police say, in place of the wall telephones which were taken out at the previous raid.

Capt. Shire, with Detectives O'Brien and Quinn broke in the door leading to the first floor of the house, which is a three-story structure with a blacksmith shop on the street floor. When the police broke in there was lively scurrying to escape. Four men ran upstairs, pursued by O'Brien and Sullivan. A lively struggle ensued on the second floor, and all six came rolling down the stairs. Sullivan pursued the men into the blacksmith shop, where he locked with them again. They succeeded in throwing him and escaped over the back fence. The five men arrested gave fictitious names, and all of them refused to give their addresses or occupations.

MORE "GRAPEVINE" DISCIPLINE.

Stock Exchange Suspends Two Firms for Consolidated Arbitraging.

Formal announcement was made of the suspension of two members of the Stock Exchange, yesterday, for a period of one year for violations of the laws of the Exchange. The suspended members are William S. Alley and S. L. Blood, representing respectively Alley, Conger & Co. and S. L. Blood & Co. Mr. Alley has been a member since 1878, while Mr. Blood joined 'way back in 1869.

The action was taken at a meeting of the Governors Wednesday afternoon. The announcement was not, however, made until yesterday morning. According to the official statement, the suspension was for a violation of the so-called wire resolution, which is designed to prevent trading with members of the Consolidated Exchange. The specific offense was not made public, but it is understood to have dated back to last June, when the telephones of eleven members of the Exchange were removed for irregularities and infractions regarding the rules of the Exchange regulating their use.

Trading with members of the Consolidated Exchange is strictly prohibited by the rules of the Stock Exchange; nevertheless, there are always wires in operation between the floor of the Stock Exchange and that of the Consolidated. On the latter there is no rule against arbitraging, as it is called, and while the firms having wire connection with the Stock Exchange are well known, their connections on the floor of the big Exchange are kept secret.

GOV. BATES NOW CENTRE OF THE GURNEY MIX-UP

Is Criticised by Washington for Making His Letter Public.

DISCOURTEOUS TO DEPARTMENT

Governor Wants Ambassador's Attention Called to Breach of Local Law—Phelps Apology.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The letter of Gov. Bates of Massachusetts in regard to the arrest and fine of Hugh Gurney, the Third Secretary of the British Embassy, was received at the State Department today, and is likely to draw the Bay State Governor into the international complication more prominently than he would desire.

In the first place, he does not furnish the data wanted by the department as to the conduct of Mr. Gurney and the officers who dealt with him, and in the second place, he is criticised for making his letter public at the same time that he sent it to the State Department. This is considered as an act of apparently thoughtless discourtesy toward the department and the British Ambassador, to whom Judge Phelps's apology, which was inclosed, was to be sent. Now it may not be sent.

In his letter to Acting Secretary of State Adee, Gov. Bates says:

While the incident is greatly to be deplored, I venture to suggest as in some degree exculpatory of the court in this matter, that the representatives of foreign Governments who have dwelt among us have always conducted themselves with such regard for the laws of the Commonwealth as to hitherto furnish no occasion for the consideration by our courts of criminal jurisdiction of the immunities to which such foreign representatives are entitled under the law of nations and through which they may find protection when disregarding our laws.

I suggest that the attention of the Ambassador of his Britannic Majesty be invited to the breach of the laws of this Commonwealth disclosed in the statement of Judge Phelps, accompanying this letter, believing that, if his attention is called to it he will take such action as to make certain that immunity from prosecution in our courts shall not permit the safety of our citizens to be endangered, or our laws to be violated because, through international comity, jurisdiction of our own tribunals is withheld.

The following letter from Judge Phelps to Mr. Gurney was inclosed by Gov. Bates:

As Justice of the Lee Police Court, I find occasion to express my profound regret that, through a misapprehension of the law I assumed that the court had jurisdiction over the person of a member of the Embassy of the British Government. Having become apprised of this error, and seeking to make all possible reparation therefor, the court has vacated and annulled all proceedings taken in the matter of the complaint against yourself and the erroneous judgment entered thereon.

I beg further to express my profound personal regret that I should have been, without intentional error, the cause of your own personal vexation and annoyance, or that anything should have occurred which may have seemed to be, though not so in fact, a want of respect for the rights of a representative of the Government of his Britannic Majesty.

In his letter to Acting Governor Guild on the matter, Judge Phelps said that Mr. Gurney's statements in court appeared to be a "manifest and intentional defiance of judicial authority," whereupon Mr. Gurney was adjudged in contempt.

It was said at the State Department that after Gov. Bates's letter is supplemented with the further information desired, probably nothing more would be sent to the British Ambassador than a transcript of the facts in the case and the regrets of the Government that Mr. Gurney had been subjected to treatment which had abused his immunity as a diplomat.

While expressing regret at the occurrence the statement will present also the testimony adduced to show that Mr. Gurney violated the local laws.

SMASH CARRIAGE, THEN BOLT.

Autoists on Lonely Jersey Road Don't Wait to Ascertain Damage.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., Sept. 29.—While driving in a lonely part of Hilton late last night Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morarty and their son of 12 Globe Street, Newark, were injured and their carriage damaged by a mix-up with automobiles.

One report is to the effect that one of two automobiles which were racing ran into the carriage. The other story has it that one auto was towing the other, and that the horse became frightened and ran away. The horse ran all the way to Irvington before being captured. The automobilists didn't stop after the accident, and their numbers were not learned. Mr. and Mrs. Moriarty were both dazed and bruised, and had to walk more than a mile before they could receive medical attendance.

SNAKE INDIANS IN POW-WOW.

Gather to Protest Against the Allotment of Their Lands.

Special to The New York Times.

PARIS, Texas, Sept. 29.—The Snake Indians of the Indian Territory are forming a pow-wow at a large spring, six miles west of Antlers, to protest against allotment of their lands.

Lawyers have told them their treaty with the Government of the United States guaranteed them their lands "so long as grass grows and water runs." On the strength of these representations the Snake band has come together for consultation. Many beeves, sheep, and hogs were consumed today at a barbecue.

FIRE AT GRAVESEND TRACK.

Bartenders Heroes of Blaze, Using Beer for Water.

An overturned pot of grease in the restaurant kitchen at the Gravesend race track yesterday was responsible for a fire that for ten minutes transformed Caterer John McGrath's corps of bartenders into amateur firemen, and mildly diverted those race-goers who happened to be aware of what was going on.

About five thousand visitors were at the track and in the grand stand and betting ring when the fire started, but only a few hundred knew anything of the accident which for a minute or two threatened the track buildings.

It was about 4 o'clock—just after the fifth race—when a careless helper in the kitchen upset a cooking vessel on the big range, and the hot grease, taking fire, spread over the floor. The woodwork of the structure ignited instantly, and flames drove the employes out, while volumes of smoke puffed through the doorway into the section under the stand used for the bar and lunch counters.

The instant the alarm was sounded the twenty or more bartenders and cashiers nearest the kitchen formed a bucket brigade with such rapidity that only a few minutes after the flames drove the kitchen helpers out the bartenders by the valorous use of stale beer had the fire under control.

The damage was small, the fire being extinguished before it did more than char the timbers of the structure and spoil a day's supplies for the restaurant.

HERRICK ENDS LEGAL WORK.

Signs Last of Cases Remaining, and Is Ready for Notification.

ALBANY, Sept. 29.—Judge Herrick completed his legal work this evening and signed his name to the last of the cases remaining for his decision from the Brooklyn Trial Term. This was a motion for substitution of attorney in the action of Jacob Lipkin against Louis Ruter. The motion was granted.

The local Democratic clubs are preparing to meet the Notification Committee and those with them at the railroad station Saturday and escort them to the City Hall. The streets through which the parade will pass will be decorated, and efforts are being made by the Albany County Democratic organization to have an enthusiastic celebration.

Plans for notifying Justice Herrick have been slightly changed. The ceremony will take place Saturday at noon, as announced, but in the Common Council Chamber instead of at Democratic State Headquarters.

Justice Herrick said that he had appointed his brother, Walter R. Herrick, a young attorney, to be his private secretary during the campaign. Mr. Herrick will be in charge of the Justice's personal headquarters, which will be established on Saturday at the Hotel Kenmore, on North Pearl Street.

Tammany has arranged to be well represented at the Herrick notification ceremonies in the Albany City Hall to-morrow, as Charles F. Murphy and about 200 Tammany men will go by special train at 8:45 o'clock to-morrow morning over the New York Central. All of the local contingent will be back in New York in the evening.

WORKED IN BLAZING BUILDING.

Five Men Ignorant of Danger Until the Firemen Broke In.

Two firemen were overcome by the gases from a fire which started in a bin containing 100 tons of soft coal, in the basement of the cold storage depot at 454 to 456 West Fourteenth Street last night. The building, a three-story brick structure, is occupied by Cudahy Brothers, the T. H. Wheeler Company, and Conron Brothers, all dealers in meats.

Down in the engine room, 100 feet back from the front of the building, there were five men working at the refrigerating plant. They knew nothing of the fire until the members of Engine 3 burst in on them. They escaped through Thirteenth Street. Most of the members of Engine 3 were overcome, but only two had to be dragged out to the street unconscious by their comrades. They were Irving Bennett and Charles Dougherty. After they had been worked over some time they were resuscitated. The fire caused $6,000 property damage.

Will of J. H. G. Vehslage.

The will of the late Congressman John H. G. Vehslage was filed for probate in the Surrogates' Office yesterday. He died on July 21 last at his home, 72 North Moore Street. The petition accompanying the will states that the real estate left by the testator is valued at $15,000 and the personal property at $42,000. The sum of $5,000 is bequeathed to the testator's daughter, Christina Schroeder, wife of Edward S Schroeder. The widow will receive $52,500, as she is named as residuary legatee.

AHEARN WARNS CONTRACTORS.

Cautions Them About Violations of the Eight-Hour Law.

Borough President Ahearn called ten contractors doing work for his department before him yesterday and warned them to beware of violations of the eight-hour law. The Department of Labor sent several complaints to the Borough President, accompanied by affidavits of the men, who declared they had been forced to work overtime on grading and sewer contracts.

Mr. Ahearn's inspectors could not verify all the complaints, so he called the contractors before him and lectured them about the need for strict adherence to the specifications of their contracts. The Department of Labor has full power to prosecute any contractor who violates the statute, and the Borough President does not understand, he says, why they content themselves with forwarding the complaints to him.

GOOD PRICES FOR F. P. KEENE'S HUNTERS

Meadow Brook Club Gets Imported Foxhounds for $6,150.

SALE FAVORED BY SOCIETY

Roger Winthrop and Capt. Mather of Ireland Pay $4,000 Each for American-Bred Horses.

Foxhall P. Keene's sale of American-bred and imported hunters, held at Van Tassell & Kearney's salesrooms, East Thirteenth Street, last night, was notable, not only for the general excellence of the prices, but from the unusual crowd that it brought together. Nearly all the prominent clubs in this city, Boston, and Philadelphia were represented, while the women, who outnumbered the men by two to one in the reserved seats in the balcony overlooking the tan bark, were attired in dainty evening costumes and their escorts were in the regulation evening dress. With the exception of the horses, as they were led up to the auctioneer's block and the knot of horsey men grouped around the selling ring, one might easily have imagined he was at some fashionable entertainment.

Mr. and Mrs. Foxhall Keene occupied seats in the front row of the balcony, where they had an unobstructed view of the sale and the crowd below. In their party were James R. Keene, Mrs. Adolph Ladenburg, Mrs. E. D. Morgan, Joseph P. Grace, and Charles Carroll of Baltimore. Others present were:

Mrs. Smith Hadden, Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Brooks, Miss Cynthia Roche, Miss Hadden, Miss Bryce, Pierre Lorillard, H. L. Herbert, and J. R. Townsend of the Orange County Hunt; Percy Evans, J. Grey Griswold, and Victor Mather of Philadelphia; Robert G. Shaw, 2d, of Boston; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Alexander, Harry Case, T. F. Clyde, James R. Borden, J. C. Wilmerding, Montague La Montague, Samuel Willetts, Daniel Chauncey, Jr., Clarence Robbins, L. J. Hunt, Ambrose Clark, A. G. Kennedy, Eugene Reynal, and A. B. Purdy.

Seventeen hunters were sold, all of which have been used by Mr. Keene both in this country and abroad. They brought $27,525, an average of nearly $1,620, and the price was considered excellent. It is the first time in America that a regular sale has ever been held of hunters. After the sale of horses Mr. Keene's pack of imported foxhounds, including thirty-seven and a half couples, was brought into the ring, making another notable feature of the sale, as it was the first time that a pack of hounds had ever been sold here at auction. The hounds were offered as a pack, and after some spirited bidding between representatives of the various hunting clubs, James H. Hyde got the pack for $6,150. He was acting for the Meadow Brook Club. Clarence Mackay and a number of prominent Meadow Brook horsemen watched the bidding with keen interest, and were much pleased at the success of the club in securing the whole pack.

Nine of the hunters sold were bred at James R. Keene's Castleton Stud, Ky. The others were Irish bred, and the result of the sale caused the horsemen to comment with marked favor upon the fact that the American hunters brought far the better prices, while three of the best were secured by a foreign bidder, Capt. Mather of the Royal Leicester Regiment, Ireland. It showed a decided tendency to turn the tables and, instead of the usual buying abroad of valuable hunters by Americans, indicated that foreign horsemen are taking an interest in the American bred hunting horse.

Two of the American bred horses sold for $4,000 each, the highest prices of the sale, outside of the hounds. Prophet, a brown gelding, five years old, was the first horse offered by Auctioneer Easton and it was purchased by Capt. Mather on a cabled bid for $4,000. The famous hunter, Becky Sharp, which has a great reputation around the Meadow Brook Club, also sold for $4,000, going to Roger Winthrop of this city.

Capt. Mather bought two other hunters for $2,000 and $1,900, respectively, the latter, Precentor, being a half brother of Conroy. Cyril Simmons paid $3,800 for the six-year-old American-bred hunter Delighted, and W. Goadby Loew of Scalbright paid the highest price for an imported hunter, giving $2,000 for the Irish horse, Nigger, said to have been the best hunter in Galway. Two of the Irish hunters were purchased by Mrs. Adolph Ladenburg, one of the most fearless of the women cross-country riders at Meadow Brook. For one she paid $850 and for the other $600. Joseph P. Grace bid the former in for her and Charles Carroll of Baltimore bid for the other. James R. Keene bought one of the imported hunters for $425.

Besides the seventeen hunters, four other horses were sold, the best of this lot being a polo pony, which went for $365 to J. E. Munroe. Edward Kearney bought the trotter Dick Roche for $150, and a pair of carriage horses went for the low price of $300. In all, therefore, twenty-one horses were sold, netting $28,345.

The foxhounds made a splendid appearance as they were led into the ring, and nearly a dozen masters of hounds at different hunt clubs pressed forward to get a good look at them. Mr. Keene purchased them abroad and used them in his English hunting for the last two years. He brought them to America last Spring. The bidding was started at $300. From that price it bounded by five-hundred-dollar bids to $3,000, and then for $6,150 were knocked down for the Meadow Brook Club.

The leading prices for the hunters were:

ROCK SAND'S RICH PRIZE.

Ridden by "Danny" Maher Noted English Colt Won Jockey Club Stakes.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Great interest was taken in to-day's race at Newmarket for the Jockey Club Stakes of 10,000 sovereigns, for three-year-olds and upward, at one mile and three-quarters, on account of the number of well-known horses that ran. The field of ten included two Derby winners, Rock Sand and St. Amant, the former ridden by "Danny" Maher, the American jockey; two St. Leger seconds, William Rufus and Henry I., and one Derby third, St. Denis, as well as Loch Ryan, winner of many of this year's good races, and Foundling and Rydal Head. J. H. ("Skeets") Martin, the American jockey, rode William Rufus.

Rock Sand won, with Henry I. second and William Rufus third. The betting was 5 to 2 against Rock Sand and Henry I., while "Skeets" Martin's mount started at 40 to 1 against. Rock Sand was supposed to be suffering from an inflamed leg, and until this morning it was doubtful whether he would be able to start. He won by a length and a half. This year's Derby winner could not even get fourth place. At about half-way Rock Sand took the lead from Rydal Head and drew to the front, where he remained. There were four lengths between second and third horses.

Maher's victory, in one respect, was lucky, as Lane, who heads the list of winning jockeys, was slated for the mount, but about a week ago Lane was thrown and nearly killed. In this way the American got the chance of riding last year's Derby winner. Maher immediately capped his achievement by winning the next race, the Double Trial Plate, on Cadival.

R. Vanderbilt's Horses Won 15 Prizes.

READVILLE, Mass., Sept. 29.—The combination horse show and amateur racing meet of the New England Breeders' Association was concluded to-day amid a downpour of rain that seriously interfered with the attendances and sport. Reginald C. Vanderbilt continued his winnings in the horse show ring, securing five blue ribbons and two reds and including two championships among his firsts. Mr. Vanderbilt's winnings for the week numbered fifteen, more than double the winnings of any other competitor. His sharpest competition to-day was won with Dr. Belcook over Dusty Farnum, exhibited by Lorenzo Strauss of New York.

BLACK HAND SCARED MOTHERS.

Brooklyn Italians Heard That Schools Were to be Blown Up.

Frightened by baseless rumors that the so-called "Black Hand" had threatened to blow up several school buildings, Italian mothers in the Eastern District of Brooklyn kept their children from school yesterday and the day before, caused scenes at two or three of the schoolhouses, and gave the police and school authorities an astonishing lot of trouble.

The schools which were more or less affected by the groundless scare were No. 36, Stagg Street and Bushwick Avenue; No. 43, Boerum Street and Manhattan Avenue; No. 117, a branch of No. 36; No. 145, at Noll Street and Central Avenue, and No. 17, at North Fifth Street and Driggs Avenue. The effects of the rumors were most seriously felt at School No. 117.

The rumors appear to have resulted from the work of a practical joker, who sent a letter to the proprietor of a brewery near one of the schools, threatening to blow up the place unless he paid $45,000. Some of the children in School No. 145 heard of this and began talking about it when they gathered. One imaginative youngster soon started a story to the effect that the "Black Hand" had threatened to blow up the school building.

This false story, when it reached the Italian children, spread with astonishing rapidity. When it reached School 17, which is in the heart of an Italian quarter, the children went to their mothers and told them. The mothers took the tale seriously, and many of them kept their children from returning to school. Others went to No. 17 and tried to get in to their little ones. When refused the women became excited, and hung about until the children were dismissed for the day. Yesterday afternoon about 200 of the women assembled at the school and became demonstrative.

It was finally found necessary to call upon the police, and Capt. Harkins of the Bedford Avenue Station sent a force of men around to the school. Italian women also gathered at several other schools in the district, but were less demonstrative than those at No. 17.

WANTED IN JERSEY, HELD HERE.

C. J. Thompson Indicted at Elizabeth for Grand Larceny.

Detective Sergts. Mundy and Fogarty of the Central Office and Detective McGrail of Union County, N. J., arraigned Charles J. Thompson in the Centre Street Police Court yesterday and asked Magistrate Barlow to hold him without bail pending the arrival of extradition papers from New Jersey. The detectives arrested Thompson at his office at 149 Broadway.

Detective Mundy told Justice Barlow that Thompson was wanted by the authorities at Elizabeth, N. J., on three indictments charging grand larceny. The detectives alleged that he had served a year in prison in Michigan for stealing $4,000 from the Standard Life Insurance Company of Detroit. Thompson denied this and demanded to know the specific charge on which he had been arrested. He was told that the specific sum was $200, but that there would be further developments. He was remanded to Police Headquarters.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 29.—Charles J. Thompson, who was arrested in New York to-day, is under indictment here for grand larceny. He was formerly Secretary to A. J. Beckley, a metal perforator and manufacturer at Garwood, and lived at Roselle. He left the employ of Mr. Beckley last Spring and moved to New York. Subsequently Mr. Beckley appeared before the May Grand Jury and caused the indictment of Thompson upon a charge of having converted to his own use a check made out to Mr. Beckley by Hyman Isaacs of this city for $211.15. Mr. Beckley had promised the local authorities he will have several other indictments found against Thompson. He also charges Thompson with having given away trade secrets to rival manufacturers.

SIEGEL HEAVILY INSURED.

Dry Goods Merchant Takes $500,000 in the Mutual Life.

Henry Siegel, President of four of the largest retail dry goods houses in the world, has just purchased a policy for $500,000 in the Mutual Life Insurance Company of this city, for which he pays an annual premium of $26,425.

Among the heavily insured men of this city are: John F. O'Rourke, $500,000; George W. Vanderbilt, $1,000,000, and James C. Colgate, the banker, $1,500,000. The Mutual Life reinsures all but $250,000 of these large risks. One feature of the growth in the life insurance business is the demand for large policies. During the first six months of 1904 the Mutual Life issued to fifty-one applicants alone $6,337,500 of insurance, an average of about $125,000 for each of the fifty-one policies.

JAMAICA PLUMBER MISSING.

George W. Perry's Family Fear He is Victim of Foul Play.

George W. Perry, a plumber, who was well known in Royal Arcanum circles, disappeared from his home at 14 Fulton Street, Jamaica, on Monday last, and his friends believe that he may have met with foul play, as he had about $1,500 in his pockets at the time of his disappearance. Last night the police were asked to look for him.

Perry is described as 5 feet 3 inches in height, weighs about 135 pounds, and is 38 years old. When he disappeared he was attired in a dark suit of clothes and wore a derby hat and light-colored overcoat. He wore a Royal Arcanum button in his coat lappel. If he is not heard from to-day the members of the Royal Arcanum order throughout the United States and Canada will be asked to assist in the search.

Ammon's New Attempt for Liberty.

Through what he claims to have been an unconstitutional act of the Legislature in passing an ex post facto law, "Col. Bob" Ammon hopes to escape serving his indeterminate sentence of not less than four nor more than four years and six months in Sing Sing. To this end his counsel filed a petition in the United States Circuit Court yesterday for a writ of habeas corpus, that the constitutionality of the law may be determined. The petition states that subsequent to his conviction, which was on June 4, 1903, the Legislature passed two acts, amending the Laws of 1889, under which he was convicted. The petition states that they "are ex post facto laws so far as the crime with which the prisoner is charged, and for which he was convicted, is concerned."

Sign Painters Want Political Work.

The first union to try to utilize the political campaign for business purposes is that of the sign painters, which up to recently was an independent organization, but has now joined the Brotherhood of Painters, a National Union. Some of its members paint banners and transparencies and decorate blank walls of houses. The union, it was reported yesterday, has decided to ask the National and State Committees of all political parties to see that the banners and transparencies are made that do not bear the label of the Sign Painters' Union.

Policeman Dead, Had Record for Bravery

Martin T. Shea, a policeman attached for the past eight years to the Charles Street Station, died yesterday at the New York Hospital, where he had been ill with pneumonia since Sept. 6. Shea had a record for bravery, having rescued two persons from drowning. He had been twice honorably mentioned and received a medal from the department. He also received two medals from the Humane Society.

Gates in Hippodrome Company.

At a meeting of the New York Hippodrome Company held yesterday, the following were elected Directors of the company: John W. Gates, H. S. Black, Elmer S. Dundy, Robert E. Dowling, and R. G. Babbage.

DOLLY SPANKER WON HANDICAP IN CANTER

Kingston Gelding Had Contest for Oceanview All His Own Way.

FOUR CHOICES WERE FIRST

Santa Catalena and Jennie McCabe Were Successful Non-Favorites at Gravesend.

The smallest fields of the meeting somewhat simplified the bettors' daily problem of picking winners at the Gravesend track yesterday, but even the one-sided conditions failed to prevent surprises. In both of the events for two-year-olds the post favorites were beaten by long-chance horses, while in two other races long-chance horses fought out with favorites in close finishes. The weather was gloomy and rather warm, but no rain fell until after the programme had been finished.

The two leading contests of the card—the Oceanview Handicap, for three-year-olds, and the handicap for all ages, both races at one mile and a sixteenth—had four starters each, and both went to odds-on favorites. For the Oceanview, R. T. Wilson, Jr.'s, fast gelding Dolly Spanker was the top weight, with 112 pounds, and started a 10-to-7-on favorite, with Mineola and Leonidas the next best backed.

Dolly Spanker was at about his best in the race, and, breaking first, went on in front at a fast pace, with Leonidas in hot pursuit. Turning into the back stretch, Leonidas showed in first place, and, with Dolly Spanker galloping under a pull behind him, led on suffferance to the bend into the quarter stretch. There Redfern, on Dolly Spanker, eased his mount a bit, and the gelding romped past Leonidas and won in hollow style by eight lengths. Leonidas tired at the finish, and, stopping fast in the last furlong, was beaten out by a head by Mineola for second place.

In the handicap for all ages, the Western mare Colonial Girl was always the favorite at odds of about 5 to 3 on, while Carbuncle and Sonoma Belle were about equal second choices. Colonial Girl took the track at the lifting of the barrier and went on in front, with Hoodwink hanging at her shoulders to the middle of the last turn, where Hoodwink gave it up and Sonoma Belle and Carbuncle passed her and made the effort to get up to Colonial Girl. The favorite slipped away again with ease, and won about as she pleased, while Carbuncle, under the whip, shook off Sonoma Belle and finished second.

The politicians were very much in evidence at the finish of the fifth race, which Congressman T. D. Sullivan's horse Old England won, after making all the running, with Orthodox, of a stable with which Senator P. H. McCarren is identified, second, and Frank Farrell's King Pepper third. Out of Reach led most of the distance in the mile and a sixteenth for maidens three years old and upward, but was managed to get in winner by a head from Clovis, which forced the winner to severe punishment in the run through the stretch.

The long-chance winner of the day was Santa Catalina, which was backed from 10 to 1 down to 8 to 1, and, brushing past the pacemaker, Czaraphine, in the last furlong, won cleverly by two lengths. P. J. Dwyer's smart filly Jennie McCabe, with 7 to 1 laid against her, took the third race, after a hot finish with Brush Up, the favorite and pacemaker, into the last half furlong.

Trotters Tied for Championship.

For the first time in the history of the New York Driving Club, three trotters are tied at the end of the season for the championship cup, and the last matinee of the year at the Empire track to-morrow afternoon will dispose of the important question. John F. Cockerill's Anna Little, Thomas B. Leahy's Princess Pique, and A. E. Perren's Wilton Boy have each won fifteen heats, and their final meeting will decide the championship. If derim will be an extra starter in the race, making it a four-cornered affair of unusual interest.

Brayton Ives's Monte Carlo wins the trotting record cup, and the pacing record trophy probably will go to James A. Murphy's Don Derby, while his Free Advice will take the heat cup. Marcus Bruckheimer's Baron Said is the winner of the President's Cup, offered for the pacer scoring the greatest number of heats. For the wind-up to-morrow, seven races are on the card, including a special two-mile exhibition by Monte Carlo. A luncheon will follow the matinee, when the season's prize cups will be presented. The past year has been the most successful in the history of the club, which has a membership larger than any other driving club in America, and boasts of many horses raced purely for the sport who make time which compares favorably with that of the professionals.

Trotters and Pacers at Parkway.

Four heats were paced before the 2:19 class could be finished yesterday at the Parkway Driving Club's track, Brooklyn. George Presser, the black gelding owned by "Bob" Davis of the Parkway Driving Club, which finished ninth in the first heat, won the second and fourth heats and the race.

Grand Circuit Races at Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 29.—Major Delmar was scheduled to go against the world's trotting record of 2:02¼ at the Grand Circuit meeting to-day, but did not make the attempt on account of a strong wind. Major Delmar and Prince Alert will try for records to-morrow, the latter to beat the world's pacing record of 1:59½. The surprise of the day was in the 2:07 class, in which Red Bird, a hot favorite, was distanced after winning two heats and finishing a close second in another. Summary:

FIGURES.

Gov. ODELL has been ciphering upon the election. He gives Mr. ROOSEVELT a majority of 150,000 above the Harlem, Judge PARKER a majority of 75,000 in Greater New York, and so, in the easiest, most simple, natural manner in the world, reaches the conclusion that the President's majority in the State will be 75,000. Mr. HIGGINS, Gov. ODELL'S candidate for the Governorship, is to be elected, it seems, by between 20,000 and 25,000.

It is only the inexperienced who are impressed by election forecasts of this nature. It is not the big, round sums, but the little village and election district units, that impress the earnest seeker after campaign truth. Anybody who is so benighted as not to feel already well assured how this State is going, can get more trustworthy information by a little inquiry among his friends and neighbors than he can obtain from Gov. ODELL when speaking for publication.

ODELL CONVICTED BY ODELL.

Gov. ODELL gropes, stumbles, and falls flat in his attempt to reply to the charges made against him by Attorney General CUNNEEN. His failure is so obvious as practically to establish beyond dispute the truth of the charges. Mr. ODELL himself thus becomes a witness to the establishment and existence of the vicious system described by the opprobrious epithet "Odellism."

The best reply Gov. ODELL can make to the Attorney General's charge that he signed a bill authorizing the payment out of the public funds of half a cent a pound bounty to the producers of beet sugar, a bill which the Attorney General had advised him was unconstitutional, is that it had been the practice of his Republican predecessors to authorize these unconstitutional disbursements until the vice had become inveterate, and that he merely followed the custom. Gov. ODELL offers no defense when he pleads that Gov. BLACK and Gov. ROOSEVELT signed money out of the State Treasury in defiance of the Constitution for the benefit of private undertakings. The public is compelled to regard Gov. ODELL'S statement on this point as an admission that he was unwilling that the Constitution should stand between the beet sugar makers and the State Treasury. He was bound to accept the opinion of his official law adviser, unless he had a very much better opinion to the contrary, of which there is no evidence whatever.

In respect to the charge that the Canal Board voted to allow and pay a claim of $18,000 made by the Furnaceville Iron Company for rock excavation on a section of the canal where there was supposed to be no rock, the Attorney General—who produced a dozen qualified witnesses to swear to the fact that there was no rock—being the only member of the board to vote in the negative, the Governor sets up the defense of "business custom." The defense really amounts to this: The $9,000,000 appropriated by the act having been too quickly wasted and squandered, some of the contractors suffered loss; the $18,000 allowed on this once rejected claim was a solatium to the Furnaceville Iron Company—a corporation, by the way, in which the leading spirit is Gov. ODELL'S friend Mr. E. H. HARRIMAN, a gentleman now most actively engaged in raising money in large sums to promote the election of THEODORE ROOSEVELT as President of the United States.

Mr. ODELL expresses the belief that the Attorney General does not wish it to be understood that he charges his associates upon the Canal Board with improper motives. Mr. CUNNEEN'S associates upon the Canal Board must look out for themselves. They appear to have voted $18,000 out of the State Treasury to pay a false and fraudulent claim, Mr. CUNNEEN, the Democratic member of the board, alone voting in the negative. This is another case of Odellism, and naturally enough Gov. ODELL defends it. Mr. HEBERT, Chairman of the Greater New York Canal Association, says of this transaction: "If it be true that $18,618 was allowed the Furnaceville Iron Company for excavating rock where there was no rock, that would be a grave matter." It is true, and it is a grave matter. Odellism itself is a grave matter—the gravest State matter now and town officers of the State, have not been ordered. The question arises, Who is to pay for the books? and underneath that lies the question, Who is profiting by publishing and distributing them? They are sent out under the authority of an act passed by the Legislature last Winter. The bill was introduced by Senator RAINES. The Attorney General advised the Governor that it was unconstitutional, since it infringed upon the right of self-government in towns. The Governor signed the bill, just as he signed the beet sugar grab bill after being advised that it was unconstitutional. Odellism is a very consistent system. Where there is money to be spent for the benefit of friends or to build up the noble party of virtue and morality, Gov. ODELL has been ever ready to authorize the taking of it from the public funds raised by taxation. Upon the Odell way of administering a public trust, the people will pass judgment in a little more than a month.

VANDALISM AT ST. LOUIS.

There could not be a more characteristic and revolting illustration of gross barbarism than has been furnished by the mutilation of the pictures of the Czar displayed in one of the Russian exhibits at St. Louis. The worst of it is that we are afraid it will be regarded, with plausibility, as a characteristically American form of barbarism. No nationality represented at the World's Fair has any animosity against the Czar of all the Russias such as might lead to the indignities visited upon his harmless "ikon" or effigy, saving only the Japanese. Doubtless the Japanese have their share of blackguards and hoodlums, and very likely the Exposition has its full share of that share. But the thing does not, somehow, have the air of a Japanese insult. Of the two empires of the Far East, one would say that such a performance as this was rather in the Chinese than in the Japanese way. Among the many good qualities of the Chinese, chivalry toward an enemy is distinctly not one, while we have abundant evidence, even during this war, that it is a Japanese trait. The nation of which the navy went into mourning for the death of Admiral MAKHAROFF is not the nation to insult the effigy of the Czar in a neutral exhibition.

On the other hand, we have to own that the step from political opposition to personal insult is shorter in this than in any other civilized nation. Very few of us are without responsibility for this condition of sentiment, of which this outrage at St. Louis is a depressing illustration. It is greatly to be hoped that the efforts of the authorities of the Fair to detect the perpetrators of the outrage may be successful. If it turns out not to be of local origin, we shall owe an apology to the hoodlums of St. Louis which we shall, in that contingency, cheerfully pay.

THE CONNECTICUT.

Once a famous builder of warships, the New York Navy Yard passed almost wholly out of the business of construction when steel supplanted wood as building material. It is true the Maine was the product of this yard, but that was so long ago that, when it was decided to construct the Connecticut in the Borough of Brooklyn, it was necessary to supply the greater part of the complicated plant necessary for doing the work. It is due to this necessity that the private shipyard that is building the Louisiana—sister to the Connecticut—was able to launch its craft several weeks before the Government yard had reached that stage of progress. It does not necessarily follow that the Louisiana will be finished first, though the presumption is that it will; private methods of doing business almost always are more rapid than those of the Government; but the competition between the two will insure the earliest possible delivery of both vessels.

In the Connecticut and the Louisiana, when completed, the United States will have two of the largest battleships in the world, their displacement exceeding 15,000 tons. The question of displacement has been the subject of many lively controversies among experts, both in and out of the navy, and the adoption of the plan of the Connecticut and the Louisiana marked the temporary success of the advocates of the biggest tonnage that was compatible with moderate draught and reasonable cost. It is almost universally admitted that, in these vessels, the limit of size has been reached, so that—if it should be decided to build more battleships of the mammoth type—there is no probability that the tonnage of the Connecticut will be exceeded.

In every battleship design the Naval Constructor has to consider the relative values of certain features. Guns, ammunition, armor, boilers, and engines, coal, equipment, and hull are the chief weights, and they must be so proportioned as to produce the most efficient man-of-war. With the struggle between guns, armor, and machinery for predominance it has become impossible to satisfy every one in a battleship's design: consequently all types are compromises. But, as the advocates of each class of weights have grown more and more positive about the importance of the features advocated by them respectively, the tendency has been to give way to all of them, until from the 10,250 tons of the Oregon class, built twelve years ago, we have reached the swollen figure of 15,000 tons of to-day. And yet the specialists are not satisfied with the increased weights allotted to them. They still tions would obtain some very valuable lessons about types of warships; but, in spite of the fighting that has taken place, practically nothing has been authoritatively and finally settled.

The feature of greatest importance in the Connecticut, as compared with her predecessors, is the battery. The substitution of 7-inch for 6-inch guns greatly increases the vessel's gun power. But the British have gone one point better, by dropping from the main battery all the lighter pieces and mounting guns of 9.2-inch calibre instead. While the Connecticut's 7-inch guns throw projectiles weighing 165 pounds each, and her 8-inch guns give a moderate velocity to projectiles weighing 250 pounds each, the British 9.2-inch projectiles weigh 384 pounds each. The muzzle energy of the British battleships is greatly in excess of ours, therefore, and the striking energy at an ordinary fighting distance is comparatively still greater, for the heavier shell carries its momentum better. Some experts have suggested that we should dispense with our 7-inch, 8-inch, and 12-inch guns and mount a great number of 10-inch pieces. The idea is well worth careful consideration, especially if it should be found possible to increase the present velocity of our rifles—a contingency that seems likely soon to be realized. It might then be practicable to retain all the essentials of speed, coal, endurance, and armor without running the displacement up to the high figures reached in the Connecticut class—a consummation devoutly to be wished.

THE NEW WATER EXTENSION PLAN.

It would probably be a waste of time seriously to discuss just now the plan for extending the water supply of New York laid before Mayor MCCLELLAN by Commissioner OAKLEY. It is probably not intended to be seriously considered. Everybody connected with the City Government in a responsible executive or legislative capacity is so busy with politics that even the best of plans would have no chance of favorable consideration. The growing anxiety of the thoughtful citizens of New York as to the possible, and, indeed, inevitable, consequences of indefinite procrastination in making provision for the needs of the near future in the matter of water supply has doubtless suggested that "a bluff" in the way of a plan to be talked about would "go" as well as something serious.

The chief interest and significance of Engineer BIRDSALL'S plan, which Commissioner OAKLEY approves, is that it brings us a good deal nearer the resurrection of the Ramapo scheme than we were brought by the work of the Burr commission. Well-informed persons think it a safe prediction that if Tammany remains for another Mayoralty term in control of the city the only solution of the water problems of New York which will stand a chance of favorable consideration will be one which enables the Ramapo conspirators to get their money back and something over and have something left to divide with "the boys." It will be discouraging indeed if all that work has to be done over again; but the specific declarations of the Tammany leaders have put us on notice that this is what we must expect to have to try to do, whether we are successful in again accomplishing it or not.

PHYSICAL EXERCISE.

The beginning of the Fall term of schools and colleges and the reorganization of teams for various kinds of strenuous interscholastic and intercollegiate contests will revive the interesting, if interminable, discussion as to what kind of exercise, and how much of it, is beneficial to the man, young or old, whose normal life is sedentary, and who takes exercise neither spontaneously nor for the pleasure of it, but perfunctorily and because he thinks it essential to his well-being.

ERASISTRATUS, the Court physician of SELEUCUS NICANOR, King of Syria, one of the wisest of the ancients, who first practiced dissection and described the brain, believed and taught that exercise "is not particularly indicated for the preservation of the health." Since his time a great many wise and thoughtful persons have held the same opinion; at present it may be taken as a consensus of the best opinion on the subject. This does not mean that a person of "full habit" can practice the customary excesses of eating and drinking and remain healthful if sluggish and averse to any form of exertion; but it may be understood to mean that exercise, in itself considered, is not a health-imparting function, and that to depend upon it to correct the consequences of other excesses is to lean upon a broken reed.

The benefit of exercise depends largely upon the condition of the person taking it and his fitness to derive advantage from it. As one eminent physiologist and hygienist says: "If a man persistently overfills his blood and connective tissue with materials ingested greatly in excess of his requirements, exercise, especially if spasmodic and violent, and taken at irregular intervals, is likely to do him more harm than good." This is very good sense. Even among people of temperate habits the mistake is frequently made of seizing opportunities of leisure from monotonous work to do a sudden spurt of other and unaccustomed work, under the misimpression that it will do them good. The chances are that they need rest a great deal more than they need exercise. Few people appreciate the fact that even in work which seems sedentary tissue is consumed in one way drain of normal daily life upon the physical and mental energies is usually all they are able to meet.

It is safe to say that the average business man will get all the special exercise he needs if he takes it while dressing in the morning. For this purpose light dumbbells or Indian clubs, (if he has room to swing them,) or the chest weights, or even an elastic strap with handles, is all the apparatus he needs. He can do without even these if he will learn from any book on calesthenics the simple motions of the body and limbs which bring the commonly unused muscles into play. Exercise for its own sake should not be taken when it induces fatigue; it should not ordinarily be prolonged after it has started sensible perspiration, unless one is prepared for a bath and change of underclothing at its termination. With moderation in eating and drinking, and zeal in the performance of the duties of life, moderation in exercise will commend itself to the sane man as much better than overexertion.

CONCRETE AND THE SUBWAY.

In its current number, for September, The Cement Age contains articles of unusual interest by the Chief and principal Assistant Engineers of the Rapid Transit Commission on the subway as a concrete construction. These articles are of value as contributions to the history of this great municipal work, and serve to show that without the employment of cement in the form of concrete the construction of the subway within the time and at the cost represented by the finished work would have been impossible. It is a construction of steel-reinforced concrete throughout. As Mr. GEORGE W. RICE, Deputy Chief Engineer, very truly says:

> The use of concrete has been beneficial not only in reducing the cost of the work, but in these times of labor troubles it has allowed the use of unskilled labor in the carrying on of the work and has to a large extent rendered the contractors independent of the bricklayers and other classes of skilled labor. Under competent superintendence the forms can be set and the concrete placed in position with the cheapest kind of labor, and with a certainty of good work if the materials are properly manipulated.

The amount of concrete used in the execution of the Rapid Transit contracts above City Hall was about 600,000 cubic yards. More than a million barrels of cement was used; every barrel was carefully tested, and it is probable that not a cubic foot of work in the whole system is of quality below the high standard of the specifications. No defects have been found.

This important work is typical of the present and the future of constructive engineering. The day of the stone mason and the bricklayer is passing. A few years hence theirs may be relatively unimportant trades. In future they must compete with unskilled laborers pouring concrete into a mold. There will remain work for them to do, no doubt, but it will be of a kind which will not permit them to control building operations as they have done in the past. Building will be cheapened by probably a third in the elements of cost included in masonry and brick work. As to durability, we have many classic models to warrant the expectation that who builds in cement, if he builds wisely, builds for posterity.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

—Quite the fiercest and most sweeping of the recent condemnations of college athletics is contained in a letter by J. G. GRAHAM of the Iowa State University, printed in Harper's Weekly. So much excited on the subject, indeed, is this opponent of "sports" at institutions of learning that he permits himself to write "different than" in the very beginning of his essay, a slip from which, perhaps, a few mop-headed football gladiators might have saved him had he asked their assistance. But that does not much affect the weight of his pronouncement that the only open questions as to college athletics are whether they should be reformed or whether they should be abolished. Mr. GILCHRIST himself is all for abolition, though he takes pains to proclaim a firm belief in "physical culture" for collegians as for everybody else. He denies, however, that there is any physical culture, properly so called, in competitive athletics, and insists that their effects upon mind and morals are invariably bad. "Athletic training," he says, "is physical suicide; it is ruin to the individual, unless he intends to be a professional athlete, and even then he must, in all probability, reconcile himself to a short life, with a more or less painful or tragical ending, and nothing left behind it all that has been of the slightest value to his kind, unless it be to establish a warning." To support the claim of intellectual deterioration, Mr. GILCHRIST asks if good work can possibly be done in the classroom and laboratory by those whose whole waking moments seem to be given up to thought and speech on athletics; who spend hours daily in practicing the various games; who are absent from their classes days at a time on tours from field to field. As for the morals of athletics, Mr. GILCHRIST says that anybody familiar with college life has abundant facts with which to prove that a professional coach, gate receipts, association with "sporting" characters, to say nothing of the carelessness of speech, dress, and manners that seems to be inseparable from athletic pursuits, must inevitably lead to degradation, if not on the part of the active participants, surely on that of their supporters. We suspect the existence in all this of exaggeration, but exaggeration implies also the existence of truth, and we incline to the opinion a way to the reform which Mr. GILCHRIST thinks impossible lies through the abolition of "gate receipts" of every kind. That one simple expedient would impose upon college athletics so many restrictions that the worst of their evils certainly, and most of them probably, would instantly disappear.

—At last we learn exactly what it was that, asserted of certain North Carolina mountaineers by a young Ohio woman, caused her friends and enemies at Lenoir, that State, to argue briskly—with shotguns—as to the need there for further missionary work by her. She told her Ohio friends, The Charlotte Chronicle says, that the people among whom she had been laboring were "floor squatters"; in other inhabitants were on their feet. "Her boarding house man," continues The Chronicle, in slightly shibmatic language, "'took up' for her. He had a couple of rank and several friendly neighbors, and these had a shooting match on account of the missionary." It was not at all serious. "Only three men were wifged, one of them catching a piece of lead that requires the services of a hospital surgeon. He was one of 'the enemy,' and at last accounts he will be able to resume the fight or do the sneak act. Meantime, the missionary has reached her home in Ohio, and presumably is lifting collections, while the floor squatters of Caldwell County are pulling fodder, eating red peppers, and keeping their powder dry. But so long as the missionary remains in the distance there is no danger of an eruption. There is nothing in the situation to justify branding it as a feud." The Chronicle declares that the people who resented the charge of floor squatting have public sympathy, if not law, on their side, and that if the young woman appears again in Lenoir they will be justified in opening fire on—her boarding house keeper and his squad. Now we know all about it, and the speed with which we have set forth the facts in the case should clear us from any suspicion of intentional injustice. But no, we do not yet know all about it—we do not yet know whether the vivacity of the mountaineers expressed resentment because their real habits were revealed to an Ohio audience, or whether their grievance was the falsity of the description. Information on that point would be welcome to us as students of sociology, though we do not see exactly what bearing it would have on the question whether or not the shooting was an evidence of barbarism.

—A curious and interesting commentary on politics as they are played in this day of grace is the fact that the necessity, if Mr. JEROME is wanted as a campaign speaker, of "taking him as he is or not at all," should be recognized as somehow setting him far apart from other campaign speakers, actual and potential, and so creating a problem which those who want his services regard as difficult and embarrassing. Taking merely its surface indications, the recognized existence of this problem as a problem implies that in the ordinary course of events campaign speakers are not taken as they are or not at all—that they are taken on an understanding that they will, if desired, be what they are not and say what they do not believe. But, of course, that implication is false and unjust both to campaign speakers and campaign managers. The sincerity of both in practically every instance is beyond question, however it may be as to the wisdom of those on one side or the other, and the difference between Mr. JEROME and the majority of political orators whose aid is invoked at this stage of a canvass is that he is not yet prepared to ascribe all the virtues to every member of one party and all the vices to every member of the other. There is, however, nothing unfamiliar in his mental attitude. It is exactly like that of most newspapers—nowadays. Once the unfaltering and thoroughgoing partisanship still expected of the campaign orator characterised the whole press, and great was the indignation when they began to balance fact against fact and to argue policies instead of advocating all those bearing one stamp and denouncing all bearing any other. The independent speaker is still an anomaly on the stump, but in time he will be as common—and as useful—as the independent newspaper. Already the people smile at the purely partisan writer or orator, and they are as little shocked by frank admissions of faint traces of decency in a political opponent as they are convinced by passionate denials that such traces of decency are discoverable in such a place.

—Gen. CORBIN sticks manfully to his declaration that army officers ought not to marry until they can meet the financial requirements of wife and family. Sentimentalists will continue to misunderstand his position and to call him a foe to holy matrimony, and a friend, or at least a countenancer, of things not holy at all, but after a while most of them will come around to the realization that what he denies is only the incompatibility, in the case of officers dependent on their pay, of marriage with the early stages of a military career. To anybody with eyes and an inclination to use them, that incompatibility is sufficiently plain to make argument impossible. The fact is lamentable, like most of the facts connected with war, but that is no reason for denying or ignoring it, and to do either only increases, quite unnecessarily, the reasons for grief.

TREATMENT OF CANCER.

Results by Surgery and by Roentgen Rays.

From The London Standard.

BERLIN, Sept. 20.—In to-day's sitting of the Dermatological Congress in Berlin, the subject of the treatment of cancer was discussed with much animation. Prof. von Petersen spoke on the subject of non-surgical treatment of epitheliomas, and came to the following conclusions: (1) That epithelioma is curable without operation only in its initial stage; (2) that the best results are obtained by "Finsenlicht," inasmuch as this treatment has no deleterious effects. Unfortunately, it is very expensive; (3) that Roentgen rays are often productive of good results, but they must be employed with great caution; (4) radium rays give positive results, but are accompanied by dangers still greater than those arising from the use of Roentgen rays; (5) small surface epithelioma can be healed by continued bandaging with a solution of from 5 to 15 per cent. of soda.

Prof. von Bergmann then spoke. He maintained that every kind of epithelioma can be permanently healed by means of surgery, whereas only a portion of the cases are healed by treatment by light. He admitted that when severe complications already existed the surgeon could not cure the patient. But in those cases the Roentgen rays also failed. Hitherto, he said, no cancer which has proved impossible to operate for had been healed by the Roentgen rays. It was true that in perfectly hopeless cases the pain of the patients could be alleviated by Roentgen and radium rays, but this simply meant the prolongation of the life of the patient, and not his cure.

Dr. Leredde of Paris, who followed, explained that a clever doctor could always avoid causing harmful effects when using radium in cases of cancer. He had, he said, registered good results from the use of radium.

The President, in addressing the meeting, pointed out that a careful distinction must be drawn between the different kinds of epithelioma. Deep-rooted cancer, he thought, ought to be operated upon immediately if an operation were possible, but superficial epitheliomas should be treated by Roentgen rays.

The results of the sitting seem, then, to be as sketched by the President. It was admitted that the cause of cancer is still unknown.

Lack of Courtesy at Sea.

From The London Pall Mall Gazette.

Lord Charles Beresford has complained that there are ships of the merchant service which make no response to a man-of-war when she politely drops the white ensign in passing. The Merchant Service Guild write to the Board of Trade and say there are men-of-war that cut you dead in the same rude way. But neither the Board of Trade nor the Admiralty can be fairly expected to say who began it, and the dispute seems rather an occasion for a friendly dinner between the heads of the service and the department, followed by the issue of a memorandum on good manners from each side, respectively. Merchant Captains should remember that naval commanders no longer flich the carrying trade, as they did in the time of Pepys, and naval commanders should remember that merchant captains are not always in a position to return the salute of a man-of-war. Perhaps the Admiralty will issue a memorandum on the subject.

THE CASE OF MR. GURNEY.

Small Business for the State of Massachusetts to Take Action in the Matter.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Concerning the episode of Mr. Gurney, one of the Secretaries attached to the British Embassy at Washington, being fined $25 for overspeeding an automobile in Massachusetts, and a further fine of $25 for contempt in refusing to plead, on the plea that the court had no jurisdiction over him, in which he was unquestionably within his rights, it seems to me that too much importance is being made of this small affair by the press.

I do not excuse or uphold Mr. Gurney for breaking the laws of the State of Massachusetts, nor do I sympathize with him. When, however, it is reported that the authorities of Massachusetts intend to demand his recall, I do think they are making small meat of themselves.

I respectfully call the attention of the United States Government to the fact that it is only one or two years ago that one of the attachés of the United States Embassy at London infringed some law of Great Britain, and when haled before the court at once placed himself under the protective clause relating to foreign Ambassadors and the various attachés of the embassy.

The people of Massachusetts need not be afraid. Mr. Gurney will get his medicine at the hands of his own Government; but there is no need to persecute the man.

J. F. DUNCAN.

Hoboken, N. J., Sept. 28, 1904.

An Undiplomatic Diplomat.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Would not the young member of the Diplomatic Corps, when he found himself a violator of a local ordinance, have acted more wisely had he accepted the situation gracefully and paid the fine, incognito, thus averting the "tempest in a teapot"?

One trained in that high service should fully realize that his residence in the country to which he is accredited should be characterized by the most punctilious regard for the amenities, which overspeeding an automobile is not. However, it is likely that this particular young gentleman will be more observant of what is due from his class hereafter, and as his home Government will probably not find a "casus belli" in the incident, some good may spring from the evil that has been done.

J. W. EDMONDS.

New York, Sept. 28, 1904.

OUR LOVE FOR PEDIGREES.

British View of an American Peerage Concern—Clever Idea of a Poor Noble.

From The London Express.

To Americans.—Washington's crest and coat of arms, magnificent bas relief, for sale. Moderate price; suit hall of mansion or hotel frequented by Americans. For particulars apply American Peerage, 25, Wellington Street, London, W. C.

Behind the above advertisement, which appeared in Friday's Times, lies the story of a republic's inordinate love of titles and pedigrees, and of a noble and enterprising youth who hopes to achieve fortune through that love.

The crest and coat of arms of the veracious George, however, have little or nothing to do with the story that is contained in the history of the "American Peerage"—a publication which is still in embryo, but is expected soon to send thrills throughout the New World.

About two years ago a cadet of one of England's noblest families, with nothing more to recommend him than the "grand manner" and an attractive personality, went to America to woo Dame Fortune.

He was immediately struck on his arrival by the almost painful anxiety shown in the wealthiest circles concerning pedigrees and crests. Some of those who lavished hospitality on the young man displayed a feverish desire to trace their families back to some one more remote than the Pilgrim Fathers.

The young man prospered, and presently he returned to England and launched his scheme for the publication of his novel "peerage."

A return trip to America followed, and Americans clamored for coats of arms and pedigrees. They were "found," and are still being "found" in nearly every case.

In a few weeks time the Mayor of every city in the United States is to be asked to canvass the population, and the applications for admission to the peerage are expected to be so enormous that the only fear is the size and weight of the volume.

The cover for the book is a gorgeous affair of real Russia leather, illuminated by the veteran Mr. Albert Warren, who is also the author of the George Washington composite bas relief alluded to in the advertisement.

The price of the "American Peerage" is to be $50, (£10)—a very reasonable price when the difficulty of "finding" suitable coats of arms and pedigrees is considered.

The preface, which is already in type, has been prepared with becoming dignity by the Rev. Compton Reade, the pedigree expert, and it will be an extraordinary thing if the syndicate responsible for this superbly conceived idea do not net a very handsome reward.

What George Washington would have said about it is a different matter.

WHAT IS THE MILKY WAY?

Australian Amateur's Solution of an Astronomical Puzzle.

From The London Mail.

A novel theory as to the Milky Way has been evolved by S. L. Adams, an amateur astronomer of Sydney, N. S. W. This luminous phenomenon, it appears, is really a shadow.

"The Milky Way," says Mr. Adams, "is constantly being seen at many different angles and in many parts of the sky, but it always preserves the same luminous front arising from the telescopic stars in its background.

"Now, as this background is constantly changing, and the luminous effect is only seen wherever the foreground happens to be the Milky Way, it is evident that it is not the telescopic stars themselves which produce the effect, but something projected on the foreground of the sky. That something is the earth's shadow.

"The supposed nebulæ," continues Mr. Adams, "are all shadows, and this explains their contempt for the laws of gravitation and their refusal to conform to the globular shape assumed by celestial objects generally. They are spots of shadow representing mountains or mountain ranges on the earth."

Mr. Adams anticipates that his discovery will be received with smiles of incredulity, but he expresses his belief that his view will one day be accepted as correct. He is to read a paper on the subject before the local branch of the British Astronomical Association.

Japanese as Farmers.

From The London Globe.

The Japanese have surprised the world as fighters, but, according to Harold Bolce, they are also the most remarkable agricultural nation in the world. They have only 10,000 square miles of arable land. An automobile going fifty miles an hour could skirt this area in eleven hours. Yet it supports an imperial nation; the rising power of the Far East. Experts admit that the scientific skill of Japanese agriculturists is unapproached. "Patient diligence, with knowledge of the chemistry of the soil and the physiology of plants, have yielded results that have astounded the most advanced agriculturists in Western nations."

Another Autoboat Run.

From The London Telegraph.

PARIS, Sept. 30.—An autoboat ran across the Mediterranean is being organized by The Matin newspaper. The Canots automobiles are to go from Algiers to Toulon. M. Charley, who has offered 50,000f. for the transatlantic autoboat run, is entering for the Mediterranean event two racers and a so-called cruiser, and M. Fournier

PRIMATE INSPECTS TENEMENTS

Archbishop Accompanied by Booker T. Washington and Jacob Riis.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, accompanied by a party, including Booker T. Washington, visited the Jacob A. Riis Neighborhood Settlement at 45 Henry Street. Mr. Riis was there by appointment, and the Archbishop had an opportunity to see the workings of every department. He was much interested in the kindergarten branch.

After the inspection Mr. Riis took the visitors through the congested districts of the lower east side. Several tenements were inspected by the Archbishop and Mr. Washington.

The Archbishop and his party also visited the Criminal Courts Building. They first called on District Attorney Jerome, who conducted them throughout the building. Then they went to Mulberry Bend Park. The Archbishop was much interested in Mr. Riis's description of the improvement that had been made there.

What Book Can This Be?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is reported that during the coming month the Civil Service Commissioner will hold an examination for the position of Tenement House Inspector. About a year ago an examination was held for the position of Plumbing Inspector and it was announced that those successful in that examination would be eligible for appointment to the Tenement House Department. Now, if that department needs men, why is it that appointments are not made from the eligible list of plumbing inspectors? The Tenement House Department needs practical men. It has a sufficient number of sociologists and linguists at present, and the proposed examination is not necessary, and is apparently only for the purpose of booming the sale of a certain book dealing with the work of that department.

MECHANIC.

Brooklyn, Sept. 28, 1904.

Judge Herrick and Albany Politics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read your issue of this day, and your comments upon Mr. Marcus T. Hun's letter, with the accompanying extract from it.

I hardly think you know how much that letter means. Mr. Hun was the counsel and moving spirit of what was known in Albany as the Committee of Thirteen; a committee of the citizens of Albany, formed for the purpose of investigating and fighting all dishonest or extravagant expenditures in city and county matters, and which has been in existence for a period covering all of Justice Herrick's official career as District Attorney, Corporation Counsel, and Supreme Court Justice.

Mr. Hun was also a member of the Committee of Fifty, and a directing spirit in that committee, to investigate frauds and crimes alleged to have been committed in the year 1893. If there is any man in the City of Albany who knows anything about any wrongs or frauds having been committed, and who was engaged in ferreting them out, Mr. Marcus T. Hun is the man.

AN ALBANY LAWYER.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 27, 1904.

Antiquity of Man.

From The London Telegraph.

The antiquity of man has long been a favorite subject of speculation. Of late years the tendency has been to drive the origin of the race further and further back. Herr Schwalbe, a German naturalist, who has recently published an essay on the subject, regards the existence of mankind in pre-Glacial times as fully established; and he is even inclined to place man in the Tertiary period. This would be "homo pliocenicus," a rather near relative of "Pithecanthropus erectus," and some of the more anthropoid of living apes. But there are missing links. In this country the principal question has been whether man was pre-Glacial, and of his being so the trustworthy evidence has been found. As the period of glaciation, when nearly the whole land was under an icecap, endured many times as long as all known human history, it becomes a crucial part of the problem, whether man was here before the glaciers or after. If before, then his story stretches far back indeed. A very small portion of the earth, and that, so far as ancient man is concerned, not the most promising, has yet been explored geologically.

Not in War.

From The Cleveland Leader.

"The carnage was fearful," read Mr. Spyem from the paper. "All about us the dead were piled in ghastly heaps, and the air was filled with the groans and shrieks of the wounded. The slaughter was—"

"Oh, I wish you wouldn't read those dreadful war stories!" interrupted Mrs. Spyem.

"This isn't a war story," said Mr. Spyem, testily.

"What is it then?"

"Why, it's only an Englishman's account of a journey on an American railroad."

The Mule That Kicked.

From The Yonkers Statesman.

"You are an hour late this morning, Sam."

"Yes, Sah, I know it, Sah."

"Well, what excuse have you?"

"I was kicked by a mule on my way here, Sah."

"That ought not to have detained you an hour, Sam."

"Well, you see, boss, it wouldn't have if he'd only have kicked me in dis direction, but he kicked me de other way!"

Electricity as a Weapon in War.

From The London Globe.

An inventor of Rome has submitted for examination to the War Office there an engine called an electric thunderer. It scatters advancing troops by means of electric discharges without killing them. The shock of battle will bear a different significance in future. And instead of beans the defeated army will get currents.

LULLABY.

Bleepy little, creepy little goblins in the gloaming,
With their airy little, fairy little faces all aglow,
Winkling little, blinking little brownies gone a-roaming,
Hear the rustling little, bustling little footfalls as they go.
Laughing little, chaffing little elves sweetly singing
In the dearest little, queerest little baby lullabies,
Creep! Creep! Creep!
Time to go to sleep!
Baby playing 'possum with his big brown eyes!

Cricket in the thicket with the oddest little clatter
Sings his rattling little, prattling little, tattling little tune;
Fleet the feet of tiny stars go patter, patter, patter,
As they scamper from the heavens at the rising of the moon.
Beaming little, gleaming little fireflies a-dreaming
To the dearest little, queerest little baby lullabies.
Creep! Creep! Creep!
Time to go to sleep!
Baby playing 'possum with his big brown eyes!

Quaking little, shaking little voices all a-quiver
In the mushy little, rushy little, weedy, reedy bogs,
Droning little, moaning little chorus by the river,
In the croaking little, joking little cadence of the frogs.
Eerie little, cheery little glowworms in the gloaming

CIGAR STAMP ORDER SUSTAINED BY SHAW

Armstrong's Ruling Modified Only in Respect to the Color.

HURRIES BACK TO CAPITAL

The Secretary of the Treasury Interrupts Campaign Speechmaking—Trust's New Scheme.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Secretary Shaw suddenly appeared in Washington to-day, having interrupted his programme of speechmaking in the West to come to Washington and render a decision in the controversy between the American Tobacco Company and the independent manufacturers over the character of the customs stamp placed on imported cigars.

His decision practically sustains Assistant Secretary Armstrong, who four weeks ago issued an order for a new green stamp to be placed on the end and bottom of the cigar box, where it would appear to be virtually a part of the internal revenue stamp. The only respect in which Mr. Armstrong's decision in the matter is reversed is that the colors of the various stamps used to denote the number of cigars in the box will be retained. New stamps are to be made which will be somewhat smaller, and they will be placed on the bottom of the box.

Secretary Shaw, discussing the matter, said this afternoon that it seemed to him that the old stamp was in principle wrong. It was large enough to be a display advertisement, and the Government ought not to be advertising goods for one class of tradespeople to the disadvantage of others. Mr. Shaw said that it seemed to him that the man who insisted on smoking an imported cigar should ask for imported cigars when he goes to buy, and if he prefers any special name or brand he should ask for that, and if he wants to be sure that he is getting imported goods he can turn up the box and see the stamp on the bottom.

Secretary Shaw reached his desk at 1 o'clock this afternoon and spent the afternoon in going over the arguments presented by the Tobacco Trust and the independent manufacturers, and at 3 o'clock gave out his decision with the following statement:

"The testimony establishes the fact that the present stamp is used as a trade mark by the cigar importers; that this trade mark is valuable to them, and confers an advantage upon them as against the manufacturers of cigars in the United States, and that cigars are, in effect, the only commodity imported into the United States that receives the benefit of such a trade mark.

"In view of the fact that this Government stamp, in its present form, undoubtedly gives a pecuniary advantage to those using it, it seemed that the order already issued by the department is, in its essence, proper. The Government's business is to collect the revenue and to provide so far as possible against fraud, but it is not the Government's business to furnish a guarantee in the form of a trade mark for the benefit of the goods. This would be left to the tobacco business exactly as it is in all other businesses.

"The order made by Mr. Armstrong will stand, so far as it relates to reducing the size of the stamp and to attaching it in a less conspicuous place on the box. Wherein it requires the stamp to be of the same color as the internal revenue stamp, it is reversed, and the stamp will be placed on the bottom of the box instead of the top, but at the end where it now appears, opposite the internal revenue stamp.

"The result of the decision will protect the domestic manufacturer from a customs stamp available as an advertisement, and it protects the importer also by giving him a stamp of a distinctive color, which can be seen by the purchaser if he cares to make examination."

The Secretary has given orders that new plates be prepared for printing the stamps and placing them upon the boxes of imported cigars, in accordance with the decision reached.

It is said here that the American Tobacco Company will ask the Cuban Government to authorize the use of an export inspection stamp, which shall be of such a size and color that it will subserve the purpose of a Government advertisement of the imported goods. There would probably be little difficulty about such an arrangement as this. This Government would make no objection to it, as the law already requires that all imported goods be stamped so as to show from what country they were exported.

THE DENVER STANDS TEST.

Favorable Report on New Cruiser—The Cruiser Des Moines Accepted.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The members of the Naval Board of Inspection, which conducted the official trial of the protected cruiser Denver, off the Virginia capes yesterday, returned to this city to-day and reported to the Navy Department that with the exception of a few minor defects the ship is in excellent condition and meets all requirements.

The Navy Department has accepted the protected cruiser Des Moines, now attached to the European Squadron. This vessel was built at Quincy, Mass., and fell a little short of meeting the contract requirements in the matter of speed.

SPEYERS GET VERA CRUZ BONDS.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Baring, Magoun & Co. File Exceptions.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 29.—Judge Dobler heard to-day the various exceptions to the sale of the $6,000,000 bonds of the Vera Cruz and Pacific Railroad Company to Speyer & Co. of New York by Receiver Allen McLane of the Maryland Trust Company of this city. Two of the five exceptions to the ratification of the same were filed as follows:

Kuhn, Loeb & Co., New York, exception to sale of bonds to Speyer & Co. for 85½, and offering 90 per cent. of the face value of the $6,000,000 of bonds for them.

Baring, Magoun & Co., New York, exceptions to sale and offering 90.26 for bonds.

Judge Dobler, after hearing arguments, decided to award and ratify the sale to Speyer & Co. at an increased bid of 91.50, or $5,493,600 with accrued interest, which is $180,000 more than their original bid.

CHARLES G. HAY ILL.

Brother of Secretary of State Stricken While on Hunting Trip.

BOSTON, Sept. 29.—Charles G. Hay, brother of Secretary of State John Hay, is seriously, though not critically, ill at a private hospital in the Back Bay, this city.

Mr. Hay, accompanied by his wife, came here from Illinois to attend the Episcopal convention. He was taken sick while on a hunting trip near Fitchburg, being later removed to a hospital here.

MISS GOULD BUYS LYNDHURST.

Court Allows Her to Purchase Her Father's Irvington Home.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 29.—William G. Davis, a referee appointed by the Supreme Court, to-day filed his report in the matter of the friendly suit brought by Miss Helen Miller Gould against her brothers, George J. and Howard Gould, as executors of the last will and testament of her father, Jay Gould. The suit was instituted to enable Miss Gould to purchase

ALL FOR A BURNED HAT.

Houston, Mulberry, and Mott Streets Have Excitement.

At 6 o'clock last night a man poked his head out of a top floor window of the three-story and basement building at 45 East Houston Street and shouted "Fire!"

Policeman George Hollaway, who was standing on the corner of Mulberry and Houston Streets, glanced at the house and saw a sheet of flame shoot from a window. He ran to the alarm box on the corner. A few minutes later four fire engine companies came rattling up, and one of them had upset a United States Express wagon crossing the Bowery on its way.

About the same time an Italian woman who was frying meat on her kitchen stove in the top of the tall Mulberry Street tenement in the rear of 45 Houston Street became so excited that she dropped a pan of grease on a black cat. The cat jumped through the front window pane and fell on the head of a baby playing on a fire escape balcony below. The screams of the baby brought a score of inhabitantts out on the fire escape ladders, and they found themselves climbing into the street before they knew just what had happened.

In the meantime thousands of young women on their way home from the east side shops swarmed into Houston Street, completely blocking that thoroughfare and choking the car service there and on the Bowery.

Around on Mott Street a crowd of Italians had gathered for the purpose of seeing Rocco Marasco, the undertaker, start away on his vacation. In Marasco's saloon, across the road from his undertaking establishment, there was also a crowd, but the fire engines, cars, and shop girls choked up Mott Street so that Marasco's vacation coach and the coaches in which his friends had gathered to escort him to the Grand Central Station were unable to move an inch, although he was due to catch his train at 6:30 o'clock.

Frank, the Italian bootblack at the Bowery and Houston Street, became so excited when the fire engines came that he upset a baby carriage in an effort to get into the middle of the road. The baby carriage fell on a little black dog and the dog went howling up Mott Street, scattering folks who believed him to have the rabies. At Mott Street a policeman kicked the dog into a sewer.

Many more things happened at the fire, but when order was restored the sixty policemen and Central Office detectives who had run from Police Headquarters went back and reported that the main damage done was the burning of a fur cap in a pasteboard box up in Bingham & Freedman's fur factory. But as Undertaker Marasco had missed the train that was to take him out of town, Mott Street proceeded to celebrate the postponement of an undertaker's vacation, despite the upset express wagon, the cat that the fat burned, the baby that the cat scratched, the shop girls that excited Frank, the bootblack, the baby he upset, the dog the baby scared, and the policeman that kicked the dog into a sewer.

WAGNER SPEAKS AT LUNCHEON.

Entertained at Aldine Club—To be Dr. Abbott's Guest To-day.

The Rev. Charles Wagner, the Paris evangelist, author of "The Simple Life," arrived here from Philadelphia yesterday and attended a luncheon given in his honor by the editors of The Outlook in a private dining room of the Aldine Club, at 111 Fifth Avenue.

At the end of the luncheon M. Wagner made an informal speech on his favorite subject, "Simplicity." Later he left for Cornwall-on-the-Hudson, where he is the guest of the Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott.

MRS. POTTER'S PLAY POOR.

London Season Under Actress's Own Management Opens Badly.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Mrs. Brown Potter opened her season under her own management at the Savoy Theatre to-night in a luckless manner with a four-act romantic play, "The Golden Light," by George Daring, a pen name which is understood to be that of her sister.

The play was so poor that after many expressions of ridicule from the audience the curtain finally descended amid chilling silence.

Mrs. Potter, who wore some charming costumes, was ably assisted in the chief parts by W. D. Abingdon and Gilbert Hare.

MISS ELLIOTT GOES TO DALY'S.

But Last Night's Box Was at the Empire Instead.

Miss Maxine Elliott drove up to Daly's Theatre last night with a party of guests. They all alighted and went into the lobby. Miss Elliott went up to the box office window.

"Please give me the box seats I had reserved for to-night," she said to the man inside. "I sent down the money and had a box saved for me."

The man at the window smiled sorrowfully, as only a man in a box office can smile.

"It was for to-morrow night you had the box reserved, Miss Elliott," he said. "All the boxes are occupied to-night."

"I'm sure you're wrong," the star replied, "for I have a box at the Empire for to-morrow night. So I must have gotten the box here for to-night."

Two or three officials of Daly's Theatre put their heads together to find out what was the matter. Then one of them telephoned up to the Empire and asked if Miss Elliott had a box there to-morrow, Friday, night.

"No," said the man at the Empire, "she has one here for to-night, but she hasn't come after it yet."

They told the actress this at Daly's, but it didn't seem to give her any comfort. She said the people with her had already seen the show at the Empire, and that she couldn't carry them there again. There was no room for them at Daly's.

And the party drove off into the night.

NOTES OF THE THEATRES.

CONGO REFORM PLEA ON WAY TO THE PRESIDENT

He May Be Asked to Lead in Checking King Leopold.

MOREL HERE WITH MEMORIAL

Says Free State People to be in Condition of Slavery—Conference of Powers Suggested.

President Roosevelt may be asked to take the initiative in a concerted movement to bring about a reform of King Leopold's rule in the Congo Free State, the abuses of which were the subject of debate in a recent session of Congress, and twice met condemnation in the British House of Commons.

E. D. Morel, Honorary Secretary of the Congo Reform Association, an international body whose name indicates its purpose, arrived on the White Star Line steamship Baltic yesterday as the bearer of a memorial from his organization to the President. He left for Washington last night and will call on Assistant Secretary of State Loomis to-day, when arrangements will be made for an audience with the President.

The memorial will not be made public until after the President has received it. Its trend, however, was outlined by Mr. Morel last night.

"The memorial," said Mr. Morel, "largely follows the lines of the one presented by our society to the British Government, and which has been up for discussion on two different occasions in the House of Commons. We would be happy to see your country take the lead in this movement. Your President in this matter would be in a position to exert a greater influence than any ruler in the world. You have no land interests in Africa. America could not well be suspected of having any ambitions in that direction, and President Roosevelt, for that reason, could do more than any potentate in Europe, because it would be evident that anything he did would spring from altogether altruistic motives.

"I wish to say emphatically that the British Government has nothing to do with this movement. The British Government as a matter of fact held aloof as long as possible, and only yielded to a public pressure it no longer could withstand in circulating a note on the subject to the powers last June. It is a purely humanitarian movement, prompted by the reports of outrages perpetrated on the natives in the Congo State which have reached England from time to time ever since 1891, when King Leopold inaugurated his new policy of personal ownership of the Congo Free State, its soil, and everything the soil produced, subjected the inhabitants to a system of slavery and poured a bigger army into the territory than the combined forces of Great Britain, Germany, and France in West Africa.

"The historical basis for our appeal to this Government lies in the fact that this country was the first to recognize the flag of the International Association for the Exploration and Civilization of Africa under the auspices of which the Congo Free State was founded in 1884 as the flag of a friendly power. In order to gain the recognition of this country, King Leopold made specific pledges to protect the right of the natives and not to do anything to suppress commerce. All these pledges he has since violated. The natives have been reduced to a form of abject slavery, and the most horrible cruelties are perpetrated if they fail to bring the prescribed tribute of rubber and foodstuffs from which the King and his friends make a fortune every year."

Mr. Morel said that various plans of reform had been suggested. One was an appeal to The Hague tribunal, which he did not appear to approve. He seemed to think the calling of a new conference of the powers and the appointment of an international tribunal to frame and see carried out a feasible plan of reform for the equatorial State would be the more effective way.

FATHER FLYNN A MONSIGNOR.

Gregorian Music Sung at Investiture Service in Morristown.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Sept. 29.—In the Church of the Assumption this morning the Very Rev. Joseph M. Flynn, prelate of the household of Pope Pius X., was invested with the title of Monsignor by Bishop O'Connor of Newark. The proper of the mass was sung in chant according to Solesmen's method for the first time in this diocese. This is the chant selected by Pius X. to be sung hereafter in the Catholic Church when the liturgy demands singing.

The organist of this church, John J. O'Connor, has recently returned from the Isle of Wight, where for three months he was at the Benedictine Monastery, where the original chant is given at both the mass and vesper service each day. There he was instructed in the method of singing and teaching the chant. Mr. O'Connor then instructed the boy choir of sixteen voices, which he has associated with the men's choir, and it was this body of singers that rendered the Gregorian music to-day.

CANADIAN ELECTIONS NOV. 3.

Parliament Dissolved—Outlook Favorable for Return of Liberals.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 29.—The Dominion Parliament has been dissolved and the general election will take place on Nov. 3. The dissolution was decided upon this afternoon at a meeting of the Cabinet, and the Premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, called on Lord Minto, the Governor General, with the order this evening.

The outlook looks favorable for the return of the Liberal Government with a substantial majority. The principal issue will be the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific, the proposed transcontinental railway. The Dundonald affair has been dead since the General's return to England. Leader Borden of the Conservatives, while declaring for higher protection for Canadian manufacturers, refers occasionally to the Chamberlain proposition. Apparently, the only development that imperialism can have in Canada is along the lines laid down by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who probably is able to carry with him all classes and creeds.

Sir Richard Cartwright, long known as the most effective Liberal debater in the Commons, will not be a candidate for the House, as this year he will be appointed to the Senate.

UNION UNIVERSITY CELEBRATES.

Observes 100th Anniversary of President Nott's Inauguration.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Union University to-day celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of the Rev. Dr. Eliphalet Nott's inauguration as President. The occasion was marked by the unveiling of a memorial tablet in Nott Memorial Library, the completion of which was made possible through the generosity of Andrew Carnegie.

Alumni and friends of the institution gathered from all parts of the country.

WEDDINGS OF A DAY.

ELLIS—GAGE.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Miss Augusta Willoughby Gage, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Gage, was married this evening to William Howell Ellis of Philadelphia. The ceremony was performed by Bishop William D. Walker of Buffalo at the Bethesda Episcopal Church, which was decorated for the occasion with American Beauty roses.

Mrs. James Lee Scott of Saratoga Springs was matron of honor, and George Willing, Jr., of Philadelphia, was best man.

The bridesmaids were Miss McNair of Saratoga Springs, Miss Carr of Orange, N. J.; Mlle. Blanche Fredin of Cincinnati, Ohio; Miss Helen Clark of New York, Miss Hamilton of Saratoga Springs, and Miss Miller of New York. The ushers included William M. Gage of Saratoga Springs, a brother of the bride; Edward Shipman Willing second, William Norris, Harry S. Grove, and Poyntell Staley, all of Philadelphia, Penn., and Rol Cooper Megrue of New York.

DUELL—HALLIWELL.

The wedding of Holland Sackett Duell to Miss Mabel Halliwell took place at the Collegiate Church last evening, the Rev. Dr. Donald Mackay officiating.

Mr. Duell is a former resident of Syracuse and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Duell. He was graduated at Yale in the class of 1902 and from the New York Law School of 1904. Miss Halliwell is the daughter of Charles E. Halliwell, Vice President and General Manager of the Continental Tobacco Company, formerly a resident of St. Louis Mo.

Owing to the very serious illness of Mr. Halliwell's mother the invitations to the wedding and reception were recalled and only the relatives and a few intimate friends were present.

ULLMANN—STERN.

Special to The New York Times.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 29.—The wedding of Miss Lillian C. Ullmann, only daughter of Samuel Ullmann of New York City, to I. Harold Stern of New York, took place at noon to-day at Beech Corners, the country seat of the bride's father. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Dr. Shurman of New York. Miss Ullmann was attended by Miss Helen Werner as maid of honor, and Philip Stern as the best man. The ushers were Joseph Ullmann, Jr., and Charles S. Ullmann, Jr., of Tarrytown, and Arthur Stern, Moe Stern, Albert Colman, Philip Rose, Dr. A. R. Stern, and William Zobel of New York. Two hundred guests were present, including Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ullmann, who came from Leipsig, Germany. Mr. and Mrs. Stern will go to Europe on their honeymoon.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement is announced of Miss Ida H. Holmes of Macon Street, Brooklyn, to Charles A. Canda of Chrome, N. J. Miss Holmes is the daughter of Charles B.

MESSAGE OF SYMPATHY TO CHURCH IN FRANCE

Republic Declared to be Controlled by an Infidel Faction.

THE POPE'S STAND PRAISED

Eucharistic Congress Condemns the Exile Prescribed for Religious Orders and Communities.

St. Patrick's Cathedral contained more than 1,000 zealous prelates and priests of the Roman Catholic Church yesterday when Apostolic Delegate Falconio celebrated solemn pontifical mass, prefatory to the closing day's work of the third General Eucharistic Congress, in the Cathedral College Hall. Pomp and splendor marked the scene about the altar. Archbishops occupied thrones, the Bishops sat together in rows, while the Monsignori, in robes of varied hues, lined the sanctuary walls. Bishop Stang of Fall River preached the sermon on "The Eucharistic Apostolate," declaring that all other Churches but that of Rome were "but human fabrications."

Archbishop Falconio gave the Papal benediction at the close, and at the congress was greeted with applause as he was escorted to the place of honor. Father H. J. Heuser of Philadelphia read a paper on "The Eucharistic Liturgy," in the course of which he expressed regret that there should be mixed marriages.

On the subject of the Church troubles in France, the congress passed these resolutions by a unanimous vote:

"First—We tender to our Holy Father, Pope Pius X., our reverential recognition and profound admiration of his Apostolic stamp in favor of true human liberty and essential human rights as against the behests and threats of an infidel faction that has for the time being, unfortunately, possessed itself of the Government of a once great Catholic nation and a sister republic.

"Second—We, the children of the Church and loyal ministers and dispensers of her mysteries, sympathize deeply with our much-tried brethren across the waters in the land whose glorious record for so long has been 'Gesta Dei per Francos,' and we assure her Bishops, priests, and people that we are heart and soul with them in their battle for right, truth, and religion.

"Third—We condemn with all the emphasis which not only the dictates of the natural law, but the instincts moreover of Catholic faith itself, put upon the action of a clique inspired by the secret societies in exiling and persecuting the religious orders and communities of men and women, whose only crime was they had made a sacrifice of their whole selves, their belongings, their faculties, and their very lives to interests of charity, of education, and of the common weal of their native land. May the Divine Helmsman, whom we to-day in deepest adoration hail as our Eucharistic King, rise up again and say as he once said to the storms and the waves, 'Peace, be still.'"

Bishop Maes, the presiding officer, announced that the next congress would be held in South Bend, Ind., in 1906, and the following in Pittsburg in 1907. Services were held at the cathedral in the evening.

BISHOP'S WIFE ARRIVES ILL.

Mrs. William Boyd Carpenter Stricken with Gastritis on the Baltic.

Among the passengers arriving on the Baltic yesterday were the Right Rev. William Boyd Carpenter, Bishop of Ripon, and his wife, Mrs. Carpenter. Mrs. Carpenter was taken seriously ill two days from port with acute gastritis.

It happened that one of the Governors of the New York Hospital was aboard and learned of her serious illness. The hospital authorities were notified, and an ambulance was awaiting the ship as she warped into her dock. It was stated at the hospital yesterday evening that Mrs. Carpenter would probably recover.

IN THE SHOPS.

Here is something quite new in a dinner favor. It is kümmelbrodchen, a small pointed German roll of regular table size, and so natural in appearance that the dinner guests break it without a thought. But inside the roll there is not the usual spongy white contents, but a pretty paper cap. These rolls cost 5 cents apiece, and add much to the gayety of diners.

***

Something else new is a doughnut, one of the round raised varieties, which looks the identical thing which the baker shops make. They have the brown outside of a fried cake, and the consistency of the doughnut, but there is a surprise when they are opened, for each one is filled with confetti. These also cost 5 cents each.

***

A candlestick of red holding a white candle, with a box of safety matches lying upon the saucer, is realistic, and costs 20 cents. The top of the candle comes off to show a small receptacle for bonbons, and there is an extra depth to the bottom of the candlestick, another box also for the bonbons.

***

Conveniences in souvenirs for the smoker are to be found in all sorts and kinds of shapes in these favors, as in the genuine article. Another article for the smoker is a tray holding a candle, cigarette, and matches. This also costs 20 cents.

***

A bundle of a dozen cigars is comparatively new as a bonbon box. They have been used as favors, but before did not open. They are only 25 cents for the full dozen, but no man will object to the quality of this kind of a cigar.

***

If the man is not a smoker, a dozen lead pencils with a French label on each bearing the words "Crayon Fin," will be useful. There are a dozen pencils in the bunch; they cost 15 cents, and this is also a bonbon box.

***

Another article for the smoker is a holder for a safety match box. This is red, the saucer and the match box holder in the centre, the latter with a figure in white, a youth smoking, on the outside. In the saucer a cigarette is lying. There are the ends of matches, real little wooden sticks to be seen at the top of the match box. Another bonbon box, of course, and 25 cents.

***

Cheroots in a small cedar box costs 40 cents, and the effect is very natural.

***

A champagne bottle is of good size for one of these trinkets, some five or six inches, and costs 10 cents. It will hold a generous amount of sweets.

***

On the top of a small thin package of chocolate is standing a tiny glass stein, cards lying face up beside it, and there are four different small pipes near. All this for 15 cents.

***

A champagne cooler in the way of a bonbon box and small favor is not new, but is always more or less in demand. One of these will cost only 10 cents.

***

There is another style a little smaller, but more elaborate, the small silver pail in which the bottle rests being filled with what appears to be ice. This costs 15 cents.

***

Boxes of generous size for ice cups cost 50 cents each, and are in the shape of hearts, clubs, and spades.

TALK OF THE DAY.

They were telling it around the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday afternoon apropos of Gov. Odell's assertion that New York would give Higgins from 20,000 to 25,000 majority in the coming Gubernatorial contest, and crediting it to Vice Chairman De Lancey Nicoll of the National Democratic Committee.

"Gov. Odell's claim," so ran the remarks credited to Mr. Nicoll, "reminds me of the story of the man who, being very seriously ill, called in his attorney and made his will. A few days later the attorney brought the document in for the signature of his client. The will was read to him, and the necessity for all the legal verbiage explained carefully.

"'You are sure that the will is as tight as it can possibly be made, and that none of my relatives can succeed in breaking it and sending the money where I don't want it to go?'

"'I certainly am. It could not be fixed stronger.'

"The sick man signed the document, as did the witnesses, and all were dismissed from the room except the attorney.

"'Now that we are alone,' said the dying man, 'I want to ask you something as man to man; not professionally, mind you. Tell me, honestly and squarely, who do you think stands the best chance of getting my property? I'd really like to know before I die!'

"'I'd like to get the Governor in some dark corner, alone and on his honor, and ask him, 'On the level, Governor, what do you think Herrick's plurality will be?' His answer might make mighty interesting reading."

***

"Did it ever strike you how completely the meerschaum has vanished?" asked the veteran tobacco buyer in the smoking room at the Imperial yesterday. "Possibly not, but to men in my business it is very noticeable, for the meerschaum pipe and the cigar holder of the same material were a generation ago, and had been for generations before that, the pets of men who smoked. It was a very poor man indeed who did not own one or both, and many a man prized his collection of meerschaums above all things else among his effects. Now the brier pipe is everywhere, east of the Mississippi at least, and the cigar holder in any form is a rarity. The handsomely carved meerschaum pipe is now as much of a curiosity as would be one of the long-stemmed china-bowled pipes of the old-time Germans that I used to see hundreds of in my boyhood days."

***

His name might have meant a great deal in Pottstown, Penn., from which place he said he hailed, but here in New York it would probably mean nothing to anybody. So he is nameless, but he was critical. "New Yorkers have a habit of laughing at people who come from outside its limits and calling us 'rubber-necks' and gawks, and all that sort of thing, but by gravy! even in my town it wouldn't be possible to get a crowd to stand and blockade the sidewalk just to see a man strop a razor. Yet that was what happened down town this morning right in the heart of your business district, and people were actually pushing and hauling to get at a show window for a sight of so simple a thing as that. And less than a half hour ago a crowd of a hundred or so, including a lot of well-dressed people, stood on Fifth Avenue, with eyes and mouth wide open, watching a fake countryman and countrywoman drive a knee-sprung horse with the spring-halt hitched to a broken-down wagon by a harness made mostly of bedcords that had seen their best day, the wagon piled high with cabbages, and the whole arranged to advertise a show. Why, it would take a balloon ascension, at least, to create such a sensation in Pottstown as those two simple things created here in one day. New Yorkers are the biggest and simplest rubber-neckers in the country, in my opinion, and I don't care who knows it."

***

Apropos of this subject of the curiosity of New Yorkers over the unusual. Not more than an hour after the Pottstown man had relieved his mind on the subject of "rubber necks," and while the hustle of the down-town streets was at its liveliest, a trio of the Armenian delegates to this country walked through the district in Indian file. Hurrying messengers, grave business men who an instant before had been rushing on as if every second meant dollars to them, store keepers and customers alike, and that general crowd of the busiest section of the town halted as if a circus parade was passing, while street gamins followed the Armenians at a dog trot, forgetting for the instant that they had bundles of "Wuxtrys" to dispose of. And it was all because a clerically garbed gentleman, with a very dark complexion and a very shiny "topper," was guiding two of the delegates through the business section to show them the sights, wholly unconscious of the fact that he was making his guests one of the sights of the town instead. His companion followers wore the long flowing robes of their country, of chocolate brown, richly embroidered about the yoke across the shoulders and, down the seams with the bright colors of the so-called Persian embroidery that the women have affected of late. One of the swarthy sightseers wore the sandals of his country, above which his bare bronzed legs showed. But his companion made the sight most incongruous, for his feet were thoroughly Americanized, shod in new laced shoes of the brightest tan color! And on his head he wore the brilliantly colored turban picturesquely wound about raven-black hair.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Thomas Sinnott.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Thomas Sinnott, sixty-one years old, one of the best-known residents of Westchester County, is dead at his home, 242 South Second Avenue, Mount Vernon. Mr. Sinnott, who had been a resident of Mount Vernon for eighteen years, was in the cloak business in New York City. Three sons and one daughter survive him. The funeral will be held Saturday morning at the Church of the Sacred Heart.

Heat Wave Strikes Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 29.—A heat wave struck this city to-day, sending the thermometer up from 69 degrees at midnight to 87 at 4 o'clock this afternoon. A heavy rainstorm at 8 o'clock brought relief.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—The disturbance over the North has moved rapidly eastward to the St. Lawrence Valley with slightly increased intensity, causing general showers from the lake region eastward with some high winds. Temperatures continue high from the Mississippi Valley eastward, ranging from 5 to 22 degrees above the seasonal average. On the New England coast the winds will be brisk to high southwest to west; on the Middle Atlantic Coast, fresh to brisk southwest to northwest, probably high on extreme north portion. There will be showers to-morrow in New England and the Middle Atlantic States.

Steamships departing to-morrow for European ports will have brisk to high southwest to west winds with rain to the Grand Banks. Storm warnings are displayed on the Atlantic Coast from Sandy Hook to Eastport.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York—Showers and cooler to-day, brisk to high west to northwest winds; Saturday fair.

New Jersey—Showers and cooler to-day, brisk southwest to northwest winds, possibly high over north portion; Saturday fair.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Showers and cooler to-day; Saturday fair, fresh to brisk west to northwest winds.

New England—Showers to-day, brisk to high southwest to northwest winds; Saturday fair, cooler in east portion.

DEATH ON THE BALTIC.

G. Ellison of Bradford, England, Stricken on Voyage—2,779 Passengers.

Without an inch of passenger space to spare, the great White Star liner Baltic, biggest ship afloat, got in yesterday afternoon. Four hundred and twelve persons came over as saloon and 240 as second-cabin passengers, while in the steerage there were housed 2,227. The great ship made a splendid voyage, but the pleasure of the passengers was marred by the death on Wednesday of G. Ellison of Bradford, England.

Mr. Ellison was coming to America with his wife, his intention being to enter business in Philadelphia. Mr. Ellison was apparently in the very best of health. On Wednesday shortly after breakfast, while on his way to the upper deck, he suddenly staggered and fell. He died in a few minutes. Mr. Ellison left three children, who were to have followed him to this country in the near future. Mrs. Ellison brought the body to New York, and will take it back to England for burial.

NEW YORKS BEATEN AGAIN BY CHICAGO

Weak Efforts of New Champions Disappointing to Small Crowd.

AMERICANS IN THE LEAD

Greater New Yorks Shut Out Detroit, While Boston Lost Another Game to Cleveland.

With the team on the field as arranged yesterday, and with the same kind of efforts, the New York National League players cannot expect to make much further improvement on their record in the eight remaining games to be decided. Yesterday there were probably fewer people than at any other game this season at the Polo Grounds, and the playing of McGraw's men was listless and careless. Mathewson evidently did not exert himself to any great extent, and the result was the Chicagos won very handily by seven to three. Brooklyn, as usual, was beaten, but the best Cincinnati could do with Philadelphia was to quit even in a double-header.

In the American League the Greater New Yorks turned the tables on the Detroits and defeated them five to nothing, thereby regaining the lead for the championship. Boston was beaten for the thirteenth time by Cleveland, placing the champions four points behind Griffith's men. Summary follows:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

New Yorks Play Another Indifferent Game and Are Beaten.

The New Yorks repeated their weak efforts of the two previous days yesterday, and as a result were beaten seven to three. They were careless in their fielding, ran bases indifferently, and Mathewson seemed to simply toss the ball to the batsmen. In the seventh inning Mathewson hit a ball to Tinker, who threw Bowerman out at second, and Evers easily caught Mathewson at first, who loped toward the base with the bat in his hand.

All interest was lost in the contest by the "rooters" after the second inning, when five unearned runs were scored by the Chicagos. Barry started off by reaching first on a wild throw of Dunn. Tinker forced him out at second, however, on a hit to Devlin. McChesney batted to Dunn, but Tinker beat Dunn's throw to second. Evers's ball went into Devlin's territory, and the bases were filled. Kling could not bat outside the infield, and Evers should have been put out at second, but Marshall dropped Dunn's throw. In the meantime Tinker scored. After Wicker had struck out Shulte, Casey, and Chance had no trouble in batting Mathewson, and with a single and two doubles five additional runs were scored. The Chicagos made but one more run—in the fourth inning. Wicker hit safely, was advanced to second on Shulte's out, reached third on Casey's bunt, and on Chance's out, from Marshall to Bowerman, Wicker scored. In the ninth inning, after Chance had struck out, Barry singled, Tinker was caught by Mertes, and McChesney batted the ball to left field for two bases. Evers, however, put the side out on a fly to Dunn.

A majority of the New York's fourteen hit off Wicker were by bunting, but in the eighth inning, after Tinker had stopped Marshall's hard hit ball, he made a poor throw to first, and that error was responsible for the New York's three runs. Dunn hit for two bases to left field, reached third on Devlin's out, and Evers's error enabled him to score. Bowerman hit safely in the direction of second base, and then Mathewson's long hit in left field netted him three bases, as well as scoring Marshall and Bowerman. The score:

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

Greater New Yorks Bat Out a Victory at Detroit by 5 to 0.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 29.—The Greater New Yorks fairly redeemed themselves today for the shut-out they sustained yesterday at the hands of the home players, and in a game replete with brilliant fielding Griffith's men, who are now in the lead again for the American League championship, scored five runs to nothing for Detroits. Powell and Raymond were the opposing pitchers, and while the New Yorker was in splendid form, only five single hits being made off him, Raymond was batted freely in three innings and then gave way to Kitson. No headway could be made against the newcomer, and the visitors had to be content with the runs they scored in the first and third innings. Fultz's playing was a conspicuous feature of the contest, the veteran batting strong and fielding his position at centre field perfectly. McManus, the New Yorks' new catcher from the Montreal Club, did not receive many opportunities to distinguish himself, but he will prove a valuable addition to the team. Owing to the injury to Keeler's forefinger, which was split by a pitched ball, his place at right field was filled by Pitcher Orth, who did surprisingly well.

The New Yorks started off in the first inning with three runs. Conroy reached first on called balls, and got second on Fultz's bunt. Conroy stole third, and on Elberfeld's bunt scored. Williams made a neat sacrifice, and on Anderson's base hit Fultz crossed the plate. Anderson was the third to score on Ganzel's safe hit. In the third inning Fultz's double, Elberfeld's single, Williams's sacrifice, and Anderson's base hit resulted in two more runs, which were the last the New Yorks were enabled to secure. Thoney, who has been playing with the Montreal Club, will join the New Yorks to-morrow. Score:

CLEVELAND, 3; BOSTON, 1.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 29.—Cleveland made it three straight from Boston to-day, placing the champions in second position. Bernard outpitched Young. Cleveland made two runs in the first inning on Flick's home run, Lajoie's double, and Stovall's single, and one in the eighth on singles by Bradley and Lajoie, and Flick's sacrifice. Two hits, an error, and an out gave Boston its only run. Score:

ST. LOUIS AND QUAKERS EVEN.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29.—By winning a game of to-day's double-header, Philadelphia captured the season's series with St. Louis by 11 games to 10. Murphy won the first contest for Philadelphia by knocking the ball into the left field bleachers for a home run in the seventh inning. Glade proved invincible for St. Louis in the second game, and the locals won easily. Scores:

CHICAGO, 3; WASHINGTON, 0.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—To-day's game was another hard fought pitchers' contest. A base on balls, an out, and a single scored one run in the third inning for Chicago, and an error, a double, and Tannehill's three-bagger put two more over the plate in the eighth. Davis carried off both batting and fielding honors. Score:

Polo Grounds Employes' Benefit.

The employes of the Polo Grounds are making big preparations for Friday, Oct. 7, when the famous New York team of 1889, winner of the National League championship, will play the present New York team for their benefit. All of McGraw's men have tendered their services to the employes, while a number of letters have been received from the veterans promising to appear. "Buck" Ewing says he will try hard to come on from Cincinnati and play, "Tim" Keefe will pitch, "Jim" O'Rourke is enthusiastic over the scheme, Roger Connor says he can be counted on, and others who have been written are expected to reply favorably. An effort will be made to get John Ward to play his old position at short stop.

St. Paul Club Won Championship.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—At a special meeting here to-day of the Directors of the American Baseball Association, the pennant for 1904 was officially awarded to the St. Paul Club. President Grillo, who presided at the meeting, said that the season was the most prosperous in the history of the association. The annual meeting of the association will be held at Chicago Dec. 28.

ON THE TENNIS COURTS.

Dobson Wins Fast and Spirited Match in Kings County Tourney.

Two sets of fast and spirited tennis resulted in F. S. Dobson defeating L. Dornbush yesterday in the Autumn tennis tournament on the courts of the Kings County Tennis Club, at Kingston Avenue and Bergen Street, Brooklyn. The match was in the third class of the meeting and was well played from start to finish. Dobson was as steady as an Englishman. He missed few of his places, and his drives had plenty of length and speed. Dornbush, on the other hand, was all dash and spurt. His shots were brought off with dazzling racquet play, but accuracy was not his strong point, and he lost to Dobson at 6—4, 6—1. The tournament will be continued to-day, and it has been arranged by the committee to have several of the most interesting competitions of the round robin matches to-morrow.

Players in the men's championship singles have gained the final round of the tournament on the courts of the Nassau Country Club, at Glen Cove, L. I. The men who will meet for the championship title and the cup are Goodell and J. D. Busch. Goodell came up to the final after winning two hard matches. He defeated George D. Pratt in a love game, at 6—0, 6—0. Then in the semi-final, Goodell defeated W. C. Kimball two sets to one by the score of 4—6, 6—4, 6—3. It is expected that the final will be played on Saturday.

SQUADRON A WINS POLO CUPS.

Rumson Shows Weak Team Play in Van Cortlandt Tournament.

Squadron A defeated the Rumson polo team yesterday by the decisive score of 12¼ goals to 6 in the final match for the Squadron A polo cups. The game was played on the large field at Van Cortlandt Park, and despite the wet weather there was a large attendance, the grand stand being well filled on the west side of the field, while a dozen automobiles and coaches were lined up along the east side. H. L. Herbert, Chairman of the Polo Association, was referee, and while his sympathies were with the Rumson team, as he was one of the founders of that club, he was forced to see his club members outplayed at almost every point of the game. The Rumson team had to allow the winners six goals by handicap allowance. Notwithstanding the fact that the Rumson men were rated at a total of 12 goals, while the Squadron four only formed an aggregate of 6, the latter outplayed the visitors on even terms.

Rumson did the best work of the two teams in the first period, getting two goals to one for the Squadron. For the remainder of the game the Rumson men fell off badly, being unable to carry the ball, and their hitting lacked accuracy and power. Douglas, for the Squadron, played a splendid game. Twice in the second period he carried the ball, unaided, the entire length of the field, and, although the whole Rumson team rode after him at their topmost speed, Douglas, who was admirably mounted, always kept well in the lead, and carried the ball safely between the posts. In the third period the Squadron completely outplayed the New Jersey polo men, scoring three goals to one for Rumson. J. H. Hunt made a splendid run in this period. Leavitt Hunt was toppled from his pony in the first period, but was uninjured. The line-up and score:

Price of Milk Advanced.

It was announced yesterday by the Consolidated Milk Exchange that the price of milk had been advanced to 2¾ cents a quart in the twenty-six-cent freight-rate zone. The price has been 2½ cents. This makes the price of a forty-quart can, delivered in New York, $1.41. Prices of butter and cheese have also been advancing.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Unmixed Flashlight Powder Admitted Free of Duty.

In a decision written by General Appraiser Eugene G. Hay, the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday sustained a protest by the Farbenfabriken of Elberfeld Company of New York against the classification as a non-enumerated manufactured article at 20 per cent. of flashlight powders put up in metal boxes. The boxes were divided by a slide, on one side of which was powdered magnesium and on the other manganese. Each of these powders imported separately is free of duty, and Mr. Hay decided that as they had not been mixed they were entitled to free entry in this form.

Protests overruled yesterday were by Griggs, Cooper & Co., St. Paul; A. Stein & Co., H. Kohnstamm & Co., Wakem & McLaughlin, and G. W. Sheldon & Co., (2,) Chicago; Wilfred Schade & Co., Newport News, Va.; Charles H. Wyman & Co., St. Louis; Moses Norris, Baltimore, and Magnus & Lauer, Guiterman Brothers, B. Vandergrift & Co., Emil Levi, J. H. Fichtan & Co., (2,) Park & Tilford, Austin Nichols & Co., Charles & Co., Seeman Brothers, E. C. Hazard & Co., Meyer & Lange, G. M. L. Sacks, Rosenthal & Grotta, H. Chaurant & Co., and Veit, Son & Co., New York. Protests sustained were by Henry Ashworth, Fall River; George S. Bush & Co., Port Townsend, Washington, and Emil Levi, Stern Brothers, and W. J. Bush & Co., New York.

Personal property of foreign corporations doing business in New York is taxable when kept within New York.

By the laws of New York both lineal and collateral inheritance taxes are imposed, not only on the estates of residents, but also on the personal estate of non-residents found in New York. No such laws exist in New Jersey.

It is therefore evident that it is of great advantage both to individuals and corporations to have Safe Deposit accommodations and Bank Accounts in New Jersey.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—New York exchange, 20c. discount; time and call loans, 4@5 per cent. During the morning Biscuit common rose from 48¼ to 49¼. The preferred shares were quiet and firm. The elevated Railway stocks were still active. Metropolitan sold liberally again at 25, and the preferred at 65, while Northwestern held during the morning at 24. City Railway was conspicuously weakened by small sales which during the morning made an aggregate of 271 shares. The stock fell from 184 to 180. American Can common to the amount of about 600 shares changed hands during the morning, and hovered fractionally under six. The preferred was about steady. In the afternoon there was some small selling in several quarters. Box Board preferred sold down to 91¼, and Metropolitan Elevated preferred sagged back, selling at 64. On the other hand, Northwestern Elevated preferred ran up a point to 60. Transactions:

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Violent Advances in the Anthracite Group—Large Dealings in the Steels —News Scanty Still.

Yesterday, as on Wednesday, there was a scarcity of news to interest those who look to conditions to denote what markets should be, rather than to prices to discover what markets are. Weakness in the three chief staple markets was suggestive of ample commodity supplies for consumption and freight and as a basis for intrinsic values. Sterling weakened, not because there was no steamer, but because there was not demand enough to absorb the supply. With "excessive ease" reported in the London money market it makes little difference what the next bank statement is—our loans will disappear magically whenever our money market acts less disappointingly to local bankers.

There was, therefore, reason enough for the market to rise, and it did rise in spots, but so erratically, and with such softness elsewhere, that the impression of spontaneity and intrinsic buoyancy was left in need of repairs. With few exceptions it was the active stocks which yielded, and the inactive specialties, which can be marked up with small accumulation of purchases, which rose. They were highly respectable specialties which were moved spectacularly, but they failed to produce any conviction of an urgent investment demand. Thus Lackawanna ranged through 15 points on a total business of 2,300 shares, and retained an advance of 5½ points. It would be interesting to know exactly how large was the accumulation or change of ownership. Delaware and Hudson also rose 1⅝, upon business which was larger, but not large enough to rank it with the market leaders. The Pacific group fell again into the background, and lost fractions, leaving the day's interest largely centred upon the Steels, Reading, and Ontario.

Of the trio, Reading was the only one to score an advance, and that only of ¼ upon the largest business done in any property. This was a fatal blow to any theory based upon facts above regarding a sudden and general investment demand for the coal properties. Steel preferred lost 1⅜ upon the day's second largest business. Everybody knew exactly who was selling, and why, but it was surely unfortunate to make the statement with the rider that "a large short interest still exists." This rather suggests than denies that the chief source of strength of this stock has disappeared. Ontario and Western lost the dividend provisionally announced, but recovered all but a fraction. It was in the active class, and the vivification of a "dead one" shows that the reformers' labors were not wholly lost. There may be only one or two dividends in the next few years, but there will be commissions galore.

GENERAL BUSINESS ITEMS.

There were sales on the Stock Exchange yesterday of twenty shares of Bank of Commerce at 219@218 and ten shares of National City Bank stock at 277½.

Soft coal shipments over Pennsylvania lines east of Pittsburg and Erie, week ended Sept. 24, were 788,460 tons, making the total for the year to date 28,817,331 tons, against 30,988,044 tons last year.

According to San Francisco dispatches a committee of fifteen, appointed by the State Fruit Growers' Association, is working upon plans for a co-operative association to control the entire fruit product of California.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Reaction in Steel Preferred—Record Price for Lackawanna — Large Buying by London.

In some quarters much importance was attached to the report that the banking house most prominently identified with the Harriman properties had cabled to their friends on the Continent advising the purchase of Southern Pacific. The movement of the stock yesterday and for several days past did not suggest such influential buying, and, in fact, it was said that brokers representing the same banking house were sellers of Southern Pacific yesterday, but the point was made that such selling was likely to make its appearance as a cloak for any accumulation of the stock. While the question of a dividend on Southern Pacific common is still considered a rather remote one, it is thought by some that the plans in this respect of the controlling interests in the property may be sufficiently formed to make them willing to advise their friends to increase their holdings of the stock.

Record Price for Lackawanna.

While the rather sensational advances in some of the high-priced anthracite issues were coupled with the names of one or more of the active traders, it was not thought that all the buying of these stocks originated on the floor. Both in Delaware and Hudson and Lackawanna there was buying by prominent houses, which appeared to lessen the speculative appearance of the advances in these issues. Clark, Dodge & Co. were prominent in the buying of Lackawanna, and Hollister & Babcock were purchasers of Delaware and Hudson. The advance in Lackawanna to 300 carried that stock above previous records, but it took very little stock to bring about the 15-point advance. It reacted easily to 291.

Varied Selling of Steel Preferred.

In the first hour the demand for Steel preferred was almost aggressive, and as a result the price shot up to 73, but from that figure steadily receded to 71⅛. It closed on a rally of half a point from the lowest. In connection with the statement that Charles M. Schwab while in San Francisco on Wednesday had purchased 20,000 shares of the stock the view was expressed in some quarters that, despite this buying, there was still probably a fair-sized short interest in the stock. Trade interests were said to be selling Steel yesterday in the belief that the market had sufficiently discounted the trade improvement. Traders recognized such selling and swelled the sales by more or less extensive operations on the short side. If recent experience is repeated the effects of the trade selling will be more than made up by the willingness of traders to go short of the stock, and it is believed in some quarters that the short selling will be more influential in shaping the course of the stock than the selling of long stock will be. The trading in the two Steel stocks amounted to 177,000 shares out of the total in all stocks of 803,990 shares.

Pool Operations in Chesapeake.

Pool operations in Chesapeake and Ohio were said to be responsible for the slight advance in that issue. It is believed that the pool has recently disposed of a fair amount of stock bought at lower prices, and is now in a better position to support the stock should occasion arise.

***

London Active on Buying Side.

London was a large buyer of stocks yesterday. It was estimated that they took about 50,000 shares on balance, which was not far from the total trading for foreign account, as very little stock was sold by London. Before our opening there was an active market in Americans in London, and more than usual interest was displayed there in the course of the New York market.

Sterling Exchange Declines 20 Points.

A large supply of cotton bills was responsible for a sharp decline in the price of sterling exchange. Demand sterling fell from about $4.8580 to $4.8560, bringing the rate to the lowest point reached this season. Toward the close the market steadied somewhat, but at a level little, if at all, above the low price of the day. The money market remained easy, with little or no variation in rates.

OUT OF TOBACCO TRUST.

Hilson Company Withdraws—No Reasons Given.

The announcement made yesterday to the effect that the Hilson Company, manufacturers of cigars and tobacco cigarettes, had withdrawn from the Tobacco Trust, carries with it, though not officially announced, the news of the abandonment of the opposition to the recently proposed plan for the consolidation of all the companies controlled by the Consolidated Tobacco Company. The trust, it is understood, has returned to Mr. Hilson the stock in the Hilson Company which it had received from him.

It is understood that as a result of the return of the stock the representatives of the Tobacco Trust on the Board of Directors of the Hilson Company withdrew, while Adolph Katzki, Leo Wolf, and A. H. Kaufman were elected to fill their places. Samuel Untermyer, counsel for Mr. Hilson, declined yesterday to talk about the case, and at the offices of the Hilson Company, at First Avenue and Thirty-ninth Street, all information was refused, except the bare statement that the company had withdrawn from the Tobacco Trust.

GRAND TRUNK MEETING.

Sir Rivers Wilson Predicts Commercial Activity Here and in Canada.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Sir Charles Rivers Wilson, presiding at the semi-annual meeting of the shareholders of the Grand Trunk Railroad here to-day, said the abnormal working expenses of the first part of the year were due to the severity of the weather and the depression which existed in the United States as well as in Canada.

The prospects, however, said Sir Charles, were bright, as a bumper corn harvest in the United States and a heavy wheat harvest in Canada prophesied a period of great commercial activity in those countries.

The report of the board was adopted and the Directors were authorized to enter into an agreement acquiring control of the Canada Atlantic Railroad Company.

RUSSELL SAGE SETTLES SUIT.

Compromises $50,000 Claim in Negligence Action for $750.

By the filing of an order in the County Clerk's office yesterday, discontinuing an action brought against Russell Sage, it was learned that Mr. Sage had settled a $50,000 suit against him for $750. The action was brought by Mrs. Bridget Kane, whose husband, Jeremiah Kane, was killed on Sept. 8 of last year by falling down the basement stairs at Mr. Sage's house, 1,263 Park Avenue. Kane was employed as janitor of the house, and his wife alleged that the carelessness of Mr. Sage in neglecting to repair a broken step of the stairway was responsible for the accident. Mr. Sage, in his answer, declared that Kane was intoxicated at the time of his fall.

Lehigh Valley Traction Deposits.

The Reorganization Committee of the Lehigh Valley Traction Company announce that a large amount of the various securities embraced in their plan have been lodged with the depositaries, including 50 per cent. of the bonds of the Philadelphia and Lehigh Valley Traction Company. The time for the deposit of securities expires Oct. 1, 1904.

Rain Helps Hudson River Mills.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 29.—A heavy rainstorm has deluged the lower Adirondacks since early this morning and promises to continue throughout the night. The rainfall of the last few days has raised the upper Hudson River over sixteen inches. This will enable many mills to resume operations.

THE LONDON MARKET.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—The demand for money in the market to-day was much increased, it being Stock Exchange pay day and considerable sums being owing to the Bank of England. Discounts were weak.

Operators on the Stock Exchange were chiefly occupied with the conclusion of the settlement. Business improved on the prospects of easy money. Consols hardened.

Americans opened irregular, though they were well maintained on New York support; reacted later, and closed dull.

Foreigners mostly were inactive, owing to the Paris settlement.

Japanese were weaker. Imperial Japanese Government 6s of 1904 were quoted at 96⅜.

Kafirs were strong.

Closing prices: Consols, for money, 88 7-16; consols, for the account, 88 7-16; Anaconda, 4⅝; Atchison, 85½; Atchison preferred, 103½; Baltimore and Ohio, 92⅛; Canadian Pacific, 133⅝; Chesapeake and Ohio, 45⅝; Chicago Great Western, 17¼; Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, 160¼, ex dividend; De Beers, 18⅝; Denver and Rio Grande, 30½; Denver and Rio Grande preferred, 84⅜; Erie, 32¼; Erie first preferred, 69⅜; Erie second preferred, 47½; Illinois Central, 143½; Louisville and Nashville, 130½; Missouri, Kansas and Texas, 23½; New York Central, 131; Norfolk and Western preferred, 92½; Ontario and Western, 36⅝; Pennsylvania, 68½; Rand Mines, 10¼; Reading, 35¼; Reading first preferred, 44; Reading second preferred, 30½; Southern Railway, 34⅝; Southern Railway preferred, 96¼, ex dividend; Southern Pacific, 59; Union Pacific, 104½; Union Pacific preferred, 96; United States Steel, 18⅝; United States Steel preferred, 74⅜; Wabash, 22; Wabash preferred, 43¼; Spanish 4s, 87⅝.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

The market for curb stocks was on a less active scale yesterday, and price movements were irregular. The heaviest volume of business was in the three or four issues which have been the leaders in activity during the earlier days of the week. The opening transactions throughout the list were made at the best prices of the day, and after the heavy dealings in evidence prices eased off, and for the most part did not rally. American Tobacco preferred was an exception to this general movement, and after losing half a point from the first sales advanced sharply just before the close to 88, a net gain of 2¼ points, on purchases of 2,000 shares. Northern Securities opened strong at an advance of a fraction, but almost immediately heavy selling by interests which had been buyers the previous three days caused a break from 106½ to 106¼. The stock rallied later and closed at 107⅛, a net loss of 1⅛.

PSEUDO BUYER TURNS ON MAN SHOWING LAUNCH

Price Taken Out for Ride by the Owner's Brother.

KNOCKED DOWN WITH WRENCH

Luebbers Says He Was Then Robbed of Clothes—Prisoner Said Kidnapping Was His First Plan.

Thomas N. Price, twenty-two years old, of 993 Amsterdam Avenue, is a prisoner in the Tombs on a charge which might be piracy instead of robbery and assault, but for the fact that it was committed on inland waters instead of on the high sea. Price was arrested by Detective Sergeant Boyle of Inspector McClusky's staff as he was entering his home at dawn of yesterday morning. On the way to Police Headquarters it is charged that he attacked the detective and stabbed him twice in the neck. Two policemen came to Boyle's rescue and clubbed Price into submission.

Price comes from a respectable family. His downfall is declared by his relatives to be due to the morphine habit, which he contracted while very young. Albert V. Luebbers, an insurance broker of 16 Exchange Place, who is the complainant, appeared in the Jefferson Market Court when Price was arraigned yesterday, with his head swathed in bandages.

According to his story he got his injuries on Tuesday morning on board the little naphtha launch Josephine while off Fort Washington in the North River. The Josephine is the property of Ernest N. Luebbers, Jr., a younger brother of Albert V. It had been advertised for sale, Price had come forward as a prospective buyer, and it was while a trial spin was being made with Luebbers and Price, the only persons on board, that the assault and robbery is alleged to have taken place. This is the story Luebbers told in court:

"Price came to my house, 320 Central Park West, on Monday morning and said he wanted to buy the launch. He represented himself as a Michigan lumber dealer, and said he would take the craft West if we could arrive at a satisfactory bargain. The boat was anchored off the landing of the Hudson River Yacht Club, at West Ninety-fifth Street, and we went there and looked her over. Price said that if she ran as well as she looked he would buy her. It was agreed that we were to try her out the next morning.

"We left the yacht club landing as planned. I took the wheel to leave him free to observe the engine and the working of the boat generally. Price was conversing in the most affable manner, but he frequently went aft, as I thought, to look at the engine. It was after one of these visits to the engine that he dealt me a crack over the head with a monkey wrench. He hit me again in the forehead as I turned round, and before I could recover sufficiently to ward off the blows he hit we twice more. When I sought to resist he caught me by the shoulders and threw me down. Then he stripped off all my outer clothing and told me to put on his suit, which he removed. He said he liked my clothing better than his own."

The broker said he could not tell how long he had remained in a semi-conscious condition, when Price finally told him to take the wheel and run the launch ashore at the foot of West One Hundred and Forty-fifth Street. As soon as the launch touched the pier, Price jumped ashore and disappeared, after first having pushed the craft out into the river. Luebbers ran the boat to the West One Hundred and Forty-ninth Street landing and reported the matter to the police.

Just before Price left the launch, the broker said he asked him to return one ring of three he had taken from him, because it had once been the property of his mother. Price then handed back all three rings.

"I am sorry now that I have done this at all," Luebbers says Price told him. "I intended merely to kidnap you and hold you for a ransom, but my plans miscarried because two fellows who were in on the job got cold feet at the last moment."

A postal card addressed to Price which was found in a pocket of the clothing he had made his victim put on led to his arrest. Price, the police say, made a confession to them. In court he waived examination and was held for the Grand Jury in $7,000 bail on two charges of assault and one of robbery. Price came originally from Chicago, where his father now lives. Two years ago he married a young woman whose parents live in Harlem. A year later he deserted her and their child. He enlisted in the army, but deserted after a few months. He was then placed in a sanitarium to be treated for the drug habit, but to no avail.

Way Clear for Hudson Tunnel.

Judge Jonathan Dixon of the Supreme Court of New Jersey rendered a decision yesterday dismissing the writ of certiorari obtained by the Lackawanna Road to review the order appointing Commissioners to condemn a right of way across its yard for the Hudson River tunnel. Mr. McAdoo, the President of the tunnel company, stated that this removed the last obstacle and that the tunnel would now be pushed to a speedy completion.

A stranger to our clothes might think our mail order system a "heads you win, tails we lose" affair.

For we take all the chances; deliver free within 100 miles of our stores, and specify that anything we send anywhere is returnable at our expense, if not exactly to the customer's taste.

But we have our mail order system down so fine and our clothing so good that the chances are big that nothing's returned.

May we send samples of Fall suits and overcoats, with measure forms?

ENGINEER WHO FAVORED RAMAPO REGAINS POWER

Birdsall Superseded Hill Nearly Two Months Ago.

CHANGE NOT PUBLIC TILL NOW

Color Up in Arms Against New Water Scheme—Controller Grout Admits Suspicions.

Although Nicholas S. Hill, Jr., Chief Engineer of the Water Supply Department, resigned almost two months ago, being superseded by Consulting Engineer George W. Birdsall, as Acting Chief Engineer, no public announcement was made of the resignation until yesterday, when it came out at City Hall almost coincidentally with the announcement of Tammany's new scheme of spending $90,000,000 for additional water supply.

Controller Grout and Mr. Birdsall, who formerly held the appointment as Chief Engineer, were opposed in the Ramapo controversy, and the Controller was very bitter because of Mr. Birdsall's indorsement of the scheme in a formal report. Col. Robert G. Monroe as Commissioner displaced Mr. Birdsall as Chief Engineer on Sept. 27, 1902, then Mr. Hill took the place, which carries a salary of $10,000 a year. Mr. Hill has not been in the city since early in the present month, and it is said that he has obtained an appointment in Baltimore.

At the offices of the Department late yesterday afternoon, William M. Blake, Secretary to Commissioner Oakley, said that no reason had been advanced for Mr. Hill's resignation.

"Mr. Hill resigned to take effect Aug. 1," he said, "and held over until Sept. 1 at the request of the Commissioner." Other attaches said that Mr. Hill alone could give his reason for leaving the Department.

Bird S. Coler, who as Controller led the fight which resulted in the defeat of the Ramapo Company, denounced the new scheme yesterday as an attempt to compel the city to accept the terms of a corporation, which should be regarded as an enemy to the community by every right thinking man.

"It is proposed by Engineer Birdsall," he said, "whom I regard as a left-over of the Ramapi régime in the department, whose recommendations, I have always thought, should be considered with the aid of a microscope, and whose retention in the department I fought unsuccessfully during the whole of my term as Controller.

"Under the present law there is nothing for New York to do but to submit to Ramapo. Mr. Birdsall is quite correct, and no one knows it better than himself, when he says that Ramapo has secured control of every available water supply within 100 miles of New York. It has, and it means to take advantage of the fact, unless the citizens of New York make up their minds that it shall not."

Mr. Grout said he was inclined to look upon the scheme with suspicion from a general point of view, but declined to discuss it further, on the ground that he had not familiarized himself with the details.

CHANCELLOR LASHES THE RICH

Do Not Give to Medical Education, Dr. MacCracken Says.

The sixty-fourth opening exercises of the New York University Medical College were held yesterday afternoon in the lecture hall of the Carnegie Laboratory, First Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street. The entering class numbers 150, a 20 per cent. gain over last year's class.

Dr. Henry M. MacCracken, Chancellor of the university, presided, and in his opening address said, in part:

"Both the City of New York and the State of New York have lost ground relatively in a shameful degree in their work for medical education. What is the matter with New York in its treatment with medicine? Having watched it for twenty years, I have no word to express it better than 'disgraceful.' The disgrace attaches to the rich men of New York. I can count on my fingers every large giver to medicine in New York City in the last twenty years. Not more than two families or two individuals have given any one of the four regular schools a large gift. By large gift I mean at least $100,000.

"What do I see here at First Avenue? A medical Faculty that treated without a dollar of remuneration over 100,000 patients last year. The wealth of this city has not yet been persuaded to give this work enough endowment to pay a quarter of the expenses. I have personally stood in the offices of several multi-millionaires during the past year to beg money for this charity, and have received the reply that times were so bad they did not feel able to give a dollar.

"I suppose that every one of them was suffering from the misfortune of having a million or two that was not bringing them in a cent of interest. They could not give a dollar to the relief of the hundred thousand sufferers [illegible] last year at Twenty-

WANTED TO SEE HEAVEN.

Girl in Religious Fervor Drinks Iodine Before Parents—Will Recover.

Teresina Spiro, 15 years old, of 70 Bayard Street, has a religious mania, her father and mother say. Yesterday she went about the house muttering prayers and invocations. Her parents began talking something else to her, and she turned to her father and said:

"I want to go to heaven."

Then she got a crucifix from a dresser, and held it up before her eyes. She cried out:

"I want to die and see heaven!"

She pulled a bottle of iodine from her pocket, made the sign of the cross with the bottle, and poured the poison down her throat.

The father and mother screamed in horror, and the father caught the girl as she sank down on the floor. The mother shouted out of the window for help, and an ambulance surgeon arrived in time to save her life. The girl was arrested on a charge

BOLOGNA FAMINE THREATENS.

Sausagemakers Talk of Striking Unless Agreement Is Renewed.

A bologna famine in the delicatessen stores and at the free-lunch counters is now at hand. A general strike of the bologna makers in Manhattan and Brooklyn, affecting 1,000 men, is threatened to-day, to force the employers to sign again an agreement which expires to-night.

The bologna makers in Manhattan and Brooklyn belong to Locals 174 and 211 respectively, of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of America. They did not join in the last strike of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen in Manhattan, and still belong to the National Association.

About 400 men are employed in sixty-five shops in Manhattan and 300 in 100 shops in Brooklyn. There are 300 employed in non-union shops, and an effort will be made to get them [illegible]
